

How the Palaces and Private Residences were First... Paris shall not exist if Paris does not belong to the Communists. Such was their belief, resolve, and they proceeded to carry their threat of destroying the capital which they could not retain. They set to work in three distinct ways. In the palaces and public offices, which they commanded, they disposed at regular intervals, sometimes bottles, sometimes pots of petroleum. When the vessels of petroleum were arranged at proper distances, one of them would be overturned and ignited; the flames would rapidly spread, and the whole building would soon be past salvation. It was in this way that the Tuilleries, the Palais Royal, the Hotel de Ville, the Palace of the Legion of Honor, and other celebrated public edifices, were set in flames. This arrangement was all made in the Ministry of Marine, and the wretches engaged in the work of destruction, had to fly before they could set fire to the pots of petroleum which they had planted in the most likely corridors. There was a second method adopted for the destruction of private houses. When it became necessary to retire from a particular barricade, the guards tore to pieces the beds which formed part of the barricades; took the tow out of the beds, dipped it in petroleum, and loaded their guns with it. Then they fired the tow into the windows of the house. It was in this way that the block of houses in the Rue Royale, facing the Madeleine, was set on fire.

Still a third method: men and women were going about Paris, with bottles of petroleum in their pockets, or hid about their dresses. They threw these bottles down into the ground floors of every dwelling they could get at. If there was no room for the bottle to get through, the neck of the bottle could get into certain air-holes which belong to the construction of French houses; the liquid would be poured in, and a lighted match would be sent in after it. In this way, very many private houses were set in flames; and many hundreds of women were taken in the act all day—some of them shot upon the spot. All day, too, the inhabitants, apprised of what was going on, were engaged in stopping up all the sky-lights, gratings, and air-holes which connected their ground floors with the pavements. Whenever you turned, in every street, you saw the inhabitants busy, plastering, brickwork or shutting up with planks the two feet of their houses next to the pavement. Not only were women taken, but the men, also, in great numbers, were arrested. The fact is, that many adherents of the Commune entered the ranks of the firemen, partly to disguise themselves, and partly to spread the fire, instead of extinguishing it.

TRAGEDY OF THE COMMUNIST LEADERS.—The Government troops are vindictive. If not even brutal, in following up their victory. A trio of the Communist leaders was captured on Thursday night. They were Jules Valles, Ferré, and Longuet. Valles was made prisoner after the others, in rear of the Theatre du Chatelet. His comrades had been taken very shortly before. Valles was dragged forward by the Versailles, and one of their non-commissioned officers struck him upon the neck with his sword. In his anger and agony, Valles struck back, and immediately an extraordinary shooting party was drawn up, and fired into the body of the unfortunate rebel. But Valles, had the bad taste not to die off at once; he writhed and twisted, and groaned upon the ground, until nearly all who were within sight and hearing had to avert their eyes and move away from the most horrible suffering. The captain commanding the firing party told me that "they let him suffer on purpose." His fellow-captive, Ferré, whose doom was but deferred, cried out: "Oh, Captain, in the name of mercy, put him out of pain!" and the appeal was so far successful that the captain then shot his prisoner dead.

Leftenant Gambon and Amouroux were shot in the Rue de la Banque, against the wall of the Stamp Office. Raoul Rigault finished his days in the courtyard of the Ecole Militaire. Courbet, the painter, who ordered the destruction of the Vendome Column, was found hiding in a cupboard, not quite large enough to conceal him, in the Ministry of Finance, and, attempting some resistance, was, according to some reports, shot on the spot. Maljournal, who has boasted ever since the fatal 22d of March, when the Paris of Order was fired upon in the Rue de la Paix, that he gave the order, has met the fate which he so richly merits.

Dombrowski died in the bed-room in the Hotel de Ville formerly occupied by Mlle. Hausmann. The day after his escape from LaMette he received three rifle shots while at a barricade in the Rue d'Ornano. He was transferred from there to the Hotel de Ville, where he died of his wounds. Delescluz was killed on Tuesday at the barricade of the Chateau d'Eau. His face was much disfigured by a portion of a burning wall which had fallen on it. His identity is simply proved by papers found in his pocket. The insurgent Gen. Biseu, who was captured, was shot yesterday, as well as Taveira, a member of the Commune. Milliere, a deputy of the National Assembly, was arrested on Thursday in the Place Luxembourg. He was thence led to the Place du Theatres, and there shot. When the soldiers were raising their rifles to dispatch him, he cried: "Vive la Commune!" "Vive l'Humanite!" "Vive le Peuple!"

CONSUMPTION, ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE.

BY J. A. SCHENCK, M. D.

MANY a human being has passed away for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proven means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless sleep in which, had they only adopted...

DR. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT. And availed themselves of his wonderful child-like medicines, they would not have fallen. Dr. Schenck has, in his own case, proved that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicine is as simple as it is unfeigned. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self-evident, self-convincing.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbid action of the liver. Here, then, comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of nature's noblest gifts—the Podophyllum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel; but, unlike calomel, they...

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND." The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses itself. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting at last...

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD. The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Obviation is now progressing without its previous tortures. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite is born.

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its task, and nature's law is obeyed. It collects and rids the impurities of the diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of expectoration, and in a very short time, the malady is vanquished. The rotten throne that it occupied is renovated and made new. And the patient, in all the dignity of regal vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manifold joys of the womanhood that was given to him.

The second thing, the patients must stay in a warm room until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be prevented, or a cure cannot be effected. Fresh air and fading cold, especially in this section of the country in the winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who come and that counsel their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased, and yet, because they are in the house, they must not sit down quiet; they must walk about the room as much and as good circulation of blood. The patients must keep in good spirits, and be determined to get well. This is a great deal to ask, but the appetite, and is the great point to gain.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases; and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these words: "I was in the last stages of consumption; confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then, like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public. It seemed to me that I never felt them penetrate my whole system. They did not ripen the matter in my lungs, and I would not sit more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time."

"As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pain and night sweats all began to go, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained strength and have grown in flesh ever since."

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

Re-Vital of Dr. Randall, AS the exterminator of CORNS and BUNIONS, whose reputation in this particular branch of surgery is already known, is again in our city, and can be found at the Washington Hotel. As there is no doubt as to his skill and efficiency in the removal of these impediments, to walking in comfort, persons needing his services should not delay in having recourse to his aid. June 6

DEBILITY AND EMACIATION BOTH result from the lack of ability to convert the food into nutriment. How, necessary, then, for those suffering from these alarming symptoms to immediately resort to a remedy that will strengthen the stomach and digestive organs. For, as soon as this desirable object has been accomplished the health improves, and the patient resumes his usual personal appearance. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has attained a world-wide popularity in such cases, and have been proven the best and safest means of removing constipation, toning the stomach, giving energy to the liver, and relieving every symptom of nervousness and depression of spirits. Its cheering and beneficial effects are highly spoken of by thousands, who owe to its restoration to health. No restorative in the annals of medicine has attained the same popularity in the short space of time it has been before the public, or has won the high endorsements accorded to it by the highest medical authorities. Preparations, purporting to be correctives and restoratives, have been introduced, and have perished one by one, while the popularity of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters continues to increase, and is now recognized as a standard household medicine. The success which attends the use of the Bitters evinces at once its virtues in all cases of debility and diseases of the stomach. Certificates, almost without number, have been published, attesting its truly miraculous power in removing those painful and fearful diseases. And at this time it seems idle to do more than call attention to the great remedy of the age, in order to awaken public attention to its excellence. It is the only preparation of the kind that is reliable in all cases, and it is therefore worthy of the consideration of the afflicted. June 16

ARTIFICIAL TEETH. REYNOLDS' IMPROVEMENT. THOSE who have lost several Natural Teeth, and have been advised to part with remaining sound ones, as the first step towards obtaining artificial substitutes, are requested, before submitting to a practice, cruel in itself and often unnecessarily performed, to convince themselves of its fallacy, by looking closely into a matter of so much importance.

The above improvement was designed to resist as deplorable a practice, and after a thorough test of more than three years, is found capable of accomplishing what no other system of Artificial Dentistry has heretofore done. It is now possible to obtain partial cases, which will save for years Natural Teeth, and be at the same time reliable in every respect. An invitation is hereby given to such as feel interested to call at our Operating Rooms, and examine duplicate specimens of cases now in actual use. Nov 6 1
