Rebel View of the Spring Campaign.

Rebel General Magruder to the People of Texas.

VIEW OF THE APPROACHING CAMPAIGN. (From the Richmond Enquirer, April 19.1 With what will the President electrify the country before the meeting of the next Congress, which assembles now in less than thirty days? Will it be Maximilian's recognition? Will it be France : n | England combining to raise the blockage? Will it be a victory? Of all the good news that the President could communicate, a victory would most electrify his fellow-citizens and most depress the public enemy.

Grant is said to be planning another "on to Richmond," with Smith and Burnside upon our flanks or rear. The vast preparations for the campaign are duly notified to our authorities, indeed, so publicly is the concentration being made, so ostentations are the enemy of all their arrangements, that one cannot but dcubt if these indications are not designed to deceive. The press of the United States have duly advised us of the reorganization of the Army of the Potomac, and so circumstantially and fully. that it was no difficult matter to correctly estimate its effective strength. Gen. Burnside writes letters, which are published in the New York papers, that he is preparing a command for early active operations, that Annapolis is his rendezvous, and we are further informed that North Carolina is his confident of success that, like the Carthagenian general, he would prefer to fight two armies to falling upon one? Is it to be supposed that he has been so intoxicated by success that he despises the usual precau-tiens which the rudiments of military science demand? We can hardly think so, nor will the authorities of the Confederate States be deceived by this shallow device. We see no evidence of concentration on our part—no passage of troops from one depart-ment to another. Beaureg a d still watches the enemy from the fortifications of Charleston, or seeks a fight in the swamps of Flor-

From Southwestern Virginia we hear rumors of movements into Kentucky and Tennessee. Pickett and Whiting still hold their positions in North Carolina, and the "all is quiet" on the Rapidan is unbroken by even a rumor. What efforts, then, are being made to meet the threatened ad-

We can only conclude that newspaper strategy and editorial campaigns have failed to make that impression which takes action. and that our authorities, in possession of better information, are biding their time and holding positions which, like that of Southwestern Virginia, is a point from which an advance can be made right through the enemy's lines, and into the very heart of his territory, putting in jeopardy the State of Kentucky, turning all posi-tions in East Tennessee, and, like General Bragg's campaign, throwing the enemy back upon the Ohio, by threatening Cincin-nati and Louisville.

Gen. Grant's presence with the Army of the Potomac furnishes no criterion by which one should decide that he is there for the purpose of commanding another advance upon Richmond. Having commanded in Tennessee and the west but very recently, and having placed Sherman in immediate command, all necessary preparations for an advance against Johnston may be made there, just as secretly as they have been openly conducted in the east, and within a few hours the railroads transport Grant and his headquarters from the "field" in the east to the "field" in the west, and he sweeps down upon Johnston while the public in Virginia are straining their eyes to see his this cant, which moved, not without cause, advance, or their ears to hear the distant thunders of his approach.

A PROCLAMATION BY MAGRUDER TO THE PEO-

PLE OF TEXAS. Although much has been accomplished toward the defense of different parts of Texas, much remains to be done. The works for the protection of Houston are yet incomplete, and the Major General commanding, while he awards praise to those activities the second of the seco patriotic citizens who have promptly responded to his various calls and sent in their egroes, regrets to say that there are but ninety-three negroes now engaged upon the breastworks at this place, whereas one thousand are absolutely required for the speedy completion of the defenses of a point so vitally important, not only to this State, but to the entire department; and the Major General commanding feels assured that the noble people, whose sons, brothers and fathers have so well and so heroically withstood and often vanquished the enemy, will again afford fresh evidence of their determagain afford fresh evidence of their determination to conquer, in sending to this point, without the least delay, to Major Wilson, Chief Engineer, the assistance called for.

The enemy in large force lingers on our coast, and threatens with destruction every home which is at present untouched by his withless heads. home which is at present untouched by his ruthless hands. Any day he may move forward, and if not met in time and successfully resisted, will penetrate to vital points. Under these circumstances we should be prepared to hurl the ruin upon him which he meditates against us. People of Texas, shall this be our fater With proper defenses we can cope with his superior numbers, without them, we shall be forced to the withering mortification of retiring from our homes, so long the source of every comfort and pleasure, and be driven to the unaccustomed and hard privations of refugees

The Major-General is assured he calls not in vain, but is satisfied that, with the works complete, the city, and with it the sur-rounding country, will be safe, and trusts that the self-denying spirit of Texans will support his efforts to defend the country. The slaveholding gentlemen of each county are respectfully requested to meet together at their respective county seats, or some convenient point, and appoint one or more of their number to accompany their negroes to Houston and see that they are made comtortable. One-fourth of all the male hands between the ages of seventeen and fifty years in each county, without regard, at this time, to the numbers which have been previously furnished, will accomplish the purpose of fortifying Houston within a short time; and planters and all others are assured that the necessity of this course is manifest to the Major-General commanding, and could be made so to them, but that his plans would thus be

MACAULAY'S DESCRIPTION OF THE PURITANS.

A Brilliantand Life-like Pen-Picture

(From the First Volume of Macaulay's History of England.) They mistook their own vindictive feelings for emotions of plety; encouraged in themselves, by reading and meditation, a disposition to broad over their wrongs; and, when they had worked themselves up into hating their enemies, imagined they were only hating the enemies of Heaven. In the New Testament there was little indeed which, even when perverted by the most disingenuous exposition, could seem to countenance the indulgence of malevolent passions. But the Old Testament contained passions. But the Old Testament contained the history of a race selected by God to be witnesses of his unity and ministers of his vengeance, and specially commanded by him to do many things which, if done without his special command, would have been atrocious crimes. In such a history it was not difficult for flerce and gloomy spirits to find much that might be distorted to suit their wishes. The extreme Puritans, therefore, began to feel for the Ofil Testament a preference which, perhaps, they did not distinctly avow even to themselves, but which showed itself in all their sentiments and habits. They paid to the Hebrew lan-guage a respect which they refused to that tongue in which the discourses of Jesus and the epistles of Paul have come down to us. They baptized their children by the names. not of Christian saints, but of Hebrew pa-Monroe in the most public manner, accompanying Gen. Grant, and the two corps that he is to command in an expedition up the Peninsula are published in the principal journals of the country, and these most obligingly brought to our authorities by the enemy's flag-of-truce boat. If no efforts have been made to conceal these preparations, certainly none have been taken to guide their ordinary conduct in the books prevent our learning them, for the flag-of-truce boat has regularly delivered full files of Judges and Kings. Their thoughts and discourses ran much on acts which were of the papers that were known to contain assuredly not recorded as examples for our them. Why, then, has this publicity been given to preparations that all military experience teaches should be most sedulously kept secret. Can it be supposed that Gen. Grant is so of the laws of Eastern hospitality, drove onfident of success that, like the Carthathan the nail into the brain of the fugitive ally who had just fed at her board, and who was sleeping under the shadow of her tent-were proposed as models to Christians suf-fering under the tyranny of princes and prelates. Morals and manners were sub-jected to a code resembling that of the synagogue, when the synagogue was in its worst state. The dress, the deportment, the language, the studies, the amusements of the rigid sect were regulated on principles resembling those of the Pharisees, who, proud of their washed hands and broad phylacteries, taunted the Redeemer as a

Sabbath-breaker and a wine-bibber. It was a sin to hang garlands on a May-pole, to drink a friend's health, to fly a hawk, to hunt a stag, to play at chess, to wear love-locks, to put starch into a ruff, to touch the virginals, to read the Fairy Queen. Rules such as these—rules which would have appeared insupportable to the free and joyous spirit of Lather, and contemptible to the serene and philosophical intellect of Zuingle, threw over all life a more than monastic gloom.—
The learning and eloquence by which the great Reformers had been eminently distinguished, and to which they had been, in no small measure, indebted for their success, were regarded by the new school of Protessome precisians scrupled about teaching the Latin grammar, because the names of Mars, Bacchus, and Apollo occurred in it. The fine arts were all but proscribed.— The solumn peal of the organ was supersti-tious. The light music of Ben Jonson's masks was dissolute. Half the fine paintings in Eugland were idolatrous, and the other half indecent. The Puritan was at once known from other men by his gait, his garb, his lank hair, the sour solemnity of his face, the upturned white of his eyes, the nasal twang with which he spoke, and, above all, by his peculiar dialect. He employed, on every occasion, the imagery and style of Scripture. Hebraisms violently in-troduced into the English language, and this cant, which moved, not without cause, the derision both of prelatists and liber-

Maximillian. Maximillian accepted the crown from the Mexican deputation at Miramar on the 10th of April. The formality was conducted with great pomp. The new Emperor made a speech in reply to the deputation, stating that he was convinced that the throne was voted by a great majority of the Mexican people. After this he was addressed as Emperor and the Archduchess as Empress.— The Mexical flag was hoisted at the Castle of Miramar and saluted with twenty-one guns. The Enteror commissioned ministers to the courts of Rome, Vienna and Paris, and made quite a number of appointments for his staff and household. On the 11th of April Maximillian was seized with a low fever, so that his departure was again delayed. It was thought he would set out on the 14th of April for Rome, where he goes to receive the benediction of the Pope, of which he, as he states himself, stands in great need. The Archduchess, his wife, af-ter some very difficult negotiation in Vien-na, and after renouncing her right to the throne of Austria and her income from the State, brought the Emperor Francis Joseph to Miramar to sign the great Imperial State

OLD OHIO STATESMAN ABOLITIONIST

We have this day considerably enlarged THE DAILY ONIO STATESMAN, and now print it on plain and handsome new type, and clear white paper.

In politics, THE OHIO STATESMAN is, in War as in Peace, for the Country, for the Constitution, and for a Union of equal States, with equal privileges, and with equal and exact justice to all its citizens. We are for the old Flag, with not a Star or Stripe erased, and the old Union as far as it is possible to restore it, and for the existing Constitution, in its spirit, letter and purpose.

and the old Union as far as it is possible to restore it, and for the existing Constitution, in its spirit, letter and purpose.

Upon the coming events of the year, rest the hopes of the People and Government. We are in the midst of a bloody and protracted civil war. Its duration and close depend upon a wiser, truer and more patriotic policy than we have seen during the present Administration. We owe it to the memory of our fathers, and to the hopes of our children, to the future of our country, and to the best interests of mankind, to change a policy which is drifting as farther and farther from the landmarks of our patriotic zires.

The Staterman will de all it can for those purposes, and hence, the publishers invite support and encouragement from all those who, while wishing for a good Newspaper, also wish to have a sound Constitutional journal.

We publish a paper in which we seek to give the TRUTH. Our Commercial Reports, our Markets, our Political and General News, are carefully freed from sensation character, and we seek to make The Stateman trusticorthy in every particular.

For News, for Instruction, for Good Morals, for Sound Political Sentiments, for a Steady Defense of American Institutions, Take, Read, and help to Circulate The Ohio Statesman. THE ATTENTION OF THE PUBLIC

Is called to the above Furnaces, as they combine ventilating with heating qualities.

The inventor has, after years of experiments, succeeded in perfecting what he claims to be the best Furnace now in use. Among its many advantages over the ordinary Furnaces, are:

The small amount of fuel required to keep it in operation.

Keeping the rooms constantly supplied with pure, fresh air, drawn from Nature's inexhaustible stock out of doors.

Large Air Chambers, avoiding the confinement of heat in heated walls and hot metal chambers.

Improved Water Chambers, which keep up a steady supply of moisture, which overcomes the great objection to ordinary Hot Air Furnaces.

The castings are heavy, and strongly belted tegether, guaranteeing durability under any degree of heat. THE ATTENTION OF THE PUBLIC

Particular attention is called to the SELF-REGU-LATING ARRANGEMENT of this Furnace, which has been pronounced by scientific men to be the BEST EVER MADE.

Mr. P. Martin, of this city, has constructed a "Hot Air Furnace" in the Second Reformed Church (corner Findlay and Baymiller streets), which has thus far given entire satisfaction. For efficiency in warming, purity of air, and economy of fuel, we can speak of it in most favorable terms. Its permanency and durability also seem to promise well. The plan of draught and ventillation is good.

From our experience, we can recommend Mr. Mardraught and ventilisation is good.

From our experience, we can recommend Mr. Martin as an adept in the art of warming buildings, and as quite competent to give satisfaction in the construction of Furnaces wherever practicable.
