

CUBA LEARNS FROM U. S. HOW TO KEEP WELL

American Health Methods - Enormous Demand for Paine's Celery Compound.

Whatever else has been accomplished in Cuba, the health of the island has been wonderfully improved.

In Havana the change has been magical; streets have been asphalted, sewers built, buildings whitewashed and drug stores supplied with scientific, up-to-date preparations. The demand for Paine's Celery Compound has grown to enormous proportions.

The following statement from E. J. Molina of the Havana Custom House shows the standing Paine's has already secured among the most progressive, energetic people of Havana: Havana, Cuba, Feb. 4, 1901.

Wells & Richardson Co.: Dear Sirs—I take great pleasure in stating that I have used your Paine's Celery Compound, both while in the United States as well as in this city, and find it to be of wonderfully restorative power, especially in this enervating climate.

Very truly yours,
E. J. MOLINA.

Molina is but one of many prominent Cubans who have publicly advised the use of Paine's Celery Compound, basing their recommendation on the benefit they themselves have derived from its use.

Not only among business men, lawyers, clergymen and physicians, but among all classes of thoughtful, intelligent people, Paine's Celery Compound is the one reliable remedy for building up the system when it is run down. It is the greatest nerve and brain invigorator the world has ever known.

If your wife, daughter or sister is pale, languid, headache and irritable, persuade her to try Paine's Celery Compound. If your husband, son or brother cannot eat, sleep or work, and drowsy, dyspeptic and despondent, induce him to take Paine's Celery Compound.

It restores a worn and weak nervous system to healthy vigor. There can be no substitute for Paine's Celery Compound.

Things Every Woman Wants to Know.

The present fashion tends to diminish the number of knives and forks, etc., set down for each guest. Nowadays a large spoon for soup, a fishknife and fork and a large knife and fork are the average.

A neatly folded napkin (the more plainly and daintily this is folded the better) containing a small dinner roll or an evenly cut piece of bread is placed in the center before each guest.

Glass and china nowadays can be procured at a rate suitable to every class of purse, and very little care is needed to procure pretty tableware at most modest prices, and its perfect condition is easily secured by good washing and rubbing up.

This is an age of fads, which must be consulted if a dinner is to be a success, so the hostess should take pains to study her guests' idiosyncrasies and do her best to satisfy them.

As It Were.

Waggs—Blikum calls his new wife E Pluribus Unum.

Wiggs—Why? Waggs—Well, in substance, he means "one composed of many." He finds that she has false teeth, a glass eye, excelsior hair, a cork foot, French complexion and a marble heart. Really, E Pluribus Unum isn't half bad.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Just the Same.

Bobby—Mamma, if God is as good as you say he is, why doesn't he always answer our prayers?

"He does, Bobby, when they deserve to be answered."

"Well, I prayed that I might not steal any more jam out of the butler's pantry, but it didn't make any difference."—New York Life.

Proper Feeling.

Magistrate—I am told that you have already been convicted 14 times on this same charge. Aren't you ashamed to have to acknowledge that?

Prisoner—No, your worship. I don't think no man oughter be ashamed of 'is convictions.

Magistrate—Two months, without the option of a fine.

A Clever Woman's Answer.

"Do you not consider your husband the most graceless sinner in existence?" This question was asked the wife of a gay Lothario by a rival for his affections while playing a game called "candor."

The stillness became intense and every pair of eyes grew rounder as those present looked from one woman to the other. It was the husband's voice that broke the silence.

"Your question is out of order, Beatrice," he said quietly. "It is a rule laid down in courts of law that a woman is not required to testify against her husband."

In the confusion that followed as the game broke up the man sought his wife's side. "What should you have replied to the query of the fair Beatrice if I had not come to your rescue so neatly?" he demanded.

"I should have said you were a sinner, yes, but a lippincott rather than a graceless one."—Lippincott's.

Slow but Inexorable Justice.

In October, 1890, Pietro Giacconi and Marie Bonelli were tried at Rome on a charge of sextuple murder by poisoning committed 31 years before. In England Eugene Aram was hanged for the murder of Clarke 14 years after the offense. A man named Horne was executed for the murder of his child in the eighteenth century no less than 35 years after the offense. There is also the well known case of Governor Wall, who was executed in 1862 for a murder committed in 1782. Sherward was hanged at Norwich for the murder of his wife after a lapse of 20 years.

But Sir Fitzjames Stephens recalls what is the most remarkable case of all. He prosecuted as counsel for the crown in 1863 a man who was charged with stealing a leaf from a parish register 60 years before—that is, in 1803. In this case the prisoner was acquitted.

Nothing Serious.

Mother—Why, Tommy, you haven't been fighting, have you? Poor little Horace has a very black eye.

Tommy—Now, fight nothing! Horace was cuttin' up too much, and I just "pacified" him!—New York World.

Explained.
At the boarding school.
First Girl—What is the matter with these pickles?
Second Girl—Don't they taste right?
First Girl—No; they're horrid.
Third Girl—I'm sorry, girls, but I was just out of hairpins, and so I took a fork to get them out of the bottle.—Leslie's Weekly.

And He Wasn't at His Best.
The thin man entered the restaurant.
And he was a hollow chest;
His face was haggard, his cheeks were sunk.
He had the air of a fasting monk
And plenty of slack to his vest.

The gormandise passed in their midday meal
And of food and gobbling and said:
"What a delicious such a delightful repast!"
That day he was long for this earthly spirit
The fellow he better be dead!"

But the thin man opened his serviette
And he was a hollow chest;
His face was haggard, his cheeks were sunk.
He had the air of a fasting monk
And plenty of slack to his vest.

I haven't a doubt that the soup was good,
A glorious consommé;
A quart of fluid, no less, I ween,
With a dozen slices of bread between,
He put them out of the way.

He smacked his chops and wiped his mustache
And speared a radish or two,
And then he ordered a porthouse steak,
Heavy enough for a stomach ache,
And a powder of Bass' brew.

As he polished them off with marvelous grace
His waiters began to swell;
But he only loosened his belt a peg
And tackled an order of scrambled egg
And an ice cream caramel.

He'd a Roman punch and a cucumber
And also a pickled beet,
An olive, a salad, potatoes galore
And catclap and biscuits and onions a score;
To watch him was truly a treat.

He'd a custard, too, and a cup of tea
And a slab of Sifton cheese,
A chunk of pie and a creme de menthe,
Which he demolished with never a pant;
The fellow was quite at his ease.

To shorten this tale, he only stopped
When no more food was nigh;
But the regular patrons were stricken dumb,
For the thin man's waistcoat was tight as a drum,
And he never made half a try.

GLADSTONE'S SON TO WED.

Young Herbert is himself a politician of note.

All England is greatly interested just now in the coming marriage of the Right Hon. Herbert John Gladstone, son of the great deceased statesman. The engagement of Mr. Gladstone to the daughter of the Right Hon. Sir Richard Horner Paget, baronet, has just been announced. Sir Richard is a noted English soldier and politician.

Herbert Gladstone is the fourth and youngest son of the Grand Old Man.

RIGHT HON. HERBERT JOHN GLADSTONE.
He is the best known living member of his famous family. Mr. Gladstone is, as his father was, one of the leaders of the Liberal party. He is now forty-seven years old and has been in public life since 1850.

Like his famous father and the other members of his family, Mr. Gladstone is a graduate of Oxford. He gained various honors during his university career, and from 1877 to 1880 he was a history lecturer in Keble college.

In the latter year Mr. Gladstone contested a seat in parliament and has held it ever since. He represents the city of Leeds. From 1880 to 1881 Mr. Gladstone was one of his father's secretaries. In 1885 he was a lord of the treasury. In 1886 financial secretary of the war office, from 1892 to 1894 undersecretary of the home office and from 1894 to 1895 first commissioner of works. Since 1895 the Liberal party has been out of power, and he has held no office. Since 1899 Mr. Gladstone has been chief whip of his party. The duty of a "whip" is to see that all members of a party are in their places when an important measure is to be acted upon. The office is unofficial and is not known in American politics.

Mr. Gladstone's abilities, although real, have been overshadowed by those of his eminent father. He is a steady, earnest, hardworking man of great independence and winning personality. His few enemies accuse him of lack of brilliance and initiative, but it has always been felt by his friends that he has lived in "the shadow of a great name."

A Wonderful Echo.

Many wonderful echoes are known, but the one which takes the first place seems to be that of the old palace of Simonetta, near Milan, which forms three sides of a quadrangle. The report of a pistol is said to be repeated by this echo 60 times, and Addison, who visited the place on a somewhat foggy day, when the air was unfavorable, counted 56 repetitions. At first they were quick, but the intervals were greater in proportion as the sound diminished.

WATCH DOGS

Ever on the Alert—Alive to Every Form of Oppression—Kept on Edge—Burdened Beyond Endurance—Nerves Give Out.

The machinery of a mill that grinds day and night has to sit down now and then for repairs. It is the same way with your nerves. Overwork, close application, cur wags of living bring about nerve waste that sets up symptoms of various kinds. It may be failing strength, weakness, languor, head ache, sleeplessness etc. Whatever it is nerve force is lacking and the means of restoring rests with Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. A great many people in Richmond vouch for this. Among them is Mrs. Mary Verege, of number 200 south seventh street, Richmond, Ind., who says: "I was troubled with severe nervousness, sleeplessness and dizziness. I was advised to try Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and got a box at A. G. Luken & Co.'s drug store and now I can say my nervous system has been toned up. I sleep better and I am not now bothered with those dizzy spells. I think the pills a grand nerve tonic and health builder."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase M. D. are on every box.

Lunch Prices and Dinner Prices.
Any one who will take the trouble to compare the lunch and dinner menus of some of the leading restaurants of New York will make a rather surprising discovery. He will ascertain that the prices on many dishes are cut on the dinner card from 10 cents to 20 cents.

A gentleman whose curiosity was aroused by this singular practice to the extent that he went to the head waiter for a more satisfactory reason than the table waiter could advance was given this explanation:

"You see," said the waiter, "the generality of men don't care for a heavy lunch. One dish and a glass of milk or a cup of coffee, with bread and butter, are sufficient for them; consequently to prevent them from getting off too cheap we have to put up the price of single dishes. At dinner time it is different. A man wants a number of dishes for dinner, and so we can afford to make our menus and dishes cheaper."

"But do you think that is exactly—"

"Honest? Why not? It is always honest to take what people are willing to pay you for what you have to sell, is it not?"—New York Times.

Why Hindoos Don't Go Mad.
Why are there so few lunatic asylums and so small a proportion of insane persons in India? That is a question which many a traveler has wonderingly asked.

The Hindoos regulate their lives entirely in accordance with their religion—that is, their working, eating, sleeping as well as what we usually regard as our "life" in the religious sense of the word. Everything is arranged for them, and they follow the rules now just as they did 2,000 years ago. This constant observance of the same rules for twenty centuries has molded the brains of the race into one shape, as it were, and although their rites are queer enough, yet there is but an occasional example of that striking deviation from the common which is called insanity in countries inhabited by the white race.

They are fatalists too. With them it is a case of "what is to be will be" carried to the extreme. This has in time given them the power to take all things calmly and so freed them from the anxiety that drives so many white men into the lunatic asylums.

Met His Match.

That well known historical personage, Augustus the Strong, elector of Saxony, has furnished the subject for many a tale of his wonderful muscular power. We need refer only to one characteristic story in which, however, he met his match. On the occasion in question he entered a blacksmith's shop. To show his suit how strong he was, he picked up several horseshoes, broke one after the other, asking the blacksmith whether he had no better.

When it came to paying the bill, the Elector Augustus threw a six dollar piece on the anvil. It was a very thick coin. The blacksmith took it up, broke it in half, saying, "Pardon me, but I have given you a good horseshoe and I expect a good coin in return."

Another six dollar piece was given him, but he broke that and five or six others, when the humiliated elector put an end to the performance by handing the blacksmith a louis d'or, pacifying him by saying, "The dollars were probably made of bad metal, but this gold piece, I hope, is good."

Muzzling Dogs.

During the whole of 1900 no case of rabies was found in England or Scotland, and it is asserted with confidence that the disease, which had been present for centuries, has been entirely eradicated. This official statement justifies the stringent muzzling order passed by parliament a few years ago and the vexatious regulations against importing dogs. A few cases of rabies were reported from Wales, where the regulations were not enforced strictly. For the first time in fifty years not a single person died of hydrophobia in England and Wales in 1899.
