Vigor and Vitality

Are quickly given to every part of the body by Hood's Sarsaparilla. That tired feeling is entirely overcome; the blood is purified, enriched and vitalized, and carries health instead of disease to every organ. The stomach is toned and strengthened, the appetite restored; the kidneys and liver are roused and invigorated; the brain is refreshed and the mind made clear and ready for work. Try it.

Rev. Calvin Fairbank, an aged clergyman now living in Angelica, Allegany County, New York, was a Kentucky school-teacher back in 1840, and gained the enmity of slave holders by saving a beautiful quadroon girl, one of his pupils, from being sold South. He raised money enough among Northern friends—Salmon P. Chase being a contributor—to buy the girl, set her free, and sent her North, where Gamaliel Bailey, editor of the National Era, adopted and educated her. Not long after, Mr. Fairbank was imprisoned in the Kentucky penitentiary and severely flogged on the charge of aiding slaves to escape.

Mr. Gladstone's habits of life are very simple, although busy. He rises about 6:30 o'clock, breakfasts on bacon and eggs or a little fish and tea and then goes to his library to skim over the newspapers. From 9 to 1 o'clock he recieves callers. A light lunch follows and then he is driven directly to Parliament. He usually dines quietly at home at 7:30 in the evening, the food being simple and the wines light, and then he returns to the House. Unless there is to be an important division he is at home and in bed by 11 o'clock. Mr. Gladstone has a fondness for old clothes, and when new ones are bought for him his wife has to resort to diplomacy to induce him to wear them. When he speaks in the House he loosens his collar, turns up his wristbands and unbuttons his waistcoat, his gestures becoming exceedingly vigorous as he warms up.
