Woman - Mark Twaln's Opin-At the annual banquet of the Wash-agton Correspondent's Club, held on the light of the 12th inst., the Star reports he twelfth toast as follows:
"Woman; the Pride of the Profes-

"Mr. Twain remarked as follows:

"Mr. President—"I do not know why should be singled out to receive the greatest distinction of the evening—for so the office of reply to the toast to wo-man has been regarded in every age.— [Applause.] I do not know why I have received this distinction, unless it be that I am a trifle less homely than the other members of the Club. But he this as it may, Mr. President, I am proud of the position, and you could not have chosen any one who would have accepted it more gladly, or labored with a heartier good will to do the subject justice, than I. Because, sir, I love the sex. [Laughter.] I love all the women, sir, irrespective of age or color. [Laughter.]
Human intelligence cannot estimate what we swe to woman, sir. She sews on our buttons [laughter], she mends our clothes [laughter], she ropes us in at the church fairs—she confides in us, she tells us what she can find out about the little private affairs of the neighbors—she gives us good advice—and plenty of it—she gives us a piece of her mind, sometimes—and sometimes all of it—she soothes our aching brows—she bears our children—ours as a general thing. In all the relations of life, sir, it is but ust and a graceful tribute to woman to say of her that she is a brick. [Great I nighter.]

Wheresoever you place woman, sir—in whatsoever position or estate—she is an ornament to that place she occupies, and a treasure to the world. [Here Mr. Twain paused, looked inquiringly at his hearers, and remarked that the applause should come in at this point. It came in. Mr. Twain resumed his eulogy. Look at the noble names of history. Look at Cleo patra!-look at Desdemona!-look at patra!—look at Desdemona!—look at Joan of Arc!—look at Lucretia Borgia!
[Disapprobation expressed. "Well," said Mr. Twain, scratching his head doubtfully, "suppose we let Lucretia slide."] Look at Joyce Heth!—look at Mother Eye! [Cries of "Oh!" "Oh!"]
You need not look at her unless you want to, but, (said Mr. Twain reflectively, after a pause,) Eve was ornamental, sir—particularly before the fashion changed? I repeat, sir, look at the illustrious names of history! Look at the Widow Machree!—look at Lucy Stone! -look at Elizabeth Cady Stanton!solvek P. M. the following described real os a stinate in Franklin county, to with first - One hundred and thirty across of land, respectively. And, sir, I say it with bowed respectively. And, sir, I say it with bowed head and deepest veneration, look at the ming at an oak and aim southeast corner of a Mother of Washington! She raised a Mother of Washington! She raised a boy that could not lie—could not lie.—
[Laughter.] But he never had any chance.
[Oh! Oh!] It might have been different if he belonged to a Newspaper Correspondent's Club. [Laughter, groans, hisses and cries of "put him out."] Mark looked round placidly upon his excited audience and resumed:

Transact sir that in whatever position

I repeat sir, that in whatever position you place a woman she is an ornament to society and a treasure to the world. As a sweetheart she has few equals and no superiors—[laughter.]—as a cousin, she is convenient; as a wealthy grand-mother, with an incurable distemper, she is precious—as a wet nurse she has no equals among men! [laughter.]

What, sir would the people of the earth do without women? They would be scarce, sir—almighty scarce! Then let us cherish her—let us protect her—let us cherish her—iet us protect her—let us give her our support, our encouragement, our sympathy—ourselves, if we get a chance. [laughter.]

But, jesting aside, Mr. President, woman is lovable, gracious, kind of heart, beautiful—worthy of all respect, of all esteem, of all deference. Not any here will refuse to drink her health right cordially in this bumper of wine, for each and every one of us has personally known, and loved, and honored, the very best one of them all-his own mother [Applause.]

Not to be Bluffed. A correspondent of the Hartford Press relates the following story: "On one occasion, while traveling down the English, French, German, Greek and Latin Mississippi river, Commodore Vanderbilt was surrounded by one of the gang of gamblers, and invited to play 'poker. On January 3d; all wishing to participate, will please call immediately at the Schodroom, East Town street, between Four h and Fifth treets, in the basement of the First United Brothren Church.

This affords an excellent opportunity for Young Men whose time is occupied in business pursuits during the day.

The session commences from 7 to 9 every rening.

The session commences from 7 to 9 every rening. 'calling' and thus insure them the 'pool.' They tried it on the Commodore. First one would bet a thousand, and others would see that sum and go several thou sand better. Finally the amount in the pool increased to a sum far in excess of the ready funds he could command. The Commodore, however, had no inten-tion of being 'bluffed' off. Calling a negro, he asked him if he would ask the Captain down. The Captain appeared when the following conversation ensued "Captain, can you tell me who owns

"What do you call it worth?" "I can not tell exactly, but I should say thirty thousand dollars.'

"Will you take that sum for it ?" "Yes. "Very well, I am Commodore Van derbilt, of New York. Then writing a check for the sum added; 'Here is my check for thirty thousand dollars. It will be honored at our first stopping

"Having done this, the Commodore turned round to the table and said to the gamblers: 'I see the last amount, and go t better to the extent of this boat.' The gang was not prepared for this coup d' ctat. They were not able to see the Commodore's 'rise,' and he consequently cooly swept off the contents of the 'pool.'

THE disagreeable odor of vulcanized ubber, it is said, can be entirely removed, by placing it in a box covered with powdered charcoal and submitted to a temperature of 140 to 160 degrees. As the unpleasant smell of the rubber prevents its use in many cases where it would be otherwise applicable, the experiment of deodorizing is worth trying.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF

COLUMBUS, O., WEDNESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 22, 1868.

An Extraordinary Adoption. A reporter of the Philadelphia Press, could have been worked without who has been visiting the Blocksley the aid of batteries. On passing the Alms House in that city, tells the following story: baby?" "Well, it does look like our the wires were disconnected the "arma baby," answered the husband. There- ture" remained drawn up to the "coils upon they called in their nurse, with for full three quarters of an hour.—Buf their three months old baby, and the falo Com. Adv. pauper's child was placed by the side of it, when the likeness struck them all as it, when the likeness struck them all as most singular. The young mother whispered something to her husband. "Non-sense," was the reply. "Oh, but I will!" she exclaimed. "Why, my dear?" "Now, George," she urged, "remember, you said you would not deny me anything." "Well, well, have your own way," responded the indulgent husband.

Thereupon he turned to the pauper mother, and asked, "will you part with your child?" The poor woman looked frightened at the question, replying.—
"No, no, no!" "But consider, I will take it to a good home and bring it up as my own! You are poor—I am rich. This child will be a burden to you—to me it will be a pleasure. I will give fifty dollars for it." The poor woman looked incredulous—hesitated a moment, and then burst into tears as she handed he child to the sweet looking lady, who was bidding so earnestly for it. The amiable husband paid the money, the baby was wrapped in a large shawl, the mother kissed it convulsively, and the marty passed out of the work. party passed out of the room. When taking leave of the superintendent, she laughingly said: "I wrote to mother that I had a baby; but won't she be surprised beyond everything when she makes the discovery that I have twins!

There are, as all know who indulge in the luxury of letter writing, infinite varieties of beginning and ending a letter.

There is the plain "Sir," formal, official, business-like, sometimes stern. When a Secretary of State addresses a foreign minister, it is "Sir." When a man sends a challenge it is "Sir." If a merchant remits to a correspondent abroad, it is "Sir." If an insulting letter, within the bounds of decorum, is written, it is "Sir"-and all such letters end or ought to end with "your obedient ser-vant." Descending a step from the rigid region, we come to "Respected Sir," which only inferiors use—and to the "Dear Sir," an adjective mildly softening the stern noun substantive. "Dear" don't mean excessive affection. for we have known very disagreeable missives come with this prefix. But when a correspondent says "My Dear Sir," he is thawing and does mean something. He then gets into the ge nial region of "sincerely yours" and "faithfully yours." But when he is absolutely melted and means his soul to flow in a soft current of affection, it is "My Dear Mr. So and So" and "very truly yours," There is no mistaking the relations then. Dear—very dear friends only write thus. These ideas occur to our mind in reading General Meade's letter to Mr. Forney, "My Dear Mr. Forney," ostentationally published in day before yesterday's Press.—Philadel-

An Assistant Conductor. One of our readers the other day, see ing a paragraph about two young gentlemen of Charleston shipping before the mast, was reminded of two young friends of his in Mississippi. who, finding on their return home that their "expectations" had disappeared, leaving nothing but their paroles, heroically "accepted the situation" of brakesmen on a railroad. By-and-by they found themselves in Jackson, with a brief interval of leisure, which they invested in a call on some of their lady friends, by whom they were cordially received. It was already known, or soon discovered, that they were railroad men, and a young lady asked one of our heroes what his position was. From rough experience in past years he had learned that in the eyes of the world station makes the man, and being a little doubtful how a knowledge of his actual employment would be received, replied that he was a "check agent." "And what are you?" was the question to his comrade. He had a moment to think, and answered that he was "assistant conductor." "But," said the fair querist, "I did not know that there was more than one conductor." "Oh, yes," was the ready answer, "Pete Kirby starts the train and I stop it."-Mobile Times.

Comparative Results from White and Negro Labor. A writer in the Southern Planter and Farmer, published in Richmond, states that a gentleman of Charlotte county, Va., tested the comparative results of white and black labor last year. He furnished thirteen negroes with mules and implements and provisions to raise a crop, and at the same time furnished an outfit to two white men. The negroes raised ninety-fiour barrels of corn, seven stacks of osts and five thousand pounds of tobacco. The negroes returned the mules in a poor, emaciated condition. The white men turned theirs over fat and sleek. The negroes worked four mules and the whites two. The gentleman referred to will, this year, work white men exclusively. To show the improvidence of the negroes, he said the cart and mules were at their service to haul wood, yet they preferred to burn rails.

Electric Phenomena. One of those electric phenomena, which visit us but rarely, occurred yesterday from 4:40 to 7 in the afternoon, on the lines of the Atlantic & Pacific Telegraph Company. The current on the wires was so intense that it was imwas necessary to throw the instruments out of circuit in order to prevent damage to them. In endeavoring to take the wires out of the "switch board," one of the operators received a shock which nearly life...

him from his feet possible to touch them, even with all the batteries thrown off. The current him from his feet, and, dropping the wires, he ran off snapping his fingers vigorously. After the wires were disconnected from instruments, the operators, whilst waiting for the current to pass off were highly amused by the fan-tastic streaks which would flash across the wires. At one time a continuous the effect was similar to that occasioned "A gentleman and his wife were returning from their wet ding tour, which had occupied a year. Before leaving for home (Massachusetts) they determined to visit our Alms House. When they entered the infants' ward, the wife said to the husband: "Do look at that child—did you ever such a resemblance to our haby?" For Instantaneous Detachment of Horses from Carriages.

THIS INGENIOUS AND VERY USE

This incension, which has been patented in the United States, France and England, is now offered by the subscriber to the public feeling assured they will fired it, upon examination, one of the greatest inventions of the age.

Prominentamong its advantages are:
FIRST—The facility with which horses may be honesed to or unharnessed from a Carriage; also, rendering it unnecessary for the person unnarnessing to pass between or behind the horses as is customary, thus avoiding any liability of being kicked. Sacono—In case of a horse falling, he may be loosed from the carriage in one second, without the driver leaving his seat. It is so simple in its operation that a child can work it.

There any Greatest—In case of horses taking fright, becoming, unmanage able or running away, the terrible consequences which so frequently follow may all be avoided by this simple application to arriages, as the horses can be loosed from the Carriage "an a techniking," and the Carriage as quickly and saf ly stopped.

Mr. C. DUCREUX gave several public exhibitions. The great favor and praise manifested by the public on these occasions, is one of the exidences of a popular appreciation of its merits.
