The May Ladies' Home Journal.

The May Ladles' Home Journal. An attractively seasonable flavor pervades The Ladies Home Journal for May, the rich bounties of apring being presented in poc-try, in prose and in picture. Among the more conspicions features in this direction, axide from the dainty cover, which gives a suggestion of having been touched with the brush of a water colorist, is a drawing by W. Hamilton Gibson, illustrating Frank Dempster Sherman's poem," God's Miracle of May." Kate Greenaway also contributes a page of her winsome little people to illustrate a poems, "In Spring-people to illustrate a poer, "In Spring-time," by Laura E. Richards, while photo-graphs lend a pictorial interest to an article, "From Laurel to Aster," in which Nancy Mann Waddlo, with the enthrotasm of a Mann Waddle, with the enthu-instruct and a true lover of Nature, tells of the beauties of the wild flowers of spring and summer. If Among the articles along more scious lines i is Ex-President Harrison's paper on "This Country of Ours," in which he discusses most lucidly the President's participation in treaty-making, and his exercise of the veto. Also Dr. Parkhnat's paper on "Shall We Sand Oar Boy to College?" a question he discusses forcibly, pro and con, and pre-sents a conclosive solution to a problem that confronts so many parents.
