THEHORSE DISEASE.

Its Sympions-How It Should Be Trented.
To the Editor of the Chicago Tribune:

Sin: The psent horse-epidemic is no new disease. All is symptoms we have heard of go to prove that is the same epizootic catarrh, or typhoid influces, that first made its appearance in England afar back as 1619, and again in 1832, in 1848-52, during the first six months of 1854, at the cle of 1856, at the beginning of 1857, in the irly summer of 1862, 1863, and 1864, and morer less ever since. In the United States, it first ade its appearance in 1856, and is still see every spring and fall, with sympton more or less severe,—the symptoms vaing each season, according to the intensity othe disease. The general symptoms at first obrved are: A watery discharge from the eyes; slight cough; a chill or shivering fit, succeed by increased heat of the body, fever, and irrition; loss of appetite; discharge of mucus frombe nose; great prostration of strength; folload, in a day or two, by swelling of the legs, bell and breast. This swelling of the belly and bast is non-inflammatory, soft and jutting on pissure, called Anasarca; and jutting on passure, called Anasarca; when of the legs, it is alled Edema, or Erysipele-Edemateux. Solvimes this disease takes on a rheumat form, when the back and joints ar sore and stiffiened, looking as if the nimal had lumbago, or was sprained across th loins. At other seasons, this disease takes on gastro-mucose form, when the liver and digestic organs appear to participate in an unusual egree. This form will be observed by a yelle, bilious-looking appearance of the mucus membranes, and the fæces are hard and in small pellets, covered with a light-colored, slimy factus.

are fiard and in small pellets, covered with a light-colored, slimy incus.

Animals having the above symptoms should be placed in a comfortable, well-ventilated stalle. Remember that no disease cas be cared without plenty of fresh air. It will be observed that low underground, ill-venflated stables are the first to have animals afteted with epizootic disease. In the fall of the year, stablemen are careful to have the stableclosed up to prevent cold. This is poor logic, fc they are only hastening on the diseases they so trying to prevent. Many an individual will member that, on staying fifteen or twenty minues in an ill-ventilated stable, inhaling the grees of ammonia, and coming out quickly into the fresh air, irritation of the eyes takes place, causing a flow of tears, and irritation of the Schneiderian Membrane, causing violent sneezing. If it rian Membrane,causing violent sneezing. If it affect man for a short a time, how much more affect man for senort a time, now much more will it affect the soor horse, that is obliged to stay in such a stable, perhaps, 12 or 16 hours out of the 24? Once nore and for all, I say, deny not your animais free air. If the body is cold, cover well with blukets; if the legs are cold, apply bandages.

Do not bleed or give purgatives in this disease. as they will only lasten the disease. Do not apply strong blsters to the throat, as is often done. If the throat appears to be much affected, apply a liniment of liquid ammonia, two ounces; olive oil, five ounces; tinchure of aconite roof one ounce. Allow the animal plants of exclusive fractions. imal plenty of coolwater to drink. Sixty drops of sulphuric acid, which the animal will very of sulphuric acid, which the animal will very readily drink, will assist greatly in sustaining the flagging powrs of life. If the disease should show a schenic or depressed condition, the pulse become wiry, soft, and compressible,—avoid all forms of sedatives. Give ten-drop dose of nux-vomica in a little cold wate, and place on the animal's tongue; a drachi dose of aromatic spirits of ammonia, mixedwith thin gruel, twice a day. If there is any difficilty in giving this to the animal, on account this inability to swallow, the following should e substituted: Powdered carbonate of ammonia, two drachms; pimento and

A Noted Horse in Articulo Mortis.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer, Oct. 21.

There is scarce a child or grown-up person who ever goet to the circus but remembers with pleasure the performances of Dan Rice's famous trick horse Excelsior. For the last eighteen years, on each recurrence of the season, he has been one of the aronic attractions of that famous show, and whoever he appeared in the ring it was to receive the plaudits of the thousands who were gathered around it. Though totally blind, he exhibited :: intelligence that was almost human, and in the fablean pieces and posturing, which was the greater part of his "business," he was pronounced by all to be the handsomest horse they ever siw.

Dan Rice came io the city last week and pitched his tents on Union Grounds. Excelsior, of course, came with him, and, as usual, was the admiration of every one who wext to the show. The old horse, however, did not seem in his usual spirits. He seemed to be too sick to take his part, and though at times he would fire up and go through a part handsomely a sudden tremor would come over him, and he would sink down exhausted. The cheery voice of his old master failed to meet with the quick response as of old, and the kind-hearted showman found that his pet had become deaf as well as blind, and that Excelsior's course was about run.

On Saturday night the old horse was brought into the ring for the last time. He went through a part of his performance, but, before it was half over, had to be led out, trembling and scarce able to walk. Mr. Rice, in a little speech, which was full of pathos, told the crowd that Excelsior, who had travelled with him for the past eighteen years, and who was almost a child to him, could not live much longer. He had been his constant companion, and had helped to make most of the money he had had during that time. He loved him not for this so much as for the almost human traits and human intelligence that he possessed, and now that he was about to die he felt a pang in his heart as if he was indeed hum

How a Fellow Feels when He is Full

How a Fellow Feels when He is Full of Strychnine.

From the Gold Hill (Nev.) News.

Dr. Harris, the well known assayer, who resides at the lower end of town, came near being poisoned to death last night through taking a dose of medicine for rheumatism. The settlings in the bottom of the vial settled his case. The following communication from him received at noon to-day tells the whole story: "Last night (Thursday) I felt a pain in my knee, caused by rheumatism. I got up at 10 o'clock and took a dose of rheumatic medicine prescribed by Dr. Toland, of San Francisco. There was only one dose left, and, not at the time thinking of the sediment at the bottom of the vial, I took it. Half an hour after, as I was laying in bed with a cendle in hand reading, I was struck senseless and speechless. The candle fell on the bed and I could neither stir nor cry out for a second. Unckily the shock terminated in time to let me put out the light or the house and all would have been consumed. More and stronger shocks and convulsions then followed, and from symptoms I knew that I had taken strychnine. My wife brought sweet oil, of which I took two doses. But great God! what a torment. Shocks and convulsions followed from half past 10 to 12 o'clock, when the death throse set in. I was convulsed, and felt five shocks like a man broken on a wheel, and the last shock made me helpless and stiff. I felt the earth give way, and called my wife to me. My hands were crossed, but I could not move them, nor any part of my body. I bade them all good-by, and swooned. My wife sent the children for a doctor, and Dr. Kirby came about 12, and found me still alive and somewhat rational, as the oil had its effect. From then until 6 o'clock this morning I had shocks like from a galvanic battery every few minutes. I could not stir hand or foot, and any attempt to turn my head brought a shock. To tell what I suffered is impossible, and I had given up all thought of life; but soon I began to recover; and now—10 o'clock a m.—I am able to write you this, in order that you may warn persons using this medicine to beware of overdosses or settlings."

Sharp Practice by Boys.

The Hudson (N. Y.) Register says:

"Our citizens who attend the various exhibitions from time to time at the City Hall, frequently ask themselves how all the boys get in the shows, and are at a loss for an answer. After careful observation, we have got so far into the secret as to be able to tell how some of them do it. them do it.

into the secret as to be able to tell how some of them do it.

"The capital needed to start the business in the first place is 10 cents. With this the young sharper purchases half a bar of soap, puts it in a paper, and waits outside for a rush. With the rush he finds himself at the door, when the door-tender stops him, and asks for his ticket. The young sharper says: 'I just went out for this soap for a man on the stage, and he's in a hurry.' Not suspecting anything wrong, the door-tender permits him to pass in. When inside, the lad takes a seat and pockets the soap for the next show which comes along. If the door-tender is changed through the evening, the soap is dropped out of the window to an accomplice, and sharper No. 2 slips in on the 'soap dodge.'

A Queer Railroad Accident.

A Queer Railroad Accident.

From the Lancaster (Pa.) Intelligencer.

This morning the Pacific Express, west, which passes through this city at 2:35, met with a singular accident at the junction—Landisville. The Reading Road crosses the Pennsylvania Road at this point, and a train of empty coal cars was standing across the latter track. About this time the Pacific Express came dashing along, and, before the engineer had time to check the speed of the locomotive, it had dashed through a coal car and was tearing along at its regular speed towards Harrisburg, with only the loss of a cow-catcher. The engineer, seeing that no harm had been done to any one, did not stop after he had safely "gone through" the debris. This can be classed as a most miraculous escape from what might have been a terrible disaster, but the speed at which the train was going was very swift. The wrecked car was struck amid wheels and broken completely into atoms, the splinters flying in all directions, but luckily hitting no one. The shock was distinctly felt by the railroad employers who were sitting on the front and back ends of the coal train, but they either did not know the time at which the train was due, or else the watchman at the station displayed great ignorance in not having his flag-lamps hung out.

The Hiottest Month.

The Philadelphia Medical Times presents some statistics from observations made in Philadelphia, which go to show that the month of August, 1872, was the hottest August on record for the past eighty-three years. The mean temperature was 81.64 degrees, the highest point reached, 97.00 degrees. The average mean temperature of the same month for the past eighty-three years was 73.33 degrees, and the highest mean temperature during all that time was that for the present year. A similar comparison of observations reveals the fact that the summer, as a whole, was the hottest on record. The mean temperature for the three summer months of 1872 was 80.09 degrees; the average for the past eighty-three years, 73.67 degrees, and the highest mean during that entire period was that of the present year.
