"OTHERWISE" SECURITY.

A few years ago some farmers out in Nebraska, being in hard lines for want of money with which to carry on their industry...

The scheme was hatched at as wildly visionary and the proposers of it as lunatic, and nowhere so vehemently as in Wall Street.

Last week Wall Street found itself, through the operation of the whirligig of time and fortune, in the same plight with the authors of the sub-treasury proposition of a dozen years since.

On the other hand the panic which rattled Wall Street last week, and sent the shivers up and down its spinal column till call money on Saturday reached 35 per cent, had its origin, as all the numerous panics of that region do, in stock gambling.

where the "captains of industry" have their offices and where the "upholders of the honor of the nation" live. It is the peculiar dwelling place of the gold standard, the only standard, as the public were assured in 1893 and 1900, which could be relied on as stable and subject to no fluctuations.

Secretary Shaw, in order to furnish money for the New York interests deposited with them government funds, first upon the security named in the statute, and that not proving enough for the insatiable demands of the dicers, he consented to stretch the law and take other security.

For some time now the army of Democratic voters in Summit county have had no representation by men of their own party at the Court House.

It is altogether probable that Hon. David B. Hill will remember "Big Chief" Devery when the returns from the Ninth New York district come in in November.

duties as financial agents of the government.

It will be observed that the Secretary reads into this law the word "or," instead of "and" as it now reads, before the word "otherwise."

Under this forced interpretation, what the Secretary of the Treasury says amounts to the equivalent of some 132 millions of money have been released within a week for the purposes of the New York financiers.

The transaction is strictly revolutionary, measured even by Wall Street standards. The cry there has been: "The government must go out of the banking business."

We know several men in this town who would like to borrow money on security of the "otherwise" sort, just as the Nebraska folks wanted to on wheat. But we may be very sure they will obtain nothing.

The result for the time being was announced in yesterday's dispatches, thus: "The Morgan stocks are free from a raid."

The coat miners of Pennsylvania have some of this "otherwise" security, in the shape of sweat and brawn and muscle, "otherwise" called the labor necessary to mine coal, which is very much wanted also in New York, and which they would like to pawn to the government in return for ready money or credit, to keep themselves and their little ones from starving in the coming winter.

That the races are the great drawing card at the fair was evident Thursday from the large crowd that waited until the last heat was run.

It is altogether probable that Hon. David B. Hill will remember "Big Chief" Devery when the returns from the Ninth New York district come in in November.

the Johnson meeting here Oct. 16, it is respectfully suggested that the place intended for him in the tent on that occasion be taken by Gen. Chas. Dick.

People used to shiver at the thought of the western farmers having no fuel but corn. Now they envy them. Even corn beats no fuel.

Wise and Otherwise

Now smile.

Hurrah for the fair!

'Twas a day of much racing.

Fakirs never did a better business.

The rainy season is said to be nearly over.

Lots of pretty girls in Summit county.

Deputy Sheriff Hollinger can also obtain confessions.

Just why it is called ice cream candy is a problem for scientists.

Three cheers for the officers who are recapturing those prisoners!

No, Maybell, they do not use city water in the pools at the races.

"Way down yonder in de co'nfined," the first of the seven was found.

There will be "squawkers" in many a rural household, for a day or two.

The money the N. O. T. Co. didn't get would make a respectable bank account.

Maybe Dan Myers mistook the tail corn for the tail timber, hence his capture.

Akron carried off the honors in the baby show with one first, and three second prizes.

Most of the police have a distinct realization of who is chief of the Police department.

As usual a good many people are suggesting that the dates of the fair should be changed.

If as many people traversed Furnace st. every day it would soon present a different appearance.

There were some dreadfully lame street cars in operation between Akron and the fair grounds.

It is said that a veteran race horse died of mortification in Pennsylvania last week, when hitched to a plow.

Today the managers of the fair are laughing, and the public laughs with them. Sunshine is surely contagious.

It would have served Dan Myers right to have compelled him to crawl back into jail in the same manner he crawled out.

Finishes so close that you could have thrown a blanket over several of the horses were the order of the races Thursday.

No, Algernon, the horse owners don't mean for their jockeys to get drunk when they order them to "lick'er up" to the limit.

Manager Pierce of the Colonial admits that it is a great show and he has been in the business for, lo, these many years.

All persons having to do with violation of law will remain away from Akron hereafter, for here "all laws are enforced," according to the Mayor.

The persons who annually cross the track and try to see how near a race horse can come to hitting them without actually doing so, were at the fair in large numbers Thursday.

Thirty-five policemen ought to be able to keep the crowd off the track at the fair grounds. At least, so remarked Starter "Ab" Barnard, and he added, "They each get $2.50 a day."

Probably when a few indignant mothers have been to see the judges in the baby show and have wanted to know why no prizes came to them, the smiles will depart from the judges' faces.

That the races are the great drawing card at the fair was evident Thursday from the large crowd that waited until the last heat was run.

There were a good number of the fair sex in the crowd, too.

The subject most discussed by visitors to the fair who spent a few hours in the city was the wonderful cleanliness of the streets. Truly Mayor Doyle has erected to himself a monument of imperishable fame.

"Ed" Hershey believes there is money in racing ostriches, that is, if the birds don't get their tongues tangled in the bits, or become addicted to stage fright. If he goes into the business, Mr. "Wilse" Robinson will probably be his driver.

On the other hand no one had quite so good a time as the young man from Copley township and his only one. Some foolish people may have smiled at them, but they were oblivious of it. Purely as a question of happiness
