ARE NOW RECEIVING THEIR WINTER GOODS, and invite the public to inspect them. No such stock of Goods has ever been brought to this market. The South, in consequence of the failure of the grain crop, has not been able to purchase the usual quantity of rich goods, and this fact has forced the Importers to sell them at public auction. Our buyer (Mr. Stone) being in New York at these large sales, took advantage of them, and we can and will sell our goods here, at less than any one who purchased two weeks since, paid for them in New York. Our stock is complete in every department of MUTABILITY.

BY A. E. WALTERS.

Beneath a spreading hemlock tree
Upon a rock beside the sea,
Where waters brightly quiver,
I sit and think how, day by day,
The things of Nature pass away,
Forever and forever.

Here the Sachems, chiefs of old,
Assembled and their councils held—
Their steps shall echo never!
Gone are now the brave and good,
From the mountain and the flood,
Forever and forever.

Aye! his council fires are dim,
There is left no trace of him
This side the mighty river;
And still, toward the setting sun,
His vanquish'd race are passing on
Forever and forever.

It matters not if far or near
His lowly wigwam doth appear—
By mountain, plain, or river;
For in the forest dark and lone,
Still is heard the fatal tone
Forever and forever—

"Doom awaits thee, fated race;
Death is staring in thy face,
Thy spirit to deliver.
To thy sire s who wait for thee,
Where thou alone in peace shall be
Forever and forever."

So the mighty change goes on;—
The conquerors of Marthon,
And those by Xile's dark river,
Who peopled Memphis' ancient halls,
Gone, like Thebes' embattled walls,
Forever and forever.

And all that breathe, and live, and move,
The votaries of Hate and Love,
On Time's dark rolling river;
And all to life that yet shall throng,
In Lethe's wave shall sleep ere long,
Forever and forever.

Woman's Condition in Various Countries.

The inferior condition of woman in all but a few highly civilized communities is shown by the prevailing customs concerning marriage.—Everywhere, except in parts of Europe and America, her person is made the subject of barter, direct or indirect, for the male members of her family. In some places she is openly sold in the market; in others she is privately bought with gifts; in still others she is traded for by discreet go betweens. But nowhere, unless among a few favored nations, has she any liberty of choice in marriage.

Of all the known empires of antiquity, Assyria was the most ancient. It was the custom in Assyria to make an auction every year of the marriageable girls. The beautiful ones always brought high premiums, and these premiums, by a not unwise law, were divided as portions among the uglier ones, in order to procure husbands for the latter. The Hindoos were another ancient people. Among them, marriage was purely a commercial transaction. The bride was always purchased from the father, or, if he was dead, from his male representatives. In China, it has been, from time immemorial, and still continues to be, the practice to make the hand of a daughter a means of enriching the parents. The bride in China is sold to her future husband, without ever being consulted, and her husband can whip her, starve her, or even let her out for a longer or shorter term.

In the heroic age of Greece, the age which Homer commemorates, women were sold by their fathers. But the high price which brides usually brought, proves that they were held in considerable estimation. In one case as much as a hundred oxen, and a thousand sheep and goats, was the amount of purchase-money.—Even afterwards, when Greece had become more civilized, women, though no longer openly bid for by competing suitors, were regarded as the property of their fathers or guardians, who expected to be benefitted by their settlement in life. Even an Athenian wife never sat with her husband at table, nor went out with him to dinner. The Romans were really the first, among all the nations of antiquity, to recognize the just claims of women, and, by so doing, affect the customs of later times. It is true that the old Egyptians, if we are to credit some writers, looked upon the female as equal to the male; but there is no conclusive evidence on this point; and the influence of their example, even if the supposition is correct, perished with themselves. But the Romans, though beginning with the most barbarous ideas of the inferiority of women, gradually learned to recognize her equality with man, not only by social custom, but by legislation also. Even in this nineteenth century, there are commonwealths belonging to this Union, and civilized States in Europe, whose jurisprudence, so far as woman is concerned, might take pattern from that of ancient Rome.

All savage nations treat woman as property rather than as a person. Among the aboriginal tribes of New Holland, the chiefs monopolized nearly all the women, just as in other countries they monopolized the cattle or the land. Stealing women is common, and often the poor victims, when the theft is intercepted, perish between the combatants. The Caribs always stole their brides. In Brazil this custom is perpetuated even to this day among some of the half-civilized tribes, by a conventional fashion, that a girl, sought in marriage, shall be carried off apparently by force. The Circassian, even after he buys his wife, as is the invariable practice, pretends to abduct her. Among the Celtic tribes of Ireland and Scotland, it was considered manly, even up to a late period, to seize a bride by force, nor were such marriages regarded as degrading by the victims. With our own North American Indians, stealing or buying wives is the invariable custom. Among the Malays, the wife, if the whole of her purchase money be paid, becomes the slave of her husband; but, to evade this ancient law, it has become the practice, in modern times, to leave a small portion unpaid, in which case, the bargain being considered incomplete, the wife is regarded as her husband's equal. Generally, in all countries advancing in civilization, even Oriental ones, the condition of woman is being ameliorated.

Much remains to be done, however, even in enlightened Europe and America. Marriages in which practically the bride is sold, are not unfrequent in our own country, and, therefore, occur oftenest, perhaps, among those who pretend the most culture and refinement—for what else but a bargain and sale is a marriage of convenience?—Philadelphia Ledger.

King of Dahomey at his Old Work.

Another of those horrible massacres, which are a disgrace to humanity, has recently taken place at Dahomey. The West African Herald publishes the statement from eye-witnesses of the barbaric "custom" just perpetrated at Dahomey. From this fearful narrative we learn that the recent "grand custom" of Badahung, King of Dahomey, was one of the most revolting which has ever taken place. Several persons agree in stating that the number of the persons slain on that occasion was estimated at 2,000, but another correspondent gives the number at 7,000. He says he was present by compulsion, and that the blood swept past him like a flood into a large reservoir. Another gentleman, referring to these inhuman butcheries, says: "I assure you it made me quite sick, and at the same time I felt stunned. The poor wretches met death with perfect indifference." The Herald, which gave Government notice through its columns, many months since, of the intention of the King of Dahomey to hold an unusual "grand custom," in remembrance of the death of the late King, concludes the recital of the butchery by stating that "Consul Foote has come out with full powers to 'treat' with the King of Dahomey as to the abolition of these sacrifices." A correspondent, who is well acquainted with Dahomey, says: "The best way to 'treat' with the King is to 'squelch' him, deal fairly with the natives, and let the custom die out.

What Constitutes a Handsome Man.

Well—in the first place, there must be enough of him; or, failing in that, but come to think of it, he mustn't fail in that, because there can be no beauty without health, or, at least, according to my way of thinking. In the second place, he must have a beard; whiskers—as the gods please, but a beard I insist upon, else one might as well look at a girl. Let his voice have a dash of Niagara, with the music of a baby's laugh in it. Let his smile be like the breaking forth of the sunshine on a spring morning. As to his figure, it should be strong enough to contend with a man, and slight enough to tremble in the presence of the woman he loves. Of course, if he is a well made man, it follows that he must be graceful, on the principle that perfect machinery always moves harmoniously; therefore, you and himself; and the milk pitcher are safe elbow neighbors at the tea table. This style of handsome man would no more think of carrying a cane than he would use a parasol to keep the sun out of his eyes. He can wear gloves or warm his hands in his breast pockets, as he pleases. He can even commit the suicidal-beauty-act of turning his outside coat-collar up over his ears of a stormy day, with perfect impunity;—the tailor didn't make him, and as to his hatter, if he depends on this handsome man for patronage of the "latest spring style," I fear he would die of hope deferred; and yet—by Apollo! what a bow he makes, and what an expressive adieu he can wave with his hand! For all this he is not conceited—for he hath brains.

But your conventional "handsome man," of the barber's-window-wax-figure-head-pattern, with a pet lock in the middle of his forehead, an apple-sized head, and a raspberry moustache with six hairs in it; a pink spot on its cheek, and a little dot of a "goatee" on its cunning little chin; with pretty blinking little studs in its shirt bosom, and a neckt-ie that looks as if he would faint were it tumbled, I'd as lief look at a poodle. I always feel a desire to nip it up with a pair of sugar tongs, drop it gently into a bowl of cream, and strew pink rose leaves over its little remains.

Finally, my readers, when soul magnetises soul, the question of beauty is a dead letter. Whom one loves is always handsome; the world's arbitrary rules notwithstanding; therefore, when you say, "what can the handsome Mr. Smith see to admire in that stick of a Miss Jones? or "what can the pretty Miss T. see to like in that homely Mr. Jones?" you simply talk nonsense—as you generally do, on such subjects. Still, the parson gets his fees, and the census goes on all the same. FANNY FERN.

Bread Making.

One of the best London bakers gives the following receipt to make a superior loaf of bread, of what is called a half peck size. Will not some of our readers try the plan, and report upon their success with it? "To make a half-peck loaf, take three-quarters of a pound of well boiled mealy potatoes, and mash them through a fine colander or course sieve, and one-eighth of a pint of yeast (about two tablespoonfuls), or three-quarters of an ounce of German dried yeast, and one pint and three quarters of lukewarm water (88 deg. Fahr.), together with about three-quarters of a pound of flour, to render the mixture the consistence of this batter; this mixture should be set aside to ferment; if placed in a warm situation it will rise in less than two hours, when it will resemble yeast in appearance, except as to color. The sponge so made is then to be mixed with one pint of water, nearly blood warm—viz., 92 deg. Fahr., and poured into half a peck of flour, which has previously had one ounce and a quarter of salt mixed with it; the whole should then be kneaded into dough, and allowed to rise in a warm place for two hours, when it should be kneaded into loaves and baked.

The object of adding the mashed potatoes is to increase the amount of fermentation in the sponge, which it does to a very remarkable degree, and consequently, renders the bread lighter and better."

The Spirit of Republicanism.

The following shows the temper of radical Republicanism. Its motto is "Sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish, we are for the Chicago Platform, and nothing else." The country is made subordinate to party. The Pontiac (Mich.) Sentinel says:

Satan was kicked out of Heaven, and totally damned for all time to come. As Republicans, we must do the same. Any man in the phalanx of freedom who backs down at this juncture of affairs, whether it be Wm. H. Seward or Judge Kellogg, we say, let the fiat of damnation be hurled at them—send them roaming over the earth with Satan, the latter the adversary of the souls of men, and the former the enemies of the earthly well-being of the whole human family. While God reigns supreme, and His laws are immutable, we will denounce any Republican who goes astray from the cherished principles of freedom enunciated in the Chicago Platform. "Sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish," we are for the Chicago Platform and nothing else.

"PALMETTO" WHISKY FROM NORTHERN DISTILLERIES.—For several days past we have noticed dray loads of Cincinnati "Busthead," the genuine "contraband," "strychnine," "kill round the korner" rifle whisky, passing through the city, on the way to Charleston and other points in South Carolina and the South. What a commentary upon the "non-intercourse" fire-eaters. They are an "orful" nation down there, some of them—but they can't make their own whisky. Porkopolis does it for them. It drinks just as well, they find, so long as the barrel bears the Palmetto stamp. It's a pretty shrewd idea of Porkopolis, though—sailing their "tangle-foot" under Palmetto colors. It's a pretty cute way to "sell" the Carolinians and a little bad whisky at the same time, by branding a Palmetto tree on one end of the keg. The stream of Cincinnati whisky pouring into the South will have a tendency to fire the Southern head as well as the Southern heart.—Nashville Banner.

PUBLIC LIFE.—In an article on the burdens of public life, contributed to the New York Ledger, the Hon. Edward Everett says:

It has been said that every smart American schoolboy hopes and expects to become one day President of the United States. This would not be the case, if schoolboys derived their first impressions, not from fond parents and nurses, but from experience to enlighten them as to the real nature of public life, even in its highest stations. I am inclined to think that no two men in this country, if consulted on the subject by a hopeful lad of eight or ten, would so earnestly discourage the Presidential aspiration as the out-going and in-coming Presidents of the United States—the individual just retiring with four years' experience of the office, and the individual just entering upon it, after a decisive political triumph.

DECREASE OF POPULATION IN THE AUSTRIAN EMPIRE.—There has been a diminution of the human race in the Austrian Empire within the last three years of near three millions, according to the Vienna Gazette. The population returns for 1860 show that this vast district of Europe has receded to the figures of 1840. Enormous war levies of marriageable men, horrid pressure on trade, stoppages of all enterprise through want of public or private credit, and utter disregard by a besotted Government of the ordinary business it exists for, viz: the development of the public resources, has blasted the land it rules; from 38½ millions is counted in 1857, it is now reduced to 36 millions of lieges, all on the verge of revolt, save the three millions of hereditary subjects in the Arch-Duchy of Hapsburg.

PRESIDENTS OF COLLEGES IN OHIO.
MARIETTA COLLEGE—"It is truly a magnificent work, an honor to the author, the publishers, and the whole country."—President Andrews.
OHIO WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY—"It exceeds my expectations. It will be my guide in orthography and pronunciation, and will often be consulted by me for its neat and accurate definitions."—President Thompson.
W. R. ECLECTIC COLLEGE—"Heretofore we have used Webster's orthography. At a recent meeting of our Faculty, it was decided to change it to conform to that of Worcester's Royal Quarto Dictionary."—President Garfield.
WESTERN RESERVE COLLEGE—"I find it worthy of cordial approbation."—President Hitchcock.
OBERLIN COLLEGE—"It more than meets my expectations. I recommend it as the standard authority in orthoepy to my children and my pupils."—President Morgan.
ANTIOCH COLLEGE—"I adopt and aim to use in teaching, writing and speaking, the orthography and pronunciation of Worcester's Royal Quarto Dictionary."—President Hill.
"In all my writing, speaking, and teaching, I have endeavored to conform to the rules for orthography and pronunciation as contained in Worcester's Dictionary."—Horace Mann, late President.
KENYON COLLEGE, GAMBIER—"I most cordially recommend it as the most reliable standard authority of the English language as it is now written and spoken."—President Andrews.
SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS OF OHIO.
From Rev. Anson Smyth, Commissioner of Common Schools in Ohio.
"The Dictionary is an imperishable monument to the learning and industry of its author, and an honor to the world of letters. The mechanical execution is far superior to that of any other Lexicon with which I am acquainted."
From Hon. H. H. Barney, Ex-Commissioner of Schools in Ohio.
"The most reliable standard authority of the language."
WHAT THE
Leading Newspapers of Ohio Say.
From the Cleveland Herald of March 28.
The orthography of the Worcester Dictionary is that used by most, if not all, authors of distinction in this country and England, and conforms to the general usage of ordinary writers and speakers.
Whatever prejudices may have existed previously, a careful study of this volume will invariably be followed by a warm appreciation of its great merits, and a desire to add it to the well selected library, be it large or small. It is a library in itself, and will remain as imperishable record of the learning of its compiler.
From the Cincinnati Commercial of April 20
Here are upwards of a hundred thousand words—good, bad and indifferent—whose multifarious meanings and derivations, together with their correct spelling and pronunciation, are set clearly before the eye. The work is unquestionably the greatest Thesaurus of English Words ever published.
From the Cleveland Plaindealer of Sept. 20, 1860.
Evidently WORCESTER'S ROYAL QUARTO DICTIONARY is not only the last, but the BEST work of the kind ever issued, and can by no possibility suffer by comparison or controversy.
From the Toledo Blade of May 29,
As to PRONUNCIATION, WORCESTER IS THE STANDARD followed by our best authors; in definitions he leaves nothing to be desired, and in ORTHOGRAPHY it is sufficient to say that WORCESTER can be safely followed.
