N'VIOREN'S THEATHE.

After devoting three nights to "Brother Sam,"

Mr. Sothern returned again last evening to Robertsenian comedy, and produced "David Carrick" to a house better than the heat of the uarrick" to a house better than the heat of the day would have rendered probable. This was played during his first engagement at the Academy of Music with considerable celat, and may be reckened among the most successful pieces of the season. The cast in essentials and may be reckened among the most successful pleces of the senson. The cast in essentials was the same as that of last evening, except that at the Academy the part of Equire Chiev was played by Lytten Sethern, and rendored with far more polish and neathess than could have been anticipated. Air. Westen is not a strong substitute for the younger Sethern. With this exception, however, the cast was a strong one, and the plece was yeary smooth and enjoyable. We have herefore expressed admiration of Mr. Schiern's presentation of Garrick. It is a legitimate plece of acting, and full of merit. The sentiment of the plece is high, and expressed by the comedian with great force. The drama was written for him by Mr. Robertson, and he is the only Garrick upon the stage. Ills representation of Garrick is unlike any other, in that it gives some admirable opportunities for moledramatic elecution in very comical contrast with the casy collection in year comical contrast with the casy collection before praised, and it is unnecessary to do more than to reiterate this verifies work of the general way. Miss Walton is charming in any part she plays, and fish occoles in any its that or Ada Ingot, in which she has more to do. The minor parts are well played. "Dundrany Married and Settled," with which the performance closes, is a wild afair, delightfully absurd, and heartly onloyable. This is Mr. Sothern's last week for a long time, so he will not be back nort season. Those who fall to soo him in those two pieces will regret the omission.

are playing "Monsieur Alphonse" to good houses, in spite of the heat. To-night and the matines will be the last chances to see the piece. Saturday night will be the second "old-camedy night," when Boucicault's "Old Hoads and Young Hearts" will be played. Menday "Charity," the great hit of the season, will be given.

EVENONAL.

Among other theatrical colebrities enjoying the cool lake broczes of this eity are Mr. Charles Gaylor, the well-known author, and Miss Katio Mayhow, who a few years ago was a great favortie in the city. Mr. Gaylor has written a drama for Miss Mayhow with the attractive title "With the Tide," which will be produced Monday at McVicker's Theatro.

The Procession.
The Executive Committee of the corner-stone colobration met yesterday afternoon at Mr. Rankin's office for the further amending of arrangements. No change was made in the order of procession, but the line of march was decided upon, as follows:

The column will march from the corner of Wabash avenue and Lake street, marching south on Wabash avenue to Twenty-first street; east to Michigan avenue; north to Monroo street; west to State street; north to Lake street; west to Dontborn street. The first division will move south on Dearborn to the Custom-House; other divisions west on Lake to Clurk, south to Adams, east to Wabash, and back to the Custom-House. It was announced a few days ago that the Sunday-Schools would occupy a prominent feature in the procession in the ceremonies of laying the corner-stone next Wednesday, but owing to the fact that some 12,000 boys of the different public schools are anxious to take next to Michigan avenue; north to Monroo street awing the corner-stone next vectors any of the different public schools are anxious to take part in the colebration, it has been decided by the committee that they be permitted, and not the Sunday-school children, as it will be impossible to furnish transportation for all of them. Over 100 teams have already been secured, but all the truck and box wagous that can join will be needed, and it is hoped, that as many as can will respond promptly. Mr. B. F. Guyton will be Marshal of the sixth division, of which the School boys will form a part.

Mr. Claveland, the Mayor's Secretary, having completed the list of articles which are to be deposited in the corner-stone of the new Custom-House, yesterday sent the document to the Executive Committee of the corner-stone celepation. The list is neally printed on parchment, and signed, officially, by the Mayor and his Secretary. The names of the articles contained therein have already been made public.

It is a represent to honest industry, and a violation of the public tasts, to allow deformed begars to expose themselves to the public gaze. If they must display their deformities, let the Council pass an ordinauce requiring all beggars, of every description, to prac-tice their calling in some designated locality where people may go to see them if they like, where people may go to see them if they like, and not be forced, as now, to gaze upon and patronize them. Pass such an ordinance, execute it, and reserve such a lot for the human menngorie, and beggary and vagrancy would soon cease in our midst.

LADIES ON SCHOOL COMMITTEES,

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:
Sin: If it is not already the custom of the Chicago Board of Education to appoint ladies on the committees to visit the public schools, we would suggest the propriety and expediency of appointing such of our most intelligent lady citizens as have manifested the most interest in the schools.

And should any vacancies occur in the Board of Education, or new members be elected, it might not be an unheard of or improper thing to place one or two intelligent women, who have had ex-perience as teachers, in office. The cause of ed-ucation must be viewed from the standpoint of both sexes before it can attain perfection and administer equal justice to all.

THE STORM PLAG.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:
Sin: One objection urged against the present location of the signal-station in this city is that its flag or light on the Major Block cannot be distinctly seen by the shipping in the offing.

Would not this objection, if a serious one, be obviated by placing the signals on the top of the tower at the Water-Works, and also at the crib?

It would not be a bad idea to connect Evanston and South Chicago by telegraph with the Bignal Station, and display storm signals simultaneously at all these points. Such an arrangement might be made with little or no expense to the Signal-Service Bureau, while the general advantage of timely warning to outlying vessels would be almost incalculable. E. Chroaco, June 18, 1874.

THE NEW COURT-HOUSE.

THE NEW COURT-HOUSE,

To the Editor of The Chicaco Tribune:

Sin: There is an ovident determination on the part of the city and county rings to force the mutediate construction of the Court-House upon the people whether they will or not. The Common Council and County Commissioners know full well that the people are burdened with other debts, and cannot afford this enormous expenditure with its consequent and inevitable steading, fraud, and defalcation. The rings have already made such headway in their scheme, that nothing will stop them except an uprising of proporty-owners. Let meetings be called at once and potitions circulated protesting against any further stops by the Court-House Rings in their swindling conspracy. If proporty-owners do not at once utter their protest in an emphatic way, it will scon be too late to make any effective opnosition to the Ring.

Mention was made yesterday of a suit brought by John Maddon against Al Smith, in whose gaming-house Madden'actoric lost some monor, and it was stated that Maddon was of the opinion that Smith had committed perjury in swearing that the establishment was not owned by him. The case was continued till yesterday in order that Mr. Maddon might have an opportunity of proving his allegation, but he satisfied himself ruly that the facts were as Smith stated them; that the latter, according to the usual custom of keepers of gaming-houses, did not own his establishment, and, consequently, was not guilty of perjury. And that ended the case.

A man named Charles Frondenberg was arrested yesterday morning by Dan Hogan, charged with fraud, and locked up at the Union Street Station. A short time ago he visited a jewelry store at No. 21 West Madison street, kept by a Mr. Keil, and berrowed a watch to ornament his person at a ball he intended attending. Mention was made yeaterday of the arrest, by Offleer Brown, of a lad named David Kohl, on the charge of attempting to pass a forged check on Mr. Miles, ticket-agent of the Burlington & Quincy Read. It seems likely that in catching this boy, for he is only 16 or 17 years old, the authorities have gotten hold of an individual who has been trying to proy upon the railroad offices in this city. April 27 an attempt was made to buy tickets on the Courtal Pacific Road with a check on the Corn-Exchange Bank, purporting to be signed by diage Brothors, the wholessle milliners. In this case a small boy was accosted on the street by the forger, and asked if he wanted to make half a dollar. He said he did, and was told to go and get one of Gage Brothers' business-cards, which he did, and on the back of it the request for the tickets wan written. The forgery was suspected, and the the back of it the request for the tickets wan written. The forgery was suspected, and the tickets were not sent. In this case the clock was for $302.50. In the one which was offered day before yesterday, and which purported to be signed by W. W. Kimbali, it was $172.80. Here, too, the forger got a loy to do the work for him. As has already been stated, Mr. Miles, the ticket-agent, gave the boy a couple of begus tickets, and Officer Brown followed and arrested Kohl. The boy who took the check of April 27 was confronted with Kehl, and says he is the person who employed him. The case came up yesterday, but was continued till this morning, when it will be heard before Justice Boyden, who

A Chicage surgeon, already somewhat famous for his success in removing diseased portions of human intestines, visited Quincy, Ill., a few days ago to operate upon a strangulated herals in the person of Peter Hoener, residing near that city. The physician in attendance there had made every justifiable effort to reduce the humin without avail. Before the arrival of the surgeon, however, the strangled intestine had roturned within the abdomen; but afterwarding sixteen hours, and being numble to get anything to pass the bowels save blood, the surgeon became satisfied that there was still some obstruction in the intestine which, if not removed, would prove fatal. He therefore opened the abdomen, took out the intestines until the obstruction was found, and having removed this replaced the intestines and sowed up the opening in such a way as to make a radical cure of the herma in case the man survived. Considerable disturbance followed se severe an operation, but the functions of the bowels were restored, the discharge of blood cassed, and the man has fully recovered.

An unfortunate accident occurred to a young gentleman on Michigan avonue yesterday. He was going up the street when two handsome young ladies suddenly appeared in sight, It seems that he knew them. They were gorgeously arrayed, and had their bayonots—that is, their parasols—at a charge. Their paniers were also correctly settled. As for him, in the proud consciousness of a new hat and a glossy suit of summor-clothes, he felt that he would make an impression. He prepared to do ao. With his right hand he would raise his hat, at the same time smiling in an irresistible manner. Alas for the futility of human hopes. Just as he arrived within ten steps of the fair ones, one of those cottonwood blossoms that are blowing so thickly now, happened to fly into his mouth and lodged in his windpipe. He tried to expel it by a respectable cough, but it was firmly lodged, and threatened to choke him. Politeness gave way to alarm. He gasped, grew red in the face, choked, staggered, and almost fell. The young women drew up in surprise, and, thinking him in a fit, dropped their side-arms and fied hastily in several directions. The young man after dropping his hat in the gutter, recled against a fence, and coughed until the people looked out of the windows and said: "Poor young man after dropping his hat in the gutter, recled against a fence, and coughed until the people looked out of the windows and said: "Poor young man after dropping his hat in the gutter, recled against a fence, and coughed until the people looked out of the windows and said: "Poor young man after dropping the house and said: "Poor young man after dropping to the consumption." upon having a good time. While the people were waiting for the train, the Band discoursed in its happlest manner several of its popular pieces of musle, and also favored the throng a various points along the route.

The company arrived at the lake in good time, and spent the day in fishing, boating, and other amusements. A sumptuous dinner added not a little to the enjoyment of the pleasure-seokers. A large number of the excursionists enjoyed a ride upon the beautiful little boat, the Arrow, and others watched her movements as she gracefully gilded over the waters of the lake.

At the appointed hour the train roturned to Wheaton and to the city. All were much pleased with themselves, and with the treatment which they received at the hands of those having charge of the train. The members of the band wen for themselves many friends by their cordial treatment of all.

JEFFERSON.

David Hammond; ox-Doputy Sheriff under John Gray, who serves A. J. Suell of this place in the capacity of cook, having imbibod a large supply of the ardent, became weary of the toils and heat of the kitchen, and came to the dotermination that it would be far better for him to plume his pluions and sear to worlds unknown. Divesting himself of his clothing, so that nothing should impede his flight, he uncovered the trap-door to a neighbor's clatern, and plunged in. The plunge sobered him, and he called vigorously for help. Some passing workmon heard his cry, and with difficulty rescued him from his unpleasant predictament. A plysician resuscitated Mr. Hammond, and he will be about in a few days.

It was also agreed verbally that if they should elect to occupy the premises for two years longer the defendants would rent it to them at the "current rates," meaning at what the same should be reasonably worth.

When companying the place in pressession for When complainants had been in possession for about a month, the defendants' agent, Robert S. be duplicate leases, and asked him to sign them. He not being a leaned man, and withal somewhat in a burry, signed the leases without reading them, relying on Willcox's assortanced that they were copies. He has since ascortanced that they are old ieases made to a former tenant, and changed by crasures, interlineations, and pasting paper ever some words, so as to be apparently a lease to the complainants. They now assort that the leases are not copies; that their so-called copy has an omission of the words, "and $2,000 cach for second and third years," which is the original in the defendants' hands. This clause, in the original, is a provision that the complainants shall pay $1,200 a year for the next two years will not be well as the "current rate." The complainants shall pay $1,200 a year for the next two years will not be worth more than $100 a month; that they have offered to pay the latter amount, which has been refused; that the defondants have sued them twice, but in each case taken a non-suit, and that they are about to levy a distress warrant. Complainants therefore ask that an injunction may be issued to restrain the defendants from doing anything to annoy them, and that the lease may be corrected so as to correspond with the verbal contract and intentions of the parties. An injunction was granted under a bond for $2,000.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:
Sin: Those who approclate the beauties of Nature, and desire to satisfy natural longings to hatter, and nestro a sacrity means no nignigate be in the country, should pay at least a flying visit to this, the levilest spot east of the Rocky Mountains. Nincteen lakes within a radius of 25 miles, all visible from a single clevation,—nestled in the valleys and among the green nestled in the valleys and among the green hills,—give a variety and beauty to the landscape which can be found nowhere else on this Continent. The surrounding country is broken and rolling. The sameness and monotony of the pratrie-lands of Illinois are unknown; the reads, of compact gravel, furnish the finest drives in the world; and, wherever you go, the placid waters of the lakes reflect the shadows of the beautiful shores.

worth; and, whichever you go, the place waters of the lakes reflect the shadows of the beautiful shores.

Persons in pursuit of pleasure in the country fravel a thousand miles to the seaside or to Saratoga, to be cooped up in a small room in a large hotel, and be stowed nearly to death, because it is fashionable. A single visit to Occuse mowe would dispot the illusion and expose the discomforts of the Eastern watering-places, Only 116 miles in distance and four and a-last-hours in time from Ohlengo by the Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, and you reach your destination. A special express leaves the Madison street bridge overy afternoon at 5 o'clock; and, returning, leaves Occomenovoe at 6 in the morning, reaching Chicage at 11 a. m.

Fishing in the lakes this season has been unusually successful. A few days since, a party of
