SOLDIERS' FAMILIES .- On Thursday morning, between fifty and sixty families were supplied with bread and groceries, and many more on Friday, at "The City Mission," through the kindness of Mr. Ogden, Mr. Childs, of the Mechanical Bakery, Messrs. Goss & Hoag, Messrs. Condict & Wolley, Mr. Scripps and Mr. Hough.

TERRIBLE DEATH.-A man named John Crampion, who has been engaged as switchman and car coupler on the Michigan Southern railroad for a number of years, was killed between four and five o'clock Friday afternoon. He was uncoupling a tender from a car in motion, and falling, was run over lengthwise, his body being crushed to a jelly.

THE YATES PHALANX .- Rev. C. S. Macread ing, chaplain of the Yates Phalanx, will speak of the condition and wants of the 39th Regi-ment, now stationed at Williamsport, Md., on Monday evening, Dec. 16th, in the lecture room of the Clark Street M. E. Church. The friends of the regiment and the public gener ally are cordially invited to attend.

Pror. Siddons.-It will be seen by his advertisement that Professor Siddons, of Co-lumbia College, New York, of whose capacity as an elecutionist, we spoke highly a few day since, will organize a class in that essentia branch of education this week. His stay in Chicago will be brief, as he will be obliged to return soon to his college duties. He will probably give one or more readings during his sojourn in Chicago. THE SOLDIERS' FESTIVAL, The Festival for the benefit of the sick and wounded soldiers commences Monday. A bountiful and a well colled dinner will be served at Bryan Hall wait on any number of hungry applicants for dinner. In the evening, Winchell gives one of his inimitable comic entertainments f the same object. So worthy a cause is de-serving of extensive and liberal patronage.

COMPANY ELECTION.—The Higgins Light Guard, attached to the 51st Regiment at Camp Douglas, recently elected the following offi-cers: Captain, Geo. H. Wentz; First Lieutenant, M. B. Atwater: Second Lieutenant, Orrin Johnston. This fine company was re-cruited in Lake and McHenry counties, and comprises in its ranks asplendid body of men. The company is named for Judge Higgins, of this city, and numbers ninety men.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT .- In the the case of Josiah Reed vs. George Walrod, the defendant appeared on an attachment, issued for contempt of Court, and recognized in $2,000 for his appearance. In the same Court, in the case of the Mahoning County Rank vs. the Marine Bank of Chicago, the aside and a new trial awarded plaintiff. CIRCUIT COURT.—The case before Judge

Manierre, Harris 28. Freer and B. C. Yates, for alleged false imprisonment, was decided on Saturday, the jury having been out for fortyeight hours, by rendering a verdict for the plaintiff of six cents. He claimed damages in the sum of $50,000. Case No. 60, Henderson es. Swift, was com-

McNally & Co., also wish to inform the reading public, that they are now rereceiving subscriptions to the New York Albion, at $3.00 per year, and "Harper," "Atlantic," "Godey, and "Knickerbocker" magazines, at $2.25 each, per year, which is much lower than the regular club rates.

LARCENT OF A HORSE AND BUGGY .- James Lewis, was, on Saturday, brought before the Police Court charged with the larceny of a horse and buggy, the property of Wm. Egan. It appears that, seeing the animal fastened in front of McCormick's Block, on Dearborn street, early in the evening of Friday, Lewis. being a soldier, captured the property and drove off while the owner was attending to some business near by. The consequent search resulted in Mr. Egan's recognizing his horse and vehicle, late the same night, near Ulich's Hotel. Justice Davis held Lewis, in default of $800, for trial at the Recorder's Sometime last summer when the Post Office Land Warrant case against Wheeler, Parker and Pease, came up for hearing in one of the city courts, it was erroneously stated by the reporter who prepared the item for the Tribune, that Mr. Samuel W. Pease had been convicted of the offence, which was a mistake -it being Parker that was found guilty and sentenced to the State Prison, and not Pease. When Pease's case came up for trial, last week, the State's Attorney entered a nol. pros. to the indictment against him and the Court dismissed the case. We make this correction and explanation for the purpose of setting Mr. Pease right before the public.

"A Horse, A Horse," ETC .- John S. Rarey, whose same as a subduer of the most vicious and ugly specimens of horsestesh that can be produced, is world-wide, has arrived in this city, and, we are informed, will give a sample of his skill at Bryan Hall, on Saturday evening next. The only request that he makes on this occasion is that he may be favored with this occasion is that he may be favored with with the ugliest specimens of the horse species to be found in the city, with the guaranty that they will leave Bryan Hall well-behaved and as docals as kittens. In connection with his feats of skill in this direction, Prof. Rarey nis leats of sain in this diccion, Frot Rarey will deliver a running lecture, replete with information upon this interesting and all-important topic. The meet innouncement will suffice to crowd Bryan Halt to overflowing.

LIFE OPERATIONS.—Messive Capett & Bord, Agents for the New York Life the many, are being quite successful in their efforts to direct public attention to the ten year on-forfeitable feature of this office's policies. A party insuring to-day for $5,000, if he die to-morrow, the $5,000, immediately becomes a claim, and if he lives ten years, and makes ten annual payments, his policy is paid up; noth-ing more to pay, and still his dividends continue, making his life policy a source of income to him while living. The principle argument of weight offered against life insurance is, that a party might pay in for a number of years, and then, by inadvertence, inability, etc., not be able to continue paying, and then lose all he had paid. The New York Life Insurance Company has done much to obviate this objection by their ten year plan and non-forfeiture. A party, by this table, cannot forfeit what has been paid in. Thus, if one insuring by this plan for $5,000, discontinues after the second year, the company will give him a paid up policy, according to the number

SENTENCE OF THE PRISONERS CONFESSION OF C. C. FLINT.

Saturday morning, at ten o'clock, the pris oners convicted during the late term of the Recorder's Court were brought up for sentence, to the number of twenty-five. The scene was an unusually animated one, even for this Court, where its frequent recurrence oft-times renders it tedious. crowded with an immense throng of specta tors. Attorneys of the criminal practice stood jammed in orderly rank and file. The Sheriff, his posse of deputies, and a deputation of the municipal detectives were in their appropriate places; the prisoners cleanly and well dressed, sat in a compact mass in the box.

The first prisoner called was Elizabeth Green, a colored woman, found guilty of the arceny of a set of fura valued at one dollar. She was sentenced to the county jail for twen v days and went below.

Wm. Donovan was called. The Court remarked: "William Donovan, you plead guilty to the charge of stealing a span of horses val-ued at $300, and I do not see a palliating cirenmstance in the case. I therefore sentence you to the State Penitentiary for two years at hard labor, the sentence to be carried into effect within ten days from the date of the pres ent adjournment of this Court." John Moore was then arraigned and the Court addressed him: "John, it seems to me you have been here before." "Yes, your Honor, I have, and you let me "Well, you were then cleared by your honest face. That cannot avail you now. The jury has fixed you this time. You are guilty of the larceny of two coats and a hat, and will go to Joliet one year." George Henry, larceny of a piece of flannel. Sentence, one year at hard labor. The prisoner jocularly remarked that he would be able to stand it with the best, and left the present with a swagger that boded no good.

Gustave Miller, stealing a case of surgical implements worth $6.00 He could not speak English, was a stranger in the city and said he had a family in Europe. One year at Joliet with hard labor. Joseph Stange, assault with a deadly weapon. A motion for a new trial was overruled by the Court. Eight citizens were allowed to enter and make oath to the general good charoctor of the prisoner at the bar. The Recorde heard it and then said:

"You undoubtedly inflicted the wound which has brought you here,ina fit of passion, but all I can say is, you have reason to be thankful that the blow did not kill your vietim. In view of the fact that you have show that you have a generous heart, in providing for the wounds given, as well as paying the expenses of the prosecuting witness, who was unable to do so, I shall make your punishment very light, boping that you will learn to govern your temper. You will pay a fine of $50, and be confined in the county jail ten days."

Martin Dunn and James Pevion, robbery of card it and then said :

Martin Dunn and James Peyton, robbery of watch and ring valued at $140. The Court said, in this case, that the prisoners had been indicted and found guilty of a most wicked crime-robbery. There was no doubt of their guilt. He sentenced them, in accordance with the finding of the jury, to four years each in the State Prison, and remarked that had he the fixing of the time, they should go for a longer term. He also recommended them when their sentence had expired to endeavor to lead

Recorder. "The motion for a new trial in this case is overruled. I hardly know what to say to you. You are a smart boy—and should do well, but I fear, from the testimony, that you have been schooled in crime. Your offence, however, is not equal to that of your mother, who, to clear you, seems to me to have come here and committed a deliberate perjury. This convinces me that your parents have early taught you wickedness and wrong, and have continued to sustain you in evil doing. When you return, do try and get a living honestly. You are sentenced to imprisonment for one year at hard labor."

THE CASE OF C. C. FLINT.

THE CASE OF C. C. FIINT.
C. C. Flint was next arraigned. He appeared pale and care-worn. When asked if he had any remarks to make before the sentence of the Court was pronounced upon him, on a sustained charge of obtaining money on false pretences, Mr. Flint said, in substance: May it please the Court, I wish to have the Prosecuting Attorney make an explanation in regard to the charge of forgery, which was at one time preferred against me. I wish him to state that these charges could not be sustained against me. I am not guilty of the crime."

Both the Recorder and the Prosecuting Attorney made an explanation, setting forth that the alleged forgeries of Mr. Flint, they Flint, of Greencastle, Indiana, upon whom the paper had been drawn, were not to be classed as forgeries, the prisoner having the full authority of this gentleman to draw drafts upon him. There was no reason to doubt the statements made that he was so empowered. They had no idea that the indictment for forgery could be sustained against Mr. Flint.
The prisoner was then proceeding to attack certain newspapers for misstatements of his case, when the Recorder interrupted him and advised him not to enter into a dissertation "I have not, at any time since my arrest, had a desire to light against law and justice. However guiltless I am of certain of the charges made against me, I could not but confess that I had done wrong. It is my hope and desire to be enabled ere long to repay all to whom I am indebted in any sum, and had I not held to promises made to me, which proved untrue, I should not have had the load upon me I now bear. But I wish to correct one impression which seems to prevail as to the extent of the frauds they say I have committed. The sum has been set as high as $17,000. My whole indebtedness does not amount to $1,000. Id on not need to enter into a relation of details, but this is the sum and substance. I should state also that the money I have received has not, as has been stated by some, been expended in extravagance and profligacy. On the contrary, all has gone toward the care and education of my children and the inevitable expenses of my family. The debt has been accumulating for the past year and a half. I informed my employer, who was my only confidant, some two years ago, thinking that he might have relieved me without damage to himself. I do not now blame him that he did not do so. I am ready to suffer the penalty you may think best to impose."

In answer to questions from the Recorder, the prisoner said that he had been employed in the Democrat office by John Wentworth for his employer had known of his pecuniary difficulties. The Court then addressed the prisoner as follows:

"You are a young man of more than ordinary talent and ability. Those who have labored side by side with you, and had an opportunity to become acquainted with your capabilities, are among the first to concede this to you. But I am sorry to say that you are not the first, nor the second, nor the third person who has graduated from whence you come within the past three years, to the State Pententiary. I suppose you thought that you were but using the ill-gotten gains of your superior and your employer. You might, perhaps, have considered also that very soon you would follow those who had gone before you. There is no estimating the power of a strong mind and will, in a person who employs others, over weaker minds, for good or evil. If, during the time you were with this man, he knew you were obtaining this money for your support, this had also its weight in your mind. Had he been but an honest man, you would soon hare walked in a new way! I only allude to these things for your future good. In oltaining and using the property of other you would soon hare walked in a new way! I nonly allude to these things for your future good. Your own acts have left you without freach soutside of the officers of this Court and some of the very men you have winged, some of the latter of whom have gones and got as to importance me to be lement in dealing, with you. The lecture of Dr. Holland on Saturday evening at Bryan Hall, before the Young Men's ssociation, being the first regular address o the season, was a fine effort, and was listened to by a large and appreciative audience. The subject, "Working and Shirking," was handled y the speaker with his accustomed vigor of hought and elegance of diction.

He said the disposition to shirk was constitutional with the hudan race. The first recorded act of the primal pair was one of shirking. Adam tried to throw the blame upon his wife, and his wife upon the serpent. An attempt to shirk moral responsibility, from that day to this, has been a marked truit of their descendants. There is a habit in this country of shirking from hard labor. Yery few mengo straight through life without stepping aside for slight obstacles.

Essential things are made free by nature. Beyond this we must pay a price. A necklace of diamonds will cost ten thousand dollars, because it costs so much labor, and for the same reason, an ounce of gold is worth a ton of iron. In the audience before him he saw silks from China, cloths from England, jewelry from China, and gloves from the foot of the Pyrences. All this wealth cost somebody something. The great strife of the world is to see how much of this work can be done with little labor.

The shirks are great curses. They aid in bor. The shirks are great curses. They aid in The shirks are great curses. They aid in giving false ideas of respectability to society. The stock exchange is the Paradise of Shirks. A dollar was never produced there. The speaker could see no distinction between a professional gambler in stocks and any other professional gambler in stocks and any other professional gambler. "Sin bringeth forth death," but shirking, in its fullest development, bringeth forth the Stock Exchange. Think of the flues standard it sets before the country—think of the flues tandard it sets before the country—think of the flues tandard it sets before the country—think of the flue trained by the store the country—think of the flue trained by the store the country—think in force. Once in four years they swarm forth like bees. A hundred thousand men, each with his three clean shirts, a borrowed suit of clothes and a carpet sack, start on a pilgrimage to the Mecca, Washington, after a clerkship, a consulate, or some other position where the pay is large and labor light. We have the shirk in the army too. Here he is full of patriotism. He gives our soldiers clothes of shoddy, robs them of their rations, and is one of the most consummate raseals of the world.

The nation has shirked great responsibilities. We have bastened and have worked only the store of the most consummate raseals of the world.

The nation has shirked great responsibilities. We have hastened and have worked only to get rich. In each pursuit in commercial and professional life there is a lack of preparation. Lawyers are made in a day; doctors there are as innocent of science as they were when they were born. Long periods of training for professions, and apprenticeship to the trades, are almost unknown. The saying, "The world owes me a living," is falacious. Men say it who dress at the expense of their tailors. The fact is, the world owes them nothing but a pretty rough sort of a colin, and in the process of the expense of their trades, are almost unknown. The saying, "The world owes me a living," is fallacious. Men say it who dress at the expense of their tailors. The fact is, the world owes them nothing but a pretty rough sort of a coffin, and a piece of ground, that could be used for no other purpose, to put them in. The world owes a living only to the helpless—to children, to the sick, and to the aged.

There are shirks in social life also. Members of churches shirk responsibilities upon their ministers, supposing, perhaps, that the burdens of the parish, divided up among the minister and the deacons, will yield a large dividend.

The speaker then described what "First Society" might be supposed to consist of He would begin with the B's. It was blood, breeding, brains and bullion. They mingle much according to circumstances. In towns where there is a large number of old residents, blood takes the precedence. In others, where there is not much wealth, breeding ranks first; where there is neither blood, breeding nor brains, wealth takes the lead. What will you give to be admitted? You must have one or the other of these requisites. Have you these things, or do you wish to become one of the pensioners or "bores?"

There is no country where polities are so badly shirked as in America. Whatever is wrong in American politics, the good men are responsible for, and this is the only reason why bad men rule. They neglect to visit the polls because the polities have got so corrupt. Of all the shirks and sneaks which the soil of America produces, these are the worst.

The speaker spoke of the present war as a war for a great cause, and as a cure for all these crils. A long peace is productive of shirks, a breeding pen of cowards. Peace is very well for angels, but, for men, with all the imperfections of humanity, peace may be a curse very much greater than war. The emotions that thrilled the American heart at the imperfections of produces, these are the worst. The speaker spoke of the present war as a per Fatal Affray in the West Division. The Coroner held an inquest Saturday upon the body of one John Dalton, a drayman, who lived upon Leavitt street, in the West Divi-sion, and who came to his death in the following manner: On the 14th of November last, Dalton was hired by one Benedict, to dray a load of pork, in barrels, from the pro-vision store of Louis Richberg, on Milwaukee Avenue, to Cowles's dock. Upon his arrival at the store, the barrels were not ready to load and being in great haste, he rather roughly expressed to Richberg his intention of not waiting a great while. Richberg, in turn, made use of some hasty language and the two on commenced exchanging epithets which finally culminated in a quarrel. During its progress, Richberg seized a whipstock be-longing to another drayman and, according to the testimony of some of the witnesses, struck Dalton upon the head with it, breaking it by the force of his blow. Enraged at the blow, Dalton came towards him, when he thrust the jagged piece, he still held in his hand, into his eye, inflicting a small punctured wound, which bled copiously. At this, Dalton de-sisted, got upon his dray and drove off, threatening vengeance.

The next day, the wound growing worse, physician was summoned, who dressed it, and for several days gave the injured man his attendance and care. He speedily grew worse, however, and inflammation, setting in, soon spread from the eye to the brain, causing his death on Friday evening at six o'clock.

The Coroner was notified of his death on Saturday, and officer Delhi took Richberg into custody. A jury was empannelled and a post-mortem examination was held by Dr. Gore, which resulted in establishing the wound as the cause of his death. The evidence before the jury was conflicting, some of the witnesse lenying point blank that Richberg inflicted the wound, and others equally emphatic in the affirmative. After a careful examination the jury returned the following verdict: We, the jury, find that John Dalton came to his death from wounds inflicted from a whip-stock, in the hands of Louis Richberg, at the corner of Hubbard street and Milwankee Avenue, in the city of Chicago, on a shout the 14th day of November, A. D. 1861, at his residence on Leavitt street, in the said city, Dec. 14th, 1861. The deceased lived upon Leavitt street, was forty years of age, and leaves a wife and four children. Richberg was committed upon the warrant of the Coroner.

chest, as is very common in every form of consumption, the disease is thought to be only "chronic plentist," or "rheumatism in the nuscles of the chest," or "uneuralgia."

These and many other affections are mere consequence of the pulmonary disease, and spring directly from it. That they are frequently mistaken for the chief disease, and wrongly treated, there can be no doubt. In fact, I am almost daily made aware of the truth of this observation by natients them.

wrongly treated, there can be no doubt. In fact, I am almost daily made aware of the truth of this observation by patients themselves. But this is not to be wondered at when we consider all the difficulties which lie in the way of the general practitioner acquiring that experience which is necessary to detect pulmonary diseases in the early stage. The physician requires long and constant practice to become accurate in diagnosis with the stethoscope. Without great practical experience, the most profound book-knowledge will not save him from making many grievous mistakes. And the difficulty is not alone from the inexperience of the physician, but also and to a great degree from the unwillingness of the patients to believe their lungs are diseased, or to have their chests carefully examined. They strive to persuade themselves that their lungs are sound, and though filled with apprehension, they go to the physician for his opinion, I might almost say without a deliberate intention to disguise or misscolor their worst symptoms, that they may lead him to decide as they wish.

Let me warn the reader to be ever watchful of the chest, and do not rest satisfied when you have any fears in regard to your lungs, until you lave obtained a careful examination, and the best advice you can procure. An error may cost you your life. If you have tweerdes, and they are not discovered until in their second stage, your case, from being simple, becomes one of extreme danger. and the best advice you can procure. An error may cost you your life. If you have tubercles, and they are not discovered until in their second stage, your case, from being simple, becomes one of extreme danger.

I have thus briefly glanced at a few of the more common complications of consumption in a plain, practical manner, because I know that there is no point on which the public entertain such erroneous opinions, and from mistakes in regard to the real cause and treatment of which, such calamitous results spring. It is common for poets and novelists to describe Consumption as a disease of little suffering. They paint the victim of it as slowly fading away, placid in mind, without pain of body, and in the fullest and keenest enjoyment of every sense and faculty. Like a withering flower, gliding gently down to the grave, diffusing around her as she fades an atmosphere of increasing sweetness. But alas! Poetry is not true to life. There are few diseases more to be dreaded for the sufferings they occasion. In its commencement, Consumption is stealthy. It comes on without any warning of its approach, and in general is firmly seated before it is detected at all. Thus far, the descriptions of fancy are correct, but now comes a train of complicated miscries which try the strongest fortitude. The chills during the morning are followed by a consuming fever in the afternoon, and this again by exhausting perspirations at night. Sleep is broken by cough, and the day harrassed by efforts to expectorate. The breath becomes "pent up" by pleuritic pains, and no sooner are these subdued than diarrhara seizes upon the bowels. Day by day the oppression on the chest increases. The heart palpitates and labors to force the thick and impure blood through the obstructed lungs. The appetite becomes capricions, the limbs wasted, and the whole body enfeebled. But a terror more formidable than all is the steadily increasing and ever present limbs wasted, and the whole body enfeabled. But a terror more formidable than all is the steadily increasing and ever present sense of impending suffocation. As the air cells and tubes become filled up by the extension of the disease, the space for the breath grows less and less, until at last the poor sufferer dies actually gasping for air!

And there is nothing to console the consumptive in the usual treatment of the disease. Remedy after remedy fails to afford even relief. Change of climate only increases his hardship, and in too many instances hastens the fatalissue. The past presents a bleak and dreary prospect, and the experience of the present-if we accept the bright promise of inhalation—no hope for the future.

Such is the stern reality of this terrible disease, divested of all lancy. It presents a concentration of bodily and mental suffering to which there is searce a parallel in the sad catalogue to which our flesh is heir.

My next letter will be on spitting of blood, or Hemorrhage from the lungs.

New York Tallow Market—Dec. 10.

Sales 42000 bris, at 926926 per D. Messrs.
Knight & Sons say the market, during the week,
"has undergone no material change. The demand, though not general among exporters, has been
air, and considerable has been shipped at 926.
The closing of canal navigation has checked shipment from the West, and the arrivals have been light, so that the stock now on hand is moderate.
The home demand continues light, To-day the market is inactive, exporters offering 926, at which some sales are effected, many holders, however, refusing to sell at current rates, and choice shipping brands are held at 926. Price this date,

New York Canal Enlargement.

[From the Buffalo Express, 12th.]

The eastward movement of grain and flour (calling cach barrel of flour equal to five bunkels of wheat.) from the lake regions during the past tenson, has been about one hundred millions of bushels, of which less than three millions has been exported from Buffalo and Oswego by canal. In view of the fact of nearly forty millions of this eastward movement being directed from the canals to other routes of transportation, the Canal Board have wisely taken the initiative steps for lengthening the chambers of the present locks so as to admit the massage of boats one hundred and forty

SATURDAY EVERING, Dec. 14, 1881.
The week closes on a very comfortable money market. Dusiness is good. Nearly all the money in circulation is good, and one merchants generally feel cheerful and content. To the seeker of local financial news from day to day, times are decidedly dull, but that very dearth of news, when busines is reasonably active is the very hest indication that the people are prosperous.

The leading banks still sell exchange at & percent premium. It is hardly as abundant as it was two or three days ago; but the supply and demand are chest county. See particular that have chest county. are about equal. Some of the banks charge a frac-tion above on small bills. The buying price is par to best customers. Gold buying at 16.21; selling, 16.22. The brokers still charge 1 per cent on retail lots, and take it when they can get it.

Rew York Dry Goods Market.

[From the N. Y. Independent, 12th.]

The amount of business doing is still large for the season, and prices of cotton and woolen goods continue to tend upward. There are many buyers here yet from the West purchasing moderately, but whose purchases in the aggregate make a large amount, and the near-by and city trade are buying sensonable goods. Much of the city business is, however, of a speculative characteristic continuing the cotton fabrics. Raw and middler expectably in cotton fabrics. Raw and middler cotton is now 32c, and the goods in market and when cotton were than they can be repeated to see prices in the spring, as the supply for general consumption will be limited, the government engaging the bulk of the manufactures for contract goods. Woolen goods are very remunerative. In prints and printing cloths there has been considerable excitement, resulting in a general advance of prices. The stocks on hand are changing hands repeatedly under a speculative demand, looking to extreme scarcity in the spring of all kinds of cotton cloth.

Many manufacturers of prints have sold out, and stocks are mostly held by second hands. Last Saturday prices advanced one penny on a rise the previous week of 12c, and the stocks are now held for a further advance. The manufacturers are move engaged on spring goods. Bleached and brown goods have also again advanced since our last, and the market is in a very leverish state. Drills, ticks, denims, cotton flannels, jeans, etc., are all advancing rapidly. The famine in cotton and enchast the advance of woolen goods are compacted of the california market. Coths are all quick of sale for clockings. Satinets are scarce and wanted. Beavers are active be laines are staded. Shawls le Milwather.—The Sentine of this morning says
There was no change in the general features of the money market yesterday. Some of the banks reported exchange rather easier, others quite close, the stall concurred in expressing the opinion that it would be plenty enough to meet every demand after this week. The selling rates were 12 cent at the banks and 12/211% outside. Gold is plenty at 11%, but for small sums the brokers still ask 2 29 cent. For exchange the banks will sell gold at par.

Hogs. [From the Louisville Journal, 13th.] The feeling in the hog market was rather better yesterday, and there were light sales at $3.30 to $3.40 nett, the latter rate contemplating large lots of extra hogs. The number of hogs shaughtered yesterday in this city was $.300. and the number remaining in pens was $,700. There were no sales of provisions. [From the Missouri Democrat, 13th.]

[From the Missourl Democrat, 18th.]

Hoos.—The great feature of the market just now is pork. The receipts of hogs by river to-day were considerable, mostly from the Des Moines valley, Iowa, by way of Keokuk. We did not determine all the sales that were made to-day, but the range of prices was the same as yesterday, and packers were working full hands. The co adition of the market is healthy, and funds' to suit the notions of all abundant. The transactions on 'Change to-day were as follows: One lot of 100 sold at $2.00 gross; one lot of 100 sold at $2.00 gross; one lot of $3.00 to $3.30 to $3.30. Coin, or $3.30 to $3.30.
