A Canfield man whose faith was strong in the Cleveland base ball team is credited with having wagered $200 against a Youngstown man's $2,000 that Cleveland would win the four games played in Cleveland. He won and now enjoys looking at the color of the money.

Col. S. B. Parshall, auctioneer for more than half a century, reports decidedly lower prices being paid at public sales the last couple of weeks for live stock and everything else knocked off to the highest bidder.

The Struthers Tribune says "Wm. H. McCormick has moved to Canfield, having sold his real estate in Struthers. We are sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. McCormick as they are among our most enterprising citizens. Canfield has gained a good workman as "Bill" is a fine painter and decorator.

Joe Blonski, a foreigner believed to hail from Cleveland, worked two days at the plant of the American Fire Clay Products Co., south of Canfield, and last Saturday morning disappeared. At the same time a room-mate missed $20. Police were notified but the fugitive has not been apprehended.

The school fair to be held in the normal building this (Friday) evening has been occupying the attention of pupils for some time and the exhibit is certain to be pleasing. The fair last year was a surprise to all who attended, the display in several departments surpassing those at the county fair. An effort has been made to do even better this year. Admission to the fair is free.

At a meeting of council Monday night a resolution was adopted granting the Canfield Gas & Electric Co. the same rate for natural gas as the coming year as now paid, $1.25 per thousand cubic feet with a discount of 15c for prompt payment of bills. W. Jarvis Smith, president of the company, was present and promised that if the rate was not lowered he would arrange with the West Virginia Co. for gas from the well on C. L. Manchester's farm in Ellsworth township. This has been done and Mr. Smith says he expects to have gas to meet all requirements of the village in about two weeks as it will require that length of time to lay a little more than three miles of main from Chidester's Corners to the well.

STATE MOTOES

The Maryland suffragists who propose altering the State's motto "Fatti Maschi Parole Femine" use the old spelling as proposing to put rough hands to what should be sacred. The offensive translation, "Deeds are masculine, words are feminine," is not the only one possible. The Secretary of State could readily be directed to give official approval to "manly deeds and womanly words," which would give woman a recognition they enjoy in no other state motto. But the best reason for jealousy guarding Maryland's motto is that it is the oldest the nation can boast—the date of its adoption is placed in 1848—and is entwined with Maryland history to a remarkable degree. Throw away the Baltimore motto and Maryland might as well turn the portrait of George Calverly, first Lord Baltimore, to the wall. It might be pardonable to indulge in passing an "obscure" and "womanly" word, but the state motto chosen within this generation, but not one that harks back almost to Shakespeare's time.

There are other state mottoes that are open to attack. Alabama's "Here We Rest" suggests an obvious joke. So does Washington's "By and By." Virginia's motto recalls John Wilkes Booth, New York's the rather tawdry declamation by Longfellow which it inspired, and those of several other states—like Kansas' "Ad Astra Per Aspera"—rhetoric of commencement. While these states cleave to their mottoes Maryland may well be boastful of hers and its associations.—New York Post.

Complaints.

"I get nothing from morning till night but hot air," sighed the pump-jack engine.

"Just look at me," retorted the furnace. "No matter where I go, I am always fired."

Sad Future.

Randolph—What's the matter, old man? You look as if you'd been sentenced to hard labor for life.

De Broke—I'm afraid I have been. Miss de Millvans has just refused me.—London Answers.

Any Excuse.

"I suppose the dry-law enforcement agents will be down on the father of that shrilly crying infant."

"Why so?"

"Because of its indulgence in high bawls."

GREAT EXECUTION

"The violinist's execution was simply marvelous."

"Wasn't it, though? You could see the audience hanging on every note."

Your Child's Eyesight

You are responsible for the sight of your child. Watch out for frowns, for squints, and when they read or look at picture books do they hold it too near or too far? These little things grow faster than the child, and in many cases can be overcome if discovered in time.

I Especially insist on Your Bringing the Children In.

Defects of vision never disappear of their own accord and in most cases they grow worse. It's a duty you owe your child, and I can prove by the test if I can fit them, which is free, and you don't have to help pay for some worthless instruments in the testing room.

I don't want your money if I can't fit you. Come in.
