LOCAL MENTION

Get a key at "The Hub"

John Lamey and wife visited Martin O'Neil on Little Box Elder creek Tuesday.

James Lamey, Jr., will leave for Helena Saturday night to visit the state fair for a couple of weeks.

M. J. Webb, Great Northern detective, gathered in John Buhl and Joe Gleasner, two car repairers in the yards, Monday, who were suspected of robbing express cars. The former was arraigned before Judge Melll yesterday and paid a fine of $5. The stealing had been going on for some time, and a search of their homes disclosed enough of the missing articles to warrant their conviction.

HERALD'S NEW HOME.

The HERALD office has moved into its new quarters in the basement of the Oxford block, under the Havre Drug Co's. new store. The new apartments are commodious and well lighted and will accommodate the large newspaper press which we have arranged to have installed in the building within the next two weeks. We can then promise our readers an up-to-date newspaper in every particular.

The HERALD aims to diffuse interesting and entertaining local reading, and is also devoted to the interests of the town and county. Accordingly it invites correspondence from neighboring towns, with a view to covering the local field of the county and northern Montana thoroughly. With our press will also come a fine new line of ad and job type, and nothing from the largest to the smallest job will be too difficult for the HERALD office to handle.

IN WORKING ORDER.

The Trades and Labor council met Tuesday evening and appointed a committee for the purpose of looking after a hall where all the different crafts can meet and transact their business. It is the object of the council to have regular mass meetings held where the union men can assemble and talk on questions of an economic nature.

P. H. Barrett, O. H. Webber and E. G. Miller were appointed a committee to wait on the city council and ask that the resolution from the Trades Assembly, which was sanctioned by the city council, pertaining to the hire of men to work on the sewer and waterworks system be enforced, there being a complaint made that sub-let contractors were not going in accordance with the agreement.

FOUGHT CHIEF JOSEPH.

Northern Montana Citizens Gave Battle to Nez Perce Raiders.

From Fort Benton River Press.

The death of Chief Joseph a few days ago on the Colville (Wash.) Indian reservation, recalls some of the exciting incidents of his famous raid in this part of Montana in the early fall of 1877, when several residents of this city took part in a battle with the murderous savages. Chief Joseph and his followers went on the war-path in Idaho and were pursued by United States troops, but managed to escape into western Montana. The military were assisted by posses of citizen volunteers and after a long chase there was a desperate battle at Big Hole in which a number of soldiers and civilians were killed, but Chief Joseph and his band managed to escape into Idaho, and subsequently returned to Montana by way of the Yellowstone park.

They made their way into the Musselshell country, leaving a trail of robbery and murder in that part of Montana and causing apprehension of trouble among settlers in that locality. At that time the late Jim Wells was located at Clagett, and he sent word to his Fort Benton friends that the Nez Perces were headed in that direction and troops should be sent there at once. General Miles, with 600 soldiers, was in pursuit of the hostiles, and the latter were trying to escape into Canada.

Upon receipt of word that Jim Wells needed help, Col. J. J. Donnelly, who was then county clerk, formed a company of volunteers to go to his assistance. There was between forty and fifty men in the company, among them being Judge Tattan, Ike Clark, Wm. Rywe, Thos. O'Hanlon, W. S. Evans, John Egan, Geo. Farmer, Joseph Morrison, Murray Nicholson and other early day residents of this city. They unexpectedly met Chief Joseph's band of about 250 warriors at Cow Island and were compelled to give battle. The fight took place on September 27, 1877, and lasted about three hours, the arrival of troops brought down the river by Col. Igle saving the volunteers from annihilation.

Three days later General Miles overtook the Indian raiders on Snake creek where one of the fiercest battles ever known in the history of Indian warfare took place. General Miles lost 23 killed and 44 wounded, and the Indian losses were also heavy. Chief Joseph surrendered to General Miles and since that time had been practically a prisoner.

See Carnal & Carruth for rooms in the new brick building, either for office, living or rooming purposes.
