

COX FOISTS FALSE SPECTER TO FORE IN CAMPAIGN TALK

No One Will Be Deceived by Democratic Attempt to Use Great President's Name.

THE PEOPLE KNEW ROOSEVELT

Death of Foremost American Has Not Dimmed His Deeds in the Minds of Patriots.

By William Hooser.

May one who was more or less intimately associated with Theodore Roosevelt in the last fifteen years of his life say a word in regard to the developing tendencies of the pending presidential campaign?

Governor James M. Cox, the Democratic candidate, with increasing frequency is using the name of Colonel Roosevelt in his speeches, as of one from whom the Governor has derived his inspiration for this momentous campaign, and whose support of Mr. Cox's so-called policies would be forthcoming were Roosevelt alive. At least, Governor Cox is at pains to make it appear that it is into his hands that the torch borne by Colonel Roosevelt was entrusted when the latter passed on.

Addressing the Ohio Democratic State Convention at Columbus on August 17th, among other things Governor Cox said:

"Need I remind you that it was in this State that Theodore Roosevelt, that great American, made his speech proclaiming his creed, not that the judges alone should be recalled, but that the judicial procedure itself should be subject to recall."

Acknowledged Error.

First and foremost, no man who knew Theodore Roosevelt well, and was proud to follow his leadership, needs to be told that he lived to realize the error of that specific doctrine which Governor Cox now drags from the political limbo of dead things.

But aside from this, the one outstanding note in Roosevelt's great career was his uncompromising, tried and true Americanism. He was an American above and beyond everything else. His Americanism arose above all party considerations. He was jealous of his country's honor, proud of its traditions, zealous in the maintenance of its integrity and independence. He labored incessantly to promote that national unity which he believed to be one of the safeguards of the Republic; and his faith in Washington's Farewell Address and in the Monroe Doctrine was such that he regarded strict adherence to the injunctions of both as the two great bulwarks of our national existence. If it were necessary to prove these assertions, columns could be quoted from his writings and speeches in support thereof. But one has only to mention the name of Theodore Roosevelt to bring before the mind a picture of a United States strong, self-reliant and independent.

Roosevelt's Position Clear.

One does not have to ponder long to reach a conclusion, therefore, where Roosevelt would stand if happily he were among us today. The man who in 1916 avowed that the supreme national need was the overthrow of Wilsonism and all that Wilsonism represented would have a mighty well-defined position in the fighting today if he were with us, and he would not be raised on the side of Governor Cox.

The man who, though age was creeping upon him, demanded as his right that he be sent across to face with the two hundred thousand men that clamored to accompany him, the German menace; and who grimly laid down the plea that by his end on the field of battle the drooping morale of the entente forces might be revived, though the death of a former President of the United States would have had little in common with a candidate whose newspapers proclaimed sixteen months after the sinking of the Lusitania, that "The German U-boats have committed no crime against us."

Remember in what stirring words Roosevelt denounced the Lusitania sinking, and how, throughout all that dark period of American neutrality, his powerful voice rang through the land awakening the patriotism of our people to the culmination in April, 1917, when even Mr. Wilson finally was compelled to face the inevitable.

There is no law against Governor Cox's use of Colonel Roosevelt's name. Nor is there any law on the statute books providing for the crimes which are committed in the name of progressiveness for which Colonel Roosevelt stood. There are Napoleons of finance, of wheat, of oil and of industry, but there was only one Napoleon. There are Jimmies and Edies and Harries, but there was only one Teddy.

In the campaign upon which we have entered, the name of Roosevelt will be invoked many times in many places in behalf of many things. But few in all the great army of those who followed Roosevelt will be deceived. They know above all other things that the safety and integrity of the United States lay closest to Theodore Roosevelt's heart, and with them his doctrine of stalwart Americanism will prevail against any preaching of progressivism which seeks to lure them from the path of patriotic duty.

OBITUARY

On Monday afternoon, October 25th, at 5:30 o'clock, occurred the death of Miss Nellie Beirne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Beirne, at the family residence on Howard street. The death of Miss Beirne came as a great shock to the immediate family and intimate friends who for the week previous had every reason to believe that she was well on the way to complete recovery from her illness, which dated back to last March. Miss Beirne was afflicted with heart trouble and some two weeks ago underwent a major operation which was successful, and from day to day she continued to improve. Even on Monday she seemed to be in unusually bright spirits and visited with a number of friends who called in a most cheerful manner. Late in the afternoon, however, she took a turn for the worse and passed peacefully away.

The deceased was born July 4, 1890, in Hayes township, where she spent the early years of her life. She attended the rural schools of that township, later attending St. Ann's academy at Vail. Two years ago she moved to Denison with her parents and attended the Denison college. She leaves to mourn her untimely death her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Beirne, four brothers, Thos. J., of West Side; Joseph C., of near Denison; Frank and Maurice, at home, and one sister, Miss Anna, at home.

Miss Beirne was a young woman of charming personality, possessed of the qualities which made her a general favorite among a large circle of acquaintances.

Funeral services were held this (Wednesday) morning at 9:30 o'clock at the St. Rose of Lima church, Father Murphy, of Chicago, a cousin, officiating. Interment was made at St. Ann's cemetery at Vail in the family plot beside the grave of her sister, Mary, who died a year and a half ago.

The Review joins with the many friends in extending heartfelt sympathy to the family in their hour of great sorrow.

Nautical.

Ship's Officer—Yes, she's a smart little craft and can steam thirty knots. Dear Old Lady—How thoughtful of you. I suppose you steam the knots so that the sailors can untie them easily in this cold weather?

L. W. POWERS

The Nominee on the

DEMOCRATIC TICKET

For

REPRESENTATIVE

In the State Legislature

Mr. Powers has served one term and his record and experience in that office, as well as his training and ability, entitles him to re-election for a second term. He achieved a great deal of recognition in the last legislature and was a recognized leader in the House. He was given a place on all the important committees and was in a position to make his influence count, and in serving the second term will naturally be in an even better position to protect the interests of this county.

He possesses all the equipment necessary for an ideal legislator. He was born in Iowa and has lived here all his life, living on a farm much of the time when not attending some educational institution, before he began the practice of law in Denison some years ago. So that he is thoroughly familiar with the conditions and the needs of the people whether they live on a farm or in the town.

In addition, he possesses an excellent legal training and has been in the active practice of law in this county for several years and is recognized as a lawyer of ability, and he is especially effective as a public speaker and is able to clearly and forcefully present his position on any public question or legal proposition. More than that, he is fearless and impartial and under no obligation to any special business or interest, but is free to do the things that are to the best interest of the people of the county as a whole. Important as this is in any legislature, it is especially so in the one that is to convene next year, because the important task of revising the Code of Iowa will come up for completion. This work has already been started and Mr. Powers, as a member of the committee which has the chief burden of carrying on that work, is familiar with what has already been accomplished and has been in close touch with the work of the Code commission since the last legislature adjourned, and is, therefore, fully prepared to continue the work of Code revision which he helped to start, and it is the duty of the people of Crawford county, regardless of party preference, to see that he is returned to help complete that work which is of great importance to all the people of the state of Iowa.

C. P. HARVEY

Chairman Democratic County Central Committee.
