GEO. H. PRIMROSE'S MAMMOTH MINSTRELS

(By George Creel)

"MR. PRIMROSE'S MERRY MEN."

IT IS VERY infrequently the case that stage favorites carry over their appeal from one generation to another, and there is nothing more pathetic than the spectacle of a veteran player trading upon the popularity of other days. It is more pleasant, therefore, to record the real, genuine success of Mr. George Primrose, than whom no minstrel is older, and who has danced and equipped in blackface so long that the memory of man runneth not to the contrary. Packed houses greeted him and his minstrels of the Tabor Grand yesterday, and the applause had a spontaneity and vigor that attested merit, and proved the veteran's continued popularity in a day remote from his beginning.

A very remarkable man! Aside from increased attenuation he is much the same in appearance as when he and "Billy" West walked ahead of the band countless years ago, and although his high notes are nothing more than dare-devil attempts, his dancing still retains its indelible grace and airy charm. Others may make more noise, excel in variety of steps, and outdo him in agility and eccentricity, but he stands alone by virtue of a distinctive touch, a certain something that comes close to artistry.

As for his minstrel company, it lacks the size of Fields' and the pretense of Dockstader's, but it is richer in true minstrel appeal, in atmospheric charm, for, even while keeping abreast with the times, Mr. Primrose still retains the note that was dominant in the days of Rice and Emerson. His performance is really a minstrel show and not a mere spectacular. The first part is melodious with real darky airs and in the front row are some very fine singers and several first-class comedians. "Governor" Bowen and Joe Dunlevy are most amusing and it should be mentioned that their songs and jokes were all new. Aside from acting as interlocutor in impressive fashion, Harry Silvers has a remarkable basso profundo, Frank Bright is a fine baritone, and Ross Harvey and Thomas Weir are very good tenors. The first part fades into a well-arranged olio in which Mr. Primrose, Mr. Dunlevy, Mr. Bowen and the quartet are assisted by a splendid comedy musical act, and a most amazing male soprano. This Blondell, while dressed as a woman, dispensed with all the unwholesome affectations that usually mar such stunts, and confined himself to singing in the clearest, strongest soprano possessed by any man on the stage.

As a second part, the entire company joined in a singing and dancing couclet called "Down Home." There was the levee at New Orleans, the boat, the cotton fields and then the quarters, all intended as an epitome of ante-bellum darkey life and succeeding much better than the average minstrel troupe. Some of the scenic effects introduced were really of great beauty, marking a new mastery of the calceum.

Mr. Primrose was compelled to make a speech during the evening, and it was plain that the applause was like so much wine to him. And as if to brim his cup of happiness, Robert Mantell sat in a box, and did not allow himself to be behind the gallery in point of generous applause. It was fine to see the veteran minstrel stealing glances at the great tragedian, and note his satisfaction as he watched Mr. Mantell's eagle face flash into smiling, that Jovian brow smooth under the caress of a dainty ballad entitled, "Mary Had a Little Lamb, Also Some Peas, a Piece of Pie and a Cuppa Coffee."

Taken all in all, a good show, a most pleasing entertainment, an unusually good value for the money. Here's to you, Mr. Primrose! May you live around again once more, and receive the prosperity that is the reward of your merit and good faith.

WHAT TO FEED THE INVALID

It is often very difficult to find something that the invalid appetite will really care for. Whatever is found should be the best quality and that is where we help.

Soups

All the different varieties in cans from 10 cents up. Absolutely pure, and dainty enough for the most delicate stomach.

Grape Juice

Nothing better to help the convalescent. It is pure and unfermented, in quart bottles 50c.

Wafers and Biscuits

We have all kinds of dainty Wafers that are light enough to be enjoyable and yet are nourishing. In sealed packages 10c to 25c.

Zwieback

One of the most celebrated foods for invalids that is on the market. We ordered some at a doctor's request and have been getting more ever since. It is a very nutritious toast, baked twice and spiced slightly. In sealed packages 10c

FILLETS OF MEAT ON TOAST

Either Steak or Mutton May Be Used In Preparation of This Somewhat Novel Dish.

If mutton, divide a piece of loin, taking as many as are required; trim off all fat and bone. There will only be the little round fillet left. Melt a good-sized piece of butter or drippings in, and put in one onion, one carrot and one turnip. Cut into slices and then add the meat. Cover with a piece of thick paper which has been spread with drippings before putting on the cover and let contents fry gently for a quarter of an hour. Then lift cover and pour over about half a pint of thick brown gravy (left over gravy will do). Now put stewpan in a moderate oven and let meat cook about two hours. Turn it once during this time and add a little more gravy if needed. Cut a thick slice of bread from a stale loaf, remove crust, trim it nicely and then with a sharp knife remove the center, leaving a border about an inch and a half thick; then fry bread case in hot butter until a golden brown. When the fillets are done (have mashed potatoes ready), arrange them neatly around the bread and keep hot until gravy is ready. For gravy remove all fat from the surface; then add a tablespoonful of catsup, a little flour and hot water, if there is not enough gravy. Fill center of bread ring with mashed potatoes and pour on the gravy. Garnish with lettuce leaves, sliced tomatoes or parsley and on each fillet a little chopped carrot; use round steak in the same way, only cut the fillets and pound and rub each piece with a little lemon juice.

The Home.

An ordinary polish for silverware is made of alcohol and whiting. It will also serve excellently for polishing plate glass and mirrors.

A few drops of alcohol rubbed on the inside of lamp chimneys will remove all trace of greasy smoke when water alone is of no avail.

A neglected grate or one which has been red hot should be rubbed over with a cut raw potato before it is blackened. The result will be a brilliant polish.

To remove mildew wet the cloth in soft water and then rub on plenty of soap and salt. Hang on the line in the sun and air for a day or two. This is said to be an infallible recipe.

By using a teaspoonful of alum to a quart of water for starching calicoes and gingham the colors will keep bright and fresh, which is desirable in dresses that are washed often.

In serving a number of persons at tea or reception, silver and dishes often need to be washed. The hostess should see to it that there is a big supply of dish towels, otherwise she will be mortified by damp spoons and plates.

Green Peas with Bacon.

Into this delectable dish only sweet unsmoked bacon must enter. Heat a tablespoonful of butter in a frying-pan, throw in three tablespoonfuls of bacon dice, and lightly brown. Skim out the bacon and to the fat add a spoonful of flour and brown. Put a quart of young peas in a saucepan, add a pint of boiling water, the brown sauce, a small onion, a bouquet of herbs (chives, leeks, parsley, celery, or bay leaf and a clove, tied in a bunch), and the bacon dice and cook for 30 minutes. Remove the onion and the bouquet, add an egg beaten in a cup of cream, heat to just short of the boiling point, and serve. If the bacon does not furnish sufficient salt add a little.

Ideal Gingerbread.

One cupful of sugar, one-quarter cupful of New Orleans molasses, one cupful of butter and lard, three eggs well beaten, one spoonful of salt, one small tablespoonful of ginger, one-quarter teaspoonful of cloves, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, one cupful sweet milk, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and one quarter teaspoonful of soda, two and one-half cupfuls of flour. Heat sugar, molasses, butter, and spices until thoroughly warm. Beat up well. Then add other ingredients. Bake in muffin pans.

Boneless Birds.

Cut up one veal cutlet in pieces about two inches square and pound until flat. Dust with salt and pepper. Lay on a bit of parsley and roll with tiny strip of bacon. Skewer, or tie with strings; roll in flour, then brown in butter for five minutes. When brown pour in saucepan and simmer gently until tender.

Remove birds and strings. Add a little cream to gravy, thicken with little flour. Pour over birds.

Milk Sherbet.

Add the juice of three lemons and one quart of milk to 1½ cups sugar. The mixture may curdle but will freeze smooth. Freeze, using three parts ice to one part coarse fine salt. Remove the dasher, repack, using four parts of ice to one part salt. This makes two quarts sherbet.

Sugar for Lemonade.

In making lemonade, it will be found to be an economy of time and sugar if a syrup is made of the sugar and part of the water. If the sugar is put in the pitcher with the lemon juice and water, only part of it dissolves. The rest is usually thrown away after the lemonade is gone.

Take Stains from Bottles.

Make a good suds of napha and soft water. Let it stand in the vessel fifteen or twenty minutes; all stains will be removed.

MRS. MALAPROP OF TODAY.

Modern Rival of the Famous Character That Made Richard Sheridan Famous.

In an uptown social circle it is a matter of gossip that a certain charming young woman never lets her mother out of ear shot because the older woman's conversational transports need to be continually checked. She is rich even for New York, but she outdoes all the Mrs. Malaprops in town.

When she returned from Paris last year some one asked her if she had seen the tulletries. "Why, certainly not!" she responded, drawing herself up majestically. "I've too much sense to push in where I'm not wanted, and if the tulletries had wanted us to visit them they would have called first. They didn't, did they, Carrie?" she asked, turning to her embarrassed daughter. The latter explained to her mother that the tulletries was a palace of the French kings, and that it was filled with works of art, like the Louvre. The mother thereupon rejoined: "Speakin' of works of art, you can break up all the rest if you'll only leave me the belladonna and the dying gladiolus. Did I ever tell you of the artist my daughter met in Rome? He went mad over the shape of her hand, and nothin' would do but he should make a bust of it."

The daughter had one thing to rejoice over, however, and that was that nobody this side of the Atlantic would be likely to hear of the message that she had heard her mother send to a visitor by a servant in a London hotel.

"Just tell him," she said, gazing languidly through her lorgnon at the card that had been handed her, "that he'll have to excuse me this time, as just at present I am decomposing on the sofa."—New York Press.

WHAT HE DIDN'T UNDERSTAND

Hired Man Realized That Domestic Birds Were Weather Indicators, But Couldn't See Why.

The city man on the honeysuckle-clad porch smoked and listened to the farm hand's talk. "Weather vanes is wind indicators," said the farm hand, "but chickens and turkeys by orinus, is wind prophets."

"Come off," said the city man.

"Gospel truth," declared the farm hand. "In a cam, when there ain't goin' to be no wind, the birds allus roost on the tree boughs with their heads alternatin' each way—number one faces east, number two west, number three north and so on. That's a sign of cam. But supposin' there's goin' to be a strong high wind. Then they all roost, every mother's son on 'em, facin' it. Accordin' as they face, so you can prophesy the wind will blow before mornin'."

"I figger it out," said the farm hand, "that in a cam the bunch faces different ways so as to look out for danger better. But if it's goin' to blow up in the night, then they face the blow so's they can best hang on to their perch. What I can't figure out, though, is how in the mischief they smell that wind five or six hours before it's due."

Was He Right?

An automobile stood at the curb in front of a theater. It was an imposing machine of burnished brass and crimson leather, and as its owner came out of the theater and was getting aboard one of a couple of children asked with the confidence—or maybe impudence—that goes with innocence and bare legs:

"Say, mister, drive us around the square, won't you? We ain't never been in a nauty-moblie—"

The man paid no attention and whizzed away. Of course, children are a nuisance, but it would have been worth while, maybe, to give two small girls a memory to last them a lifetime.

And, maybe, again, got himself arrested for kidnaping.

You never can tell.—Washington Star.

Brought Her Own Potatoes.

A young German girl who has recently come to live with relatives in America, amused them exceedingly by bringing with her a large box filled full of potatoes, because she is particularly partial to them, and was told that in this country we had only the variety known as "sweet," which did not sound to her nice at all. As her potatoes sprouted on the journey showing a decided inclination to convert themselves into flourishing vines she was greatly comforted to find that her relatives could supply the deficiency. This German girl is astonished that, though we seem to value the potato, we do not, as in the case in her country, erect statues to Sir Walter Raleigh, who introduced the plant into Europe.

When Youth Wanes.

Old age has many definitions, and middle age more. But you may take it that you are not really an old man so long as you take an interest in your personal appearance. There is not a nurse who does not know the sign of convalescence—when the patient wants to be shaved and put a good appearance in this world. And so long as the man of 60 can take an interest in the latest tie—and tie—he is preserving his youth.

The Sweet Girl Graduate.

Kneaker—Is she conversant with history?
Booker—Yes, her graduating thesis is to be a combination of afrocoth and middle ages.—New York Sun.
