TWO UNDESIRABLES ARE DEPORTED

Steve Franich, Austrian, and Mike Kakela, Finlander, have been taken into custody by Charles K. Andrews, district director of immigration, and have begun involuntary journeys to their homelands. Arrest and deportation followed almost a year after irregularity in their entry to this country from Canada had been discovered.

Entry into this country, according to Mr. Andrews, was made from Niagara, Ottawa, Canada, into Rochester or Buffalo, New York. Mr. Andrews located the men in this city last April and placed them under bond of $500 awaiting deportation. Neither of them had families in this country.

From Red Lodge the men were taken to Havre, where they will be put aboard the immigration department's special guarded car and taken to New York, whence they will be sent to their native countries.

These are the first cases of their kind on record from this city, according to county officers.

Unusual Accident Cause of Boys Death

Little Kenneth Kabel met with a horrible death Monday evening when an uncorked bottle of carbolic acid fell from off the top of a cupboard after the lad had bumped into it while playing and running through the house. The unfortunate boy was taken at once to Mt. Maurice Hospital where all power of medical skill that could be rendered by the attending physician Dr. S. M. Souders, and the consulting physicians Dr. Johnson and Dr. Koehn was in vain for Kenneth lapsed into unconsciousness, from which he never recovered and after about two and one-half hours drifted into a dreamland slumber.

Kenneth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Kabel, and was at the time of his fatal disaster 7 years, and some months old, having been born in Red Lodge and here he spent the seven years of his brief life. The boys comrades, as well as many of his adult admirers hold the memory of his childish deeds and pranks as a precious token and sympathize sincerely with the bereaved family in their loss of so brilliant and promising a youth. Funeral plans have not as yet been definitely arranged but it is presumed that the body will be laid to rest in the city cemetery.

Man and Bear Mix Skeletons and Gun Tell of Conflict

Missoula—A relic of a fight in which a man and a bear each lost his life has fallen into the hands of Pat Palsey of 725 Holmes street, who acquired the article from Alex Donnelly, fire patrolman of the East Selway forest. The relic is an old cap and ball pistol, covered with the rust of years, and was found by Mr. Donnelly on top of the Selway divide, near the Montana-Idaho state line.

The gun, which has three charged chambers, was found among the bones of the man and bear, and the finder believes that the gun tells the story of a mighty struggle for life in which both contestants lost. The bones were bleached white, which leads to the belief that the fight took place many years ago, and this belief is strengthened by the apparent age of the gun, which is of a type first manufactured prior to the Civil war.

Mr. Palsey has removed part of the rust from the barrel of the weapon, and with the aid of a glass the following words are discernible: "36 calibre—pr—Colonel." He hopes that further polishing will reveal the name of the owner of the gun, which might give a clue to the identity of the skeleton.

The bones of the man and bear were found about three miles from the spot where, two years ago, the skeleton of a man, with both arms imprisoned in a steel bar trap, was discovered by men patrolling the fire lines. The identity of this unfortunate man remains a mystery, as probably will that of the skeleton whose hand had clasped the weapon, now but the relic of a lost fight.

Religion should have a program for this life as well as furnishing an insurance for the life to come.

It is utterly devoid of any value for personal salvation unless it will endure the heat of summer as well as the cold of winter.

Everybody welcome to come and hear something about this type of religion.

Montana Citizens Will Be Mobilized On September 12

Plans are now well under way for the mobilization of Montana citizens September 12, next, as a part of the National defense day program advanced by the war department, Colonel Charles L. Sheridan, adjutant general announced recently.

All national guard units of the 163rd infantry, members of the organized reserve and patriotic organizations will assist in the mobilization. Col. Sheridan said. The national call to colors was conceived by the war department as a means of obtaining an estimate of the number of men available for voluntary duty in an emergency. Reports will be forwarded by the county committees to the state committee as to the number of men enrolled in Montana, which reports will be sent to national headquarters.

National guard units will attempt to recruit up to war time strength actually arranging for all the supplies equipment, quarters and issuing all orders required to move military organizations in time of war. Other units will conform to this plan as far as possible. It is expected the county committees will organize community programs in connection with the mobilization.

Toomey is Candidate For Attorney General

Edmond G. Toomey, candidate for the Republican nomination for Attorney General, is the son of Montana pioneers. Born in Deer Lodge, Montana, September 13, 1892, Toomey comes from a long line of lawyers and judges. His grandfather, the late William J. Galbraith, was justice of the Montana Supreme Court for ten years.

Toomey spent his boyhood at his home in Deer Lodge, and on his father's ranches in the Big Hole Basin, where, as he grew older, he worked as a range rider. When he completed his course in the public schools at Deer Lodge and was graduated from the Powell County high school, he entered the University of Wisconsin. During vacations while attending law school he worked in the law offices of Edward Scharnikow at Deer Lodge.

At Wisconsin Toomey gained the respect and admiration of his teachers and classmates, not only for his ability as a student but for a profound sense of fairness and judgment, which characterized him in every activity with which he was identified. He was graduated at the head of his class both in the College of Letters and Science and the Law School, and immediately was admitted to the state and federal courts in Montana and Wisconsin. He commenced active practice of his profession in Montana in 1916, and in 1917 became a member of the firm of Galen, Mettler & Toomey, one of the leading law firms of the state.

Then came the world war, and Toomey was appointed a Major Judge Advocate in the Montana National Guard by Governor S. V. Stewart, but dispairing of being called to active service, he relinquished his appointment and enlisted as a private, infantry. He served nearly two years with the A. E. F. and won his spurs in eighteen months' active service in Siberia and Manchuria, returning a First Lieutenant Judge Advocate.

On his return from army service, Toomey became special counsel for the state of Montana in all matters affecting the work of the Montana Railroad Commission, having regulation of 7500 miles of railroad, and ex-officio Public Service Commission of Montana, having the regulation of nearly 400 public utilities in the state; likewise of the Montana Irrigation Districts, embracing about 875,000 acres of land. This work has taken him as the state's representative into nearly every nook and corner of Montana, and he has learned to know its people well, their beliefs, their hopes and their ambitions. They who have met and know him, believe in him.

He has conducted all of the state's rate litigation before the courts and the Interstate Commerce Commission, with conspicuous success, for the last four years, and has become widely known throughout the state as a result of his work. His legal opinions in public utility cases have been widely copied and published in the leading law reports of such cases in the United States. He is the only candidate in the field who has been admitted to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Toomey has enjoyed a very active and extensive law practice, both public and private, and reference to the reports of the Montana Supreme Court will show that he has participated in some of the most important public litigation of the last ten years. He argued successfully in the Supreme Court for the law which created Carter county; defended the voting machine law; appeared as amicus curiae in the veto case and has been counsel in much private litigation.

Toomey has no fads or fancies, and has that background of common sense and friendliness that come only from a keen understanding of human nature and willingness to serve. The ruling force that most strongly characterizes him is deep reverence for the law and a profound belief that its maintenance is a cornerstone of the welfare of his state and country.

To know him is to believe in him, and there is no better recommendation.

DENNIS CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Lee Dennis Republican Candidate for Governor has a record open to investigation. Among his outstanding achievements is the increased saving in freight rates made possible to farmers and stockmen of Montana. Through his initiative and untiring effort one-third of the freight rates on hay, feed, grain and various commodities was saved during the most trying period in Montana history.

A similar saving was made in the forced shipment of feeder stock to points out of the State.

Figures taken from the office of the State Board of Equalization show that the actual and estimated saving to the people of Montana in denying the petition of the American Railway Express Company for an increase of 26 per cent in rates between points within the state and from points outside to points in Montana amounts to $1,385,378.

The actual saving on interstate traffic from October 1920 to March 31, 1924, inclusive amounted to $677,960. The estimated saving in denying the increased freight rates from April to December 1924 is $140,246. The estimated saving for 1925 is $28,768 on interstate traffic and on interstate traffic for the same period is $539,404, making a total of $1,385,378.

As head of the railroad commission, Lee Dennis took an active part in the general investigation of freight rates, cooperating with the Interstate Commerce Commission which resulted in a flat decrease of 10 per cent in all freight rates, which has applied to the total freight revenue of all roads in Montana for 1921, residents of this state have been relieved of an annual transportation bill of $5,460,614. This is based solely on the Montana operations and its application in this state was possible by the action of the commission of which Lee Dennis is chairman.

TWO PLUCKY HIKERS

The last word received from Bill Pinkney of Bridger, and the renowned and famous "hiker", he was somewhere in the Beartooth mountains and making rapid headway to the point of his destination at Red Lodge. Bill believes in making more than ordinary use of his legs, and has for the past several summers taken jaunts to some distant spot. On this occasion he is being accompanied by young Joe Schupak, also of his home town. However the sure footed travelers shall probably be glad to know that a pair of ponies await their arrival to carry a couple of foot weary passengers back again to Bridger.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, with conspicuous success, for the last four years, and has become widely known throughout the state as a result of his work. His legal opinions in public utility cases have been widely copied and published in the leading law reports of such cases in the United States. He is the only candidate in the field who has been admitted to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Toomey has enjoyed a very active and extensive law practice, both public and private, and reference to the reports of the Montana Supreme Court will show that he has participated in some of the most important public litigation of the last ten years. Boy Scouts Enjoy Beartooth Camp

Members of the Boy Scout Troop number one under the guardianship of D. W. Columbus returned Saturday from a weeks campaign trip which they spent as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hicox at Camp Beartooth.

The boys nine in number thoroughly enjoyed the outing and as they put it "had the time of their lives". They made the trip to Richel Lodge by car and the balance of the trip on horseback. At camp the boys fished to their hearts content and indulged in other sports, boat races etc., a horseshoe tournament was held and the prizes put up by Mr. Columbus were won by Oscar Zupp, and Dan Baretta 1st and George Matt and Ahto Kallio 2nd. In the Revolver shooting contest for a prize put up by Forest Ranger McGrew Vern Schwaln was the winner.

Several side trips were taken from the camp, the boys scaled Beartooth Beartooth Butte and from its summit were able to count 26 lakes within a radius of 10 miles. Both the upper and lower Beartooth Falls were visited. Frank McGrew the forest ranger instructed the boys in forestry and wood lure and his instruction to the boys was of great educational value. Appetites whittled by vigorous mountain climbing and fresh air were appeased by Mrs. Hicox who the boys all voted "was as good a cook as mother." and that is about as high a compliment as any lady can receive as to her culinary ability.

Tells Merchants To Keep Trade Home

A common remark nowadays is that the big towns are swallowing the little ones, that the automobiles and good roads are taking all the business to the big towns, that soon there will be nothing left of the small towns but a depot, a grain elevator, a post office, a garage, and one or two little stores.

Fred Anderson, founder of the Anderson Department Store, in Cozard, Neb., has proved that this is not necessarily true. Cozard is a town of 1,300 population, located near two larger towns. Fred Anderson started in business there with a capital of $3,000, $2,200 of it borrowed. That was in 1906. He started in a little frame building. Last year he did a business of $300,000 and his store now contains 3,700 square feet of space.

The first ten years he did little or no advertising and just dragged along. Then he started advertising in the local paper. He has been at it ever since and his business has grown steadily to its present proportions. He gives all the credit to advertising. Last year he spent 1 1/2 per cent of his income for advertising. He says he could afford to spend twice that much.

He has a duplicating machine and does lots of direct-by-mail advertising and he improves any and every opportunity for keeping his store before the public. But space in the local paper is his chief reliance. He never uses less than a page and sometimes, several pages in the same issue. He says he has bought the local paper many times but never got title to it. But he doesn't want title because it serves him well as it is.

The Rosenbaum store in Harvard, Neb., another 1,300 town, is an example of what can be done by giving the public what it wants and doing advertising enough to make the facts known. Harvard is within easy driving distance of four or five larger towns, one of 60,000, one or two of 12,000 or more, and others much larger than it is, but this store draws trade for 50 miles or more.

These stores have proved that it is just as easy to follow the good roads in a Ford to a small town as a large one, provided the small town goes after the business. Mr. Anderson says that what they have done any one can do by following the same methods. He says a merchant is justified in spending as high as 6 per cent of his income for advertising while he is starting. But no small town will ever get any place by bemoaning the fact that all the business is going to the big towns and then doing nothing to prevent it.

FIELD MEET BIG SUCCESS

The playground program for the summer came to an interesting conclusion Friday afternoon, when it is estimated, no less than 150 youngsters competed in the various field meet sports, and were contestants for the various prizes awarded. Rev. W. G. Churchill, whose faithful guidance and training was largely the cause of a successful summer term, acted as starter, while H. B. Field, Lawrence Peterson, and Morgan McAllister were judges for the affair.

The following lively children won high scores: From the ages of 8 to 10 years old William Buben and Kauko Kent tied scores; Helen won honors of girls from 7 to 9, and Ingrie Jarvi among those from 10 to 12. Frances Sueleh and Alice Lumley, each answered the necessary requirements, and divided honors, Dick Shott, and George Thomson furnished an exciting moment for the audience in the events of boys from 11 to 13. Remarks of sincerity were frequently expressed by many of the children who had more than enjoyed their vacation of summer schooling.

Thoughts and words travel just as God's life travels. They do not travel like an individual, but breathe your spiritual life into the atmosphere as you do your breath, and some one else breathes it in. Those not present will perceive it, for it permeates the space, and all live in it and receive from it according to their unfoldment.
