

Tomorrow We Make Our First Display in Holiday Gift Books

Santa Claus Takes A Peep Inside Our Christmas Book Covers.

We caught him at it, the jolly old rascal. He declared: "Our Holiday books this year would tempt even a busy man to take an hour off for thorough enjoyment."

We suspect Santa may have written some of these interesting books himself. Perhaps he illustrated them, too. The children may know, but they won't tell. They keep Santa's secrets.

Not all our books are for the youngsters. Oh, no. Here are books of poetry with photogravure illustrations of the highest art value. You pay so much less for all these than the regular bookseller would charge—you can buy ALL YOU WANT and still be on the safe side of your pocketbook.

Remember, a good book for your friend receives a welcome TWICE WARM, a response TWICE HEARTY, both for the book itself and the valued taste of the giver. It's wisest to select now.

DEATH OF HELEN GARBER.

Great White Plague Claims One of Denison's Fairest Daughters on Last Thursday.

On Thursday, November 2d, the death angel, quietly and tenderly, ended the months of suffering, and the spirit of Helen Garber left the frail body and entered into its eternal reward. It was the end of one of the saddest, most determined, but most hopeless struggles against the great white plague which has brought sorrow and untimely death to so many homes. But a few years ago and Helen was a strong, active, healthy girl, ambitious, energetic and filled with hope and confidence in the future. She graduated from the Denison high school and passed from the ranks of the pupils to the ranks of the teachers of the public schools. It was not long, however, before there were evidences of the dread disease. The story of how Denison people rallied to her help; how she was surrounded by the love of her parents and her friends; how she was sent, first to the state hospital near Iowa City, and then to the bright sunshine of Tucson, Ariz.; how, when this proved unavailing, she was brought back to dear old Denison to meet the inevitable; how her cheerful, patient spirit never faltered, never gave up; how the strong arms of Denison's love and loyalty encompassed her about and made as bright as possible the last days of the beautiful young life; how the faithful mother watched and toiled without ceasing; how the father gave his days to work and his nights to tender ministrations at her bedside; all these form a chapter of Denison life, filled with pathos and with tragedy, but replete with such love and heroism and devotion that it makes one glad and proud to belong to this community of friends.

Helen, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Garber, was born in Denison on September 18, 1886, being but little more than twenty-five years of age at the time of her death. She graduated from the Denison high school in 1905 and later taught school in the country and at Schleswig. The last two years of her life were spent in the struggle with disease. Returning home after a vain but happy stay in Arizona, she gradually grew weaker and weaker until the end came.

Funeral services were held at the home, Rev. J. H. Senseney delivering a brief but beautiful and hopeful address. Besides her grief-stricken parents, Helen leaves one sister, Mrs. Irene Onken, to mourn her sad and untimely death. The sympathy of the entire community is with them and has been with them all through the brave struggle they have made to preserve the life of their loved one.

She was one of the brightest, cheeriest, bravest and best of girls. A loving daughter, a true and affectionate friend, a kind and capable teacher, an earnest and conscientious christian. We know that her sweet spirit has found rest and peace and eternal love.

Court Houses Hold Valuable Records.

All over the state of Iowa in the county court houses are priceless records telling the story of settlement and government in local communities. Mr. Clarence R. Aurner, Research Assistant in the State Historical society of Iowa, is engaged in writing a history of township government in Iowa, and in order to secure material for his work he has visited the court houses in Burlington, Dubuque, Fort Madison, Tipton, Iowa City, and in a number of the older counties. Here he has found records of county officers and boards of supervisors going away back to the time from 1834 to 1836 when the people of the Iowa country were governed by the governor and legislature of the Territory of Michigan. In most cases the records were kept in substantially bound volumes, but in some instances they were written on loose sheets of paper which are now brown and faded with age. In many counties, however, the penmanship is of a high order, and so the records are very legible. It behooves county officers to take great care with their books and papers in order that they may be preserved for future generations, for in these records is to be found much of the most valuable material for writing the history of the state.

Daily Capital Gets Ding's Cartoons.

While J. N. Darling has signed a long time contract with the New York World, his cartoons will be sold to six papers in the United States outside New York, and the Des Moines Capital has secured the Iowa privilege. Beginning in a few weeks the Capital will publish the Ding cartoons that have been a feature of the Register and Leader for some time. It is also rumored that the Capital contemplates a morning edition. If this is so the Register and Leader is due for a hard row of stumps.—Humboldt Republican.

coffee, although insignificant, to some extent challenged the good faith of the advertisers as to what could be expected. We think it was a mistake to make any charge, because the amount realized from the coffee would hardly compensate for the criticism which some people indulged in.

On the whole we are glad the barbecue was held and believe that it was a good thing, and we hope it will be repeated another year.

First Elections in Iowa.

Many interesting facts concerning local government in early Iowa are being brought to light by Mr. Clarence R. Aurner, Research Assistant in the State Historical society of Iowa, who is preparing a history of township government in Iowa. While he was delving into the dusty records in the court house at Dubuque he found a notice of the first election held in north-eastern Iowa. The election was held in 1834 in the house of P. A. Lorimier in what is now the city of Dubuque, and at three other precincts. At this time only a narrow strip of land along the eastern border of Iowa was surveyed and open for settlement, the remainder of what is now the state of Iowa being still in the possession of the Indians. In 1834 this narrow strip of land, which was known as the Black Hawk purchase, was attached to the territory of Michigan for purposes of government, and was divided into two counties, "Du Buque" and "Demoine."

"Refuse notice," every editor has received them, says an exchange. The postmaster sends them to the editor. For instance there is a man by the name of we'll say Bill Jones, who refused to take his paper out of the office; he did not want it any longer. We wondered what was the matter. Upon investigation of the subscription book we found Bill was short $5.65.

He has stopped his paper as an economy to us. A few evenings ago we stepped into a church and Bill's melodious voice rang out loud and clear in the soul stirring song, "Jesus Paid It All." We might have been mistaken, but his earnestness impressed us. The next day we sent him a receipt in full, begging his pardon for not knowing he had made an assignment of his liabilities to the Lord.—Odebolt Chronicle.

A Denison girl has been bragging about receiving thirteen proposals of marriage. The fact is they all came from the same fellow.
