SOME of the financiers ought to take lessons from the girls how to get out of a tight squeeze.

If you are putting up a stovepipe just think of what you said last year and let it go at that.

It will become a Republican to sneer at the Treasury deficit, which is the direct result of republican extravagance.

SENATOR HILL has apparently grown tired of playing minor parts and has become a Senatorial star of the first magnitude.

"How long can he talk?" may be asked quite frequently by members of legislatures who are asked to vote for some man for Senator.

JOHN SHERMAN's attempt to attach himself to the administration in the capacity of adviser was not a glittering success.

If the republican calamity howlers would "let up" for a while the times would have a better chance to improve.

WHEN Secretary Carlisle considers an issue of bonds necessary he will not be slow in letting Congress know it. It would be almost ridiculous for Congress to act in advance of being asked to do so.

THE friendship of Republican Senators who insist upon authorizing an issue of bonds that has not been asked for by the administration may well be regarded with suspicion.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND has some ideas about the establishment of another monarchy in Brazil that do not harmonize with those entertained in Europe.

IT is just as well to stop quarrelling over silver—until the next Congressional campaign. Then the country can endorse or condemn the action of Congress, according to the will of the majority.

CALL it "luck," "pluck" or whatever you please there is no denying that Grover Cleveland has the habit of getting what he wants. He also has a hold upon the affections of the people that no other President has ever had.

THE setting out of shade trees, during November, should receive the attention of owners of lots that are not adequately supplied with these income parable ornaments.

THINGS are not as prosperous as they might be, but citizens of the United States still have numerous blessings for which they should be thankful.

THE republican editors in New York are probably the only men living who regard an increase in value of the taxable property of a State as a misfortune. To other people an increase in the value of property is a very desirable evidence of prosperity.

WHY should prize fighting be prohibited when foot ball is allowed to be played? Prize-fighters rarely hurt each other to any serious extent while broken bones are the rule rather than the exception in football games.

THE New York preacher who took occasion in a sermon filled with abuse of Chicago's assassinated mayor to say: "Carter Harrison was the apostle of anarchy, and he became the victim of lawlessness. The violence Mayor Harrison evoked destroyed him," had little conception of Chicago politics, and absolutely none of the first duty of a Christian.

SENATOR VOORHEES proved himself a man worthy to stand among men, when he said at the close of the long silver contest: "Nobody must think there is any base spirit of triumph in this hour. I feel, and the men who acted with me feel, that we are acting for the best interest of the country. But for the men who differ from us we have nothing but respect. This much I thought it becoming of me to say."

THERE is food for thought in Senator Gorman's statement that the Voorhees bill does not include all the financial legislation wanted by democratic Senators, and that every attempt to make it a more comprehensive measure was defeated by the opposition of republican Senators.

Electric Bitters.
This remedy is becoming so well known and so popular as to need no special mention. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise. A purer medicine does not exist and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the liver and kidneys, will remove pimples, boils, salt rheum and other affections caused by impure blood. Will drive Malaria from the system and prevent as well as cure all Malarial fevers. For cure of headache, constipation and indigestion try Electric Bitters. UNCLE SAM, to the European royalists who are plotting for the restoration of royalty in Brazil: Hands off, gentlemen; even if there were no such thing as the Monroe doctrine public opinion in the United States would compel me to prevent your interference with any government on this continent.

HAD the bill which recently passed the House prohibiting the loaning of money by National banks to their officers, without the consent of a majority of their directors, been a law a few months ago the depositors of the wrecked Madison Square Bank, in New York city, would have saved the $270,000, which was loaned without adequate security to three of its directors.

CLAUS SPRECKLES says he doesn't care a straw whether Hawaii is annexed or not, but he acted as though he cared much more than that. However, Claus is better employed in trying to throw sand in the people's eyes than if he were putting it in his sugar.

THE statement of Dr. Carl Peters, the Imperial German Commissioner to East Africa, that the negro, no matter what his intellectual advancement may be, will always lie and steal and lack conscience, may be a little too broad, but it cannot be denied, without strengthening the truth, that it applies to many members of the race.

NEW YORK preachers are nothing if not sensational. How does "Triumphphant Debauchery, or, Legislation by the Thugs of Divorcement" strike you as a title for a sermon delivered by a man who claims to be a follower of the meek and lowly Jesus?

SCAMPS are reported to be mailing circulars offering the following "oil paintings" for sale: Columbus in Flight of Land, Landing of Columbus, Flagship of Columbus' Fleet, Columbus Soliciting Aid of Isabella, Columbus' Welcome at Barcelona, Columbus Presented to the Natives, Columbus Announces His Discovery, Columbus at La Bida, Recall of Columbus. The entire set was offered for $3, six for $5 and one for $1. The paintings were nothing more nor less than Columbian postage stamps that can be bought at any postoffice for a few cents. Don't be swindled.

How few of those who are constantly howling against trade with England have any idea of what that trade amounts to, and how largely in favor of the United States it is. Were it not for England the surplus products of our farmers would rot in the granaries. For the year ending June 30, 1892, the total exportation from this country to all the world was $1,055,000,000. Of this amount the British government and its colonial possessions bought $554,700,000. Think of it. The English purchased from the United States nearly 25 per cent. of everything we sold. The importations into the United States from all foreign countries for the same period was slightly in excess of $900,000,000. Of this amount we purchased from the British and their colonial possessions $552,000,000. The English bought from us $202,000,000 more than we bought from them. These facts are taken from the report of the statistician of the U. S. treasury department, made to Charles Foster, Secretary of the Treasury, on the 30th day of June, 1892. Yet in the face of these astounding facts there are lots of blatant, ignorant fools running around decriing our trade with England.

Cleveland's New Rule.
President Cleveland seems to have decided upon a new and radical change in the appointment of colored citizens to office. The New York Age says: "To say that President Cleveland has created a big sensation in his new departure is to state things mildly. The color line in office holding has been broken, and broken by a Democrat at that." The Hon. Chas. H. Taylor has been appointed Minister to Bolivia. He is an able colored citizen of Kansas City, and some Republican newspapers have censured the President for sending a gentleman of his color to a post heretofore filled by white men. Mr. Taylor said of himself the other day: "The worst they have said about me is that I am very black and have made a lot of Democratic speeches." Mr. Cleveland during his first term appointed me Minister to Liberia against my protest, and I resigned after serving seven months. I was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention at St. Louis in 1888, being the first colored man so honored. I was elected city attorney by the Democrats at my home, and unanimously nominated for a seat in the Kansas Legislature. I am one of the only four colored men ever admitted to the bar of the United States Supreme Court, and altogether I consider that I have done fairly well for a man of 36 years."

Mr. Taylor is one of the controlling forces in the National Democratic League which has its headquarters in Washington. Cleveland is not only sending black men to white countries, but he is sending white men to black countries. A few weeks ago he appointed Henry Clay Smith, an Alabama negro, to be Consul to Santo, Brazil. With in the past few days Henry M. Smith, a white Virginian, has been appointed Minister to Hayti. J. Taylor, a colored man of Kansas, has been appointed Consul to Tannatave, Madagascar, and H. C. Astwood, abalisk New Yorker, has been appointed Consul to Calais, France.—Pascagoula (Miss.) Incidents of the Season.
This is a happy season when—
Your favorite perfume is exasperated by an odor of camphor.
You have a great search for the high shoes and black stockings that you discarded last June.
You can cultivate the acquaintance of the man who took you to the theatre so often last winter.
You get on your last winter's cloak and find that it looks as if it had been made in the year 1.

You discover that a large family of moths have been feasting on your fur tipped all summer.
You sleep extra half hours in the morning because the house is as cold as Greenland's icy mountains.
You almost go mad trying to scheme how you can have your new gown made so it will be a litter different from the gowns of the other girls.
You think that you'll plan all your Christmas presents so as not to be rushed at the last moment. You have that same idea every November, but you never carry it out.

Missing Links.
There are 80,000 pupils in the public schools of Germany who stutter.

Tariff was originally the name of a Moorish chief, who having a port in Spain near Gibraltar, was accustomed to levy toll on passing vessels. His toll became a regular understood thing, and the amount was added to the price of the goods.

Curved stereotype plates were invented in 1815, but were little used for half a century after that date. Since 1865 they have come into general employment in every newspaper office in the country whose edition is printed on a fast steam press.

Whigs were originally teamsters in Scotland, who used the term whigam to encourage their horses. Opponents of the government in the restoration period were derided as favoring the Scotch covenanter, and hence were called whigams, afterward whigs.

In an out of the way nook in the British Museum the sightseer is confronted by a dust-covered object which at first sight would be taken for a gigantic millstone. But it is not. It is one of the most sacred Oriental relics in existence—the tomb of Alexander the Great.

"Nothing succeeds like success," and nothing will more quickly insure success than mere merit. For fifty years, Ayer's Sarsaparilla has maintained its popularity as the superior blood-purifier. It stands upon its own merits and never fails to give satisfaction.

In all the columns of eulogy bestowed upon Carter Harrison, Chicago's murdered mayor, by the press of the country, one thought stands out like letters of gold upon a black background. He was a man of the people and was always proud of it—and it should be chiselled upon the monument which his thousands of admirers will surely erect to his memory.

Live Within Your Means.
An American capitalist, who is a keen observer, is reported to have said that he did not believe that there was an American citizen whose income represented a salary who was not living beyond his means. And he added that, if the man had a family, he was bringing up that family to standards and wants that he could not honestly gratify. Our own observation does not bear witness to this assertion. But if the alleged fact be true to any considerable extent it must be regarded as among the causes of the many embezzlements and other pecuniary delinquencies which have become so common of late years.

"Playing the races" has been the ruin of a multitude, but living beyond one's means must bear part of the blame. And it is more serious than is commonly imagined. It involves false pretenses and fraud. It is a mean species of crime, and yet often committed without any compunction. Men are afraid or ashamed to say, "I can't afford it," and yet are not afraid or ashamed to contract debts which they know that they cannot honestly pay.—Christianity Messenger.

Stage Love Versus Real Love.
Does stage love impair real love?—Boston Globe.
We cannot say for sure, but we guess not, or anyhow not always. Perhaps, in truth, real love and stage love are of the same essence, of like substance of similar quality, and closely akin to each other. Indeed, for all we can say, the resemblance between them may be marked, or even very marked. Ask the younger Dumas or M. Pierre Loti or Mr. Robert L. Stevenson or, in case all those persons have gone out, ask the well informed Mr. William D. Howells of this place, who rarely ever goes out, except to collect the proceeds of his copyright from the publishers of his novels. We Helmholtz, the German chemist now in this country, who is a man of analysis and apprehension, could throw any light on the subject. But we can tell the Boston Globe that it is very foolish in putting its question about stage love and real love to stage lovers and real lovers, as it has vainly done. The question is of the gallipot.—New York Sun.

The Pearly Gates Ajar.
An ancient legend says that the angel on guard at the door of heaven was once asked by an inquisitive passer if more married or more single women passed through.
"More married ones," he promptly answered.

"Indeed," said the questioner, who was a man, and who immediately began to plume himself, "their husbands' virtues of course admitted them. That was right. The stronger should aid the weaker."
"No," replied the angel, "that is not the reason."
"Well, if you must know," said the angel confidentially, "we pass them first on their own merits. Lots of 'em get through that way. Then, when we can't find any other recommendation for a married woman, it is written against her name. These are they which have come up out of great tribulation, and the gates fly open."

Reading by Candle Light.
"I must inveigh," says an oculist "against the candle as a night reading light. It is quite a custom, I find, for sleepless folks to keep a candle at their bedside and rely upon it for light during wakeful hours that are passed in reading. As the flame flickers with the slightest current of air, the light is uncertain and wavering and most trying to the eyes. A small reading lamp takes a few seconds longer to light, but it is much to be preferred."

Stage Fright.
"Did you ever have stage fright?" asked the interviewer.
"Once."
"When was that?"
"When I met some road agents while traveling in the Rocky mountains."—Washington Star.

Being Certain Death.
With his foot caught and firmly held in a frog on the Reading railroad track at West Falls, John Duffy met death in fearful form. Duffy was employed as a brakeman by the Reading company, and ran ahead of his train to open a switch. That duty performed, he signaled his engineer to bring on the train.

His signal was observed, and as the train came toward him Duffy found that his foot was caught firmly in a frog. He shouted for help and made frantic efforts to release himself, but in vain. The noise of the puffing engine drowned his cries, and when the engineer saw the struggling man in the full glare of the headlight it was too late to save his life.

Swiftly the great engine bore down on the frantic prisoner, and though the lever was reversed and the brake put down the locomotive struck Duffy and he was literally cut in two. Death was instantaneous, but the expression on the dead face showed plainly the terrible agony the man had endured for a few seconds.—Philadelphia Record.

A Heating Scheme.
A plan of heating mills has been introduced by which heated air is delivered from a large fan into flues in the walls, registers from each flue delivering the air into the different rooms, this air being heated by the waste gases from the boiler. The products of combustion pass from the boilers through economizers for heating the feed water, next through a regenerator for reheating the steam exhausted from the high pressure cylinder and on its way to the low pressure cylinder, and then passes through air pipes, where it heats the cold air for heating the buildings, then passes to the chimney. If heated air is not wanted, but only cool air for ventilation, the gases from the boiler are returned by a damper into the chimney without entering the heater, and if the gases are not sufficient to heat the air as desired additional heat is supplied by radiators of steam in this heater. The temperature of the air is raised about 50 degrees by its contact with the hot gases.—New York Sun.

One of the hardest notions for the untrained nurse to give up is that beef tea is a valuable nutriment. The recent assertion of a writer in The American Lancet that thousands of sick persons have been starved to death on beef tea is only a summing up of what physicians and expert nurses have been trying to impress upon the minds of the laity for some time.

Beef tea is a stimulant, slight and evanescent, and to "live on beef tea," which has been the shibboleth of many a sickroom, is impossible. And The Lancet further counsels that if it must still be made and used to perform its very limited service, to remember that, like plain tea, it should never be boiled. That method of making contributes a positive vice—that of indigestibility.

Viscount Sherbrooke's Humor.
Robert Lowe became the recognized mouthpiece of sardonic humor, and thereby obtained more than his share of questionable notoriety. Many of his imputed stories are obviously adaptations from a former friend who met him in London is said to have scooped him with the remark: "Don't you remember me? I used to know you in Australia," and to have met with the rebuff, "Yes, and when I meet you again in Australia I shall be happy to know you." But this is a mere echo of George Selwyn's remark under like circumstances, "I shall be pleased to renew our acquaintance when we meet again in Bath."—Quarterly Review.

A Tule of hedge and ditch equals an acre of land. The amount of extra land that would be rendered available for crops, were all the hedges in the United Kingdom trimmed properly, would be equivalent to 600,000 acres.

A met going the rounds in London is to the effect that a wealthy American woman over there with a pretty daughter was heard to remark that the girl was a "peerless" beauty, but wouldn't be very long if she could help it.

It Should Be in Every House.
J. B. Wilson, 371 Clay St., Sharpshooter, Pa., says he will not be without Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, Coughs and Colds, that it cured his wife who was threatened with Pneumonia after an attack of "La Grippe," when various other remedies and several physicians had done her no good.
