CHAIRMAN BISHOP

Denies a Statement Imputed to Him—Compliments Mr. McLean.

"The Beacon reported me as saying last week that if Col. Kilbourne had been nominated for Governor, the Democratic ticket would not have been defeated," said Chairman Ed H. Bishop, of the Democratic Executive committee, to the DEMOCRAT today. "It is hardly necessary for me to say that the Beacon's story was a fake from beginning to end. I do not believe that Col. Kilbourne's nomination would have made any material difference so far as results are concerned. Mayor Jones had accepted the independent nomination for Governor a week or so before the Democratic convention was held, and his candidacy would have injured any Democrat who would have been nominated. Mr. McLean gave his party one of the most efficient organizations it ever had, and the fact that he came within 50,000 votes of defeating the Republican nominee for Governor, even under the great handicap of the Jones candidacy, is a record of which he may well be proud."

HAD A DREAM

In Which He Discovered Vast Gold Mines—Company Formed.

E. E. Balcom, who has resigned his position as agent for the P. & W. railroad at Wayland, O., by reason of visions he had showing the location of vast gold mines in Montana, has had a number of weird maps made of the locality which are now on exhibition in the office of an attorney at Youngstown.

The Seven States Prospecting and Mining company of Chicago has become interested in the matter and will send an expert with Balcom to Montana to look over the territory. Balcom is so thoroughly convinced that gold in large quantities will be found as located by him on the maps he has drawn that he turned all his property into money and will use it in developing the gold mines.

A HARD MAN TO BEAT

THE LIVE RAILROAD AGENT IS UP TO ALL SORTS OF TRICKS.

Circus People Are Pretty Cute Themselves, but This Story Shows How One Party Was Cleverly Outwitted by the Hustling Railroad.

"There are people who think you can't beat a circus man, but I want to tell you that the hardest man to do is a live railroad man."

The old sawdust manager had tried it. He continued:

"Know where Purcell is in the Indian Territory? Away down at the jumping off place on the Santa Fe road. The show had been at Purcell and we wanted to get out in the night for a long run. We were going to make a jump to Kansas City. Not far from Purcell is another town, Oklahoma City. At that point a competing road with the Santa Fe runs in. We had 500 people, and of course the railroad men were after us. It was a big haul. Some of our people bought through tickets from Purcell, and they didn't worry. But about 200, maybe more, of the crowd that always haggles over a 10 cent dicker concluded to take the Santa Fe from Purcell to Oklahoma City, pay the short haul, and then take the competing line at Oklahoma, the agents of which were active and full of promises.

"Then the Santa Fe man fixed it so the dickerers couldn't buy any tickets from Purcell to Oklahoma, for the train we were to go on was a special. The dickerers said that was all right; that they would wait for the regular. In less than five minutes a bulletin was slapped on the board of the station to the effect that the regular Santa Fe was 12 hours late. That made the fellows who were dickerer for a cheaper rate turn white around their gills.

"In another five minutes I saw a man on a track velocipede scudding down the stretch. Every man to his business. So I thought the railroad people knew what they were doing, and they did. That chap on the velocipede was going down the track to flag the regular and hold it indefinitely. Smart trick, wasn't it? Wait till I tell you. There was a smarter trick than that.

"When the special got ready to pull out, the dickerers asked the agent if they could pay on the train from Purcell to Oklahoma, and he said 'Cert.' So they all boarded the train at Purcell, intending to get off at Oklahoma. Just before the train pulled out the agent walks down to the engine and asks the old man at the throttle how long he had been on the road and about the capacity of his iron horse, and so forth.

"How many miles an hour can she go at her best?" asked the agent.

"On a good track, 65 miles."

"Is it a good track through Oklahoma City?"

"Yes, pretty good."

"All right. You've got no orders to stop there nor to slow up, have you?"

"Not yet."

"Well, when you get to the edge of the town you let her go. Don't stop for anything—flags or teams or cattle. Scoot through the town at a 65 mile gait, or more if you like, and don't slow up until you strike that strip of desolation about 11 miles to the right and you smoke a box of the finest cigars in Chicago. Is it a go?"

"If I don't get no orders 'fore I start."

"Well, you are five minutes late now."

"In a minute, and I calculate it was less, the circus special was under way. It went around curves like a scared snake. It shot across straight lines like a gazelle that had been singled. It whirled the dust of that country into the sky. After awhile we saw a town. Then we went through it like the woman that's shot from the catapult, only more so. One of the dickerers, who was smiling to think the conductor had not yet come round, asked a brakeman as the train was going through the street, 'What town is this?' The brakeman said, 'Oklahoma City.'

"The dickerer's smile faded as it came, as the poet says, and his hair stood up, and turning to the brakeman he says:

"Jezebel! Stop her! Here's where we get off!"

"She doesn't even hesitate at a town like this," said the brakeman.

"Well, about 11 miles on this side, in a strip of country where a crow can't live and where an Indian wouldn't be caught dead, the old iron horse didn't slow up. The conductor came through just then and said:

"Tickets!"

"Well, say, that was a funny sight. Them that had tickets showed up and then went to sleep. But the dickerers began to kick. They said they should have been let off at Oklahoma City. The conductor said the train didn't stop at Oklahoma, that it wasn't scheduled to stop there, and that he wasn't going to go back that trip. The leader of the dickerers for cheap fares, wanted to know what was to be done.

"The conductor was an old timer. He had a face on him like a woman who never loved anybody. He just told them, 'Pay or get off.' Then they asked him where they could pay to. And he said the train wouldn't stop any more until it got to Kansas City the next morning unless it stopped to put them off. And he reached up and caught the bellrod.

"And every one of the dickerers paid to Kansas City. And, of course, under the railroad law, they paid more than they would have paid if they had bought tickets at Purcell. And the company was that much ahead. And that's what I mean when I say that the hardest man to do is a live railroad man."
