PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Plot Against the Shah.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that news has been received from Teheran of the discovery of a serious plot against the life of the shah. The leaders of the conspiracy were the shah's two brothers, the grand vizier, Sadr Azzam, and the shah's son-in-law. The two brothers have been banished for life to Ardebil, north Persia. The son-in-law was sentenced to death, but on the scaffold his sentence was mitigated by the shah's firmness to flogging until he revealed the names of all the conspirators. The shah's favorite, Gavame, who was also concerned, was pardoned on the scaffold, but died subsequently in prison. The whole revolutionary party, together with the higher priests, were in the plot, and all will be beheaded or imprisoned for life. There is a veritable panic among the people of Teheran. Muzaffer-ed-Din Mirza, the present shah of Persia, was born in 1853 and succeeded to the throne in 1896.

Beatty's Luck.

Some of the stories told concerning the sudden fortunes acquired down in the new oilfields of Texas make like tales of old California and the new gold diggings in the Klondike tame and weak in comparison. Neither of these so called El Dorados, for example, has ever furnished an individual who grew up from a poor man to a multimillionaire in the astonishing fashion of Mr. D. R. Beatty, formerly of Galveston.

Beatty happened to be in the Galveston News office on the day that the news of the great Lucas gusher came in over the wires. The story made him jump. His total cash assets at the time amounted to $20, and he had nothing beyond that. But he started for Beaumont on the next train, determined to try his luck anyway, come what would. When he had planted his feet in the oil district, he had half of his original capital left—$10. With this he managed by shrewd dickering and the putting up of not a little "bluff" to secure an option on ten acres of oil land from a young farmer.

It was a fine play, and Beatty held the winning card. The land proved to be loaded up with the richest kind of oil veins, and before many weeks Beatty had a well in operation which he sold for $1,250,000. Other finds and investments added to the pile, and now Mr. Beatty's possessions are rated at a valuation of $20,000,000, and the end is not yet.—Saturday Evening Post.

An Interesting Witness.

One of the most interesting witnesses in the Schley inquiry was Captain Charles E. Clark, who was on the stand just before Admiral Schley himself gave testimony. Captain Clark came prominently before the country at the time the Oregon made her famous trip around Cape Horn. He was commander of the great battleship on that trip and was also her commander during the battle of Santiago, where she played an important part. As might have been expected when the captain of the Oregon appeared at the inquiry, all those present at once became deeply interested on account of the personality of the witness regardless of the testimony he was to give.

Ex-President Cleveland.

The death of President McKinley elicited from the now only surviving past chief executive an address on the evils and suppression of the anarchistic dogmas. Mr. Cleveland has a temperate so intensely reserved that he is rarely seen, heard of or quoted except by the university students of Princeton, to whom his paper on anarchists was directed. Since his retirement from the presidency Mr. Cleveland's efforts have been mainly as an educator, and so he lives a most retired and placid life in the peaceful New Jersey university town.

A DUEL AND A JOKE.

Count Boni de Castellane's First Affair Upon the Field of Honor.

Count Boni de Castellane's first duel was when he had just come from school. Lad as he was, he could ride, shoot and handle a sword, but he was still very young, very lawless, rather green. At the club to which he had just been admitted some of the men, whom life made cynical, began to guy him. It was easy to stir up his anger, for they chattered scandal about a woman he knew. He pulled over the table and struck one of the men. The next day he received a challenge. In good faith he selected two good clubmen as his seconds. In all this the club fellows saw only a joke, and when the arrangements were hurried and the two opponents stood face to face in a meadow near the Seine the pistols were loaded with blackened bread crumbs.

"One, two, three!" They fired together. The clubman gave a great cry and fell to the ground groaning.

"He's fatally wounded—dying!" the seconds exclaimed, choking with laughter.

De Castellane felt the heart in him run away like water. He had killed a man. It was not possible!

"Dead?" he asked anxiously.

"Yes," said the corpse and sat up grinning.

The schoolboy looked at the laughing clubmen and saw the joke they had played on him. He stooped and caught the corpse by the ankle, dragged it a bit and with a sudden jerk tossed it ten feet into the river.

"Then I'll bury it," said he.

As the clubman crawled from the river, dripping mud and water, they decided the joke was on him.—Saturday Evening Post.

THE COLOSSUS OF RHODES.

One of the Ancient Seven Wonders of the World.

The ancients succeeded in making that alloy of copper which is known as bronze. Among the seven wonders of the world was the famous statue, wholly made of bronze, historically known as the Colossus of Rhodes. It represented Phobus, the national deity of the Rhodians. It was begun by Chares, a pupil of Lysippus, the sculptor, and was completed by Laches 288 B. C. The popular belief is that it stood astride the harbor of Rhodes, that it was 105 feet high and that ships could easily sail between its legs.

Pliny said that few men could clasp its thumb. It was cast on metal plates, afterward joined together, and this process occupied twelve years. In the interior was a spiral staircase reaching into its head, and in a great mirror suspended to its neck were reflected the coast of Syria and the ships sailing to Egypt.

After it had stood for sixty-four years this colossus was overthrown by an earthquake, and its remains lay on the shore for 923 years—that is, until A. D. 672—when they were sold by the Saracens to a Hebrew dealer. The original cost was 300 talents—say, $6,000,000—and it is not too much to say that a similar image might be constructed now in one-fourth of the time and at one-third of the original cost. Rhodes, by the way, must have had colossus on the brain, for Pliny relates that the port was adorned with 1,000 colossal statues of the sun.

Men's Hatboxes.

"It might seem," said a trunk and bag manufacturer, "that a man's hatbox was just a hatbox; but, as a matter of fact, men's hatboxes are made in very considerable variety. They are oval and square and oblong as to form, of sole leather, or harness leather and of enameled leather as to material and of various capacities, from boxes designed for one hat to boxes for four hats. And there are made in the oval shape boxes with a removable center section in which, according as that section is taken out or left in, can be carried one hat or three.

"And some hatboxes have a tray for collars and cuffs, and so on, and in some the hat bowls are removable, so that upon occasion the box can be turned into a good sized plain case that can be used for any purpose whatever."—New York Sun.

Not Painful.

"Here," cried Oldham to his fellow lodger, who was starting for his holiday, "that's my brush and comb you're putting in your portmanteau."

"Well, let me have 'em. You won't need 'em; you've grown so bald lately."

"That's just it. I can't part with them."—London Answers.

His Usefulness.

"Cholly doesn't seem to be of much use in the world."

"Oh, I don't know; he makes a nice cigarette holder."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

PIMPLES

"My wife had pimples on her face, but she has been taking CASCARETS and they have all disappeared.
