Kemper College.

THE NEXT Session of this Institution will commence on the first Monday in October. It is now generally known that the course of studies embraces all the branches of a sound and finished English, Classical, and Mathematical education, while the domestic arrangements are essentially those of a well ordered Christian family, in which every attention is constantly paid to the personal habits and manners of the students, as well as to their moral and intellectual improvement. An experienced matron will extend, especially to the younger classes, those particular attentions, by which parents may feel that their sons on leaving home will continue to enjoy some of its best privileges.

The prosperous condition of the Institution has induced the Trustees to enlarge its accommodations by adding another story to the main edifice of the College buildings. They have also divided the duties of the Chair of Ancient Languages, and provided for a new Professor in that department, who will join the faculty at an early period of the session and thus complete its organization.

The terms will continue at $75 per session, payable in all cases in advance. It is worthy of special attention, that this sum not only includes board and tuition, but also fuel, lights, use of beds and bedding, furniture, attendance of servants, and the washing and mending of the necessary pieces of linen, socks and handkerchiefs. The only additional charges of the Institution are $10 per annum for the use of private rooms, and $12 per session for lessons in the department of Modern Languages.

All the members of the Institution are required to sleep in dormitories, and attend the services of morning and evening worship in the Chapel. Each student must be provided with a sufficiency of clothes, adapted to the season, together with a supply of towels, combs, brushes, and other indispensible articles. Books and Stationery will be furnished by the College, at St. Louis prices, provided a sufficient sum be previously deposited for that purpose.

All letters sent either to the students or to the President of the College, must be post paid, or they will be liable to remain at the Post Office.

IOWA HOUSE.

THE undersigned would respectfully inform the travelling public and community in general, that the Iowa House having been thoroughly renovated and repaired, is now open for the reception of the public. This House for eligibility cannot be surpassed in the city, situated as it is, on the corner of Water and Court streets, and but a few moments walk from the steam boat landing. The proprietor would here remark, that no glaring inducements will be offered in order to deceive those who may wish to favor him with a call; the only true way to ascertain facts is to give the House a trial. A light watch constantly kept for the accommodation of those who may desire the arrival of a boat. In connection with the House is the best of stabling, and a first rate wagon yard for the accommodation of teamsters and drovers.

Thankful for past favors a liberal share of patronage is solicited by
