

ALEXANDRIA

THURSDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 23, 1826.

The Barbadian of September the 19th, says, we are informed that Bermuda is included in the Order in Council, as one of the West India ports, which will be shut against American shipping from and after the 1st of December next, and that American articles will not be allowed to be brought through St. Thomas, (or any other foreign port,) to those colonies; we must, therefore, look, in the event of matters not being satisfactorily arranged between the two Governments, to Halifax and Quebec for supplies, after the period limited for free intercourse with the United States has expired.

We understand, says the National Gazette, that the New-Jersey Oyster Company, which had recently gone into operation, a few days ago sent some agents to collect from the vessels at the beds in Delaware Bay the sum which they were authorized by law to exact, but that instead of receiving it, they had their boats destroyed, and were obliged to fly for their lives.

Halifax papers to the 7th inst. have reached Boston. The British frigate Nieman, arrived there in 56 hours from Boston. The Jasper brig had arrived from England, with British specie to pay the troops, &c. at a specific value. This prevents the drawing of bills. The crowns pass for about $1 20 cents.

Halifax, Nov. 3. Pirates.—On Friday last, Charles Merchant and Winslow Curtis, or Collison, accused of the murder of Edward Selfridge, master, and Thomas P. Jenkins, mate, of the American ship Fairly, from Boston, bound for Gottenburg, with a valuable cargo, were landed from H. M. ship Grasshopper, which ship had brought them from Sydney, Cape Breton, and lodged in the jail of this town, ready to be delivered up to any vessel that may be sent for them by the American Government.

[The above persons had been put on board the Chebucto which sailed for Boston on the 9th.]

The following paragraph has appeared in the English papers of recent date:—

"During the stay of the Duke of Wellington at St. Petersburg, an agreement was made between the Cabinets of London and St. Petersburg, to which those of Paris, Vienna and Berlin afterwards acceded, by which it was arranged that in the extreme case of a military demonstration, none of the Courts above mentioned should pretend to an increase of territory. If the Porte refused to accept the Russian ultimatum, Russia would threaten to occupy, temporarily, Moldavia and Wallachia, till it received satisfaction for its demands, approved by all the Powers of Europe. A formal rupture between the two parties could not therefore cause much uneasiness. An energetic menace on the part of Russia would appear the less strange, as experience has proved that the Porte does not yield, unless to the most serious threats."

What credit is due to it we are not able to say. It is correct, and has relation not merely to the state of things between Russia and Turkey, but to the general policy of Europe, and is to be considered hereafter as the rule which is to govern the nations of that quarter of the globe, it is a regulation of vast importance in the concerns of Christendom. If there are hereafter to be no wars for national aggrandizement, if there are to be no future conquests with a view to acquisition of territory, and the enlargement of dominion, they must be conducted upon very different principles from those which have heretofore governed belligerent nations, in their various controversies. Sovereigns and governments must engage in hostilities with different views and feelings from those by which they have usually been actuated; national glory will be sought for in a trial of strength, skill, and courage, and will be found only in the success of a battle.

If such a provision as this has been incorporated, by express stipulation, into the European law of nations, we shall not despair of the adoption of further improvements. For example—we should hope, before long, to find privateering, and making prize of private property at sea, expunged from the laws of war. It has long been deemed disreputable to plunder and destroy the property of individuals, belonging to belligerent nations, on land; why should it not be equally so on the water? No good reason can be given for the distinction. As for privateering, it is a ferocious and sanguinary trade, very nearly akin, in many particulars, to piracy; and ought to be discontinued by all Christian powers. As long as the Barbary nations are suffered to exist in their present character, genuine privateering must be expected, but it ought to be confined to them.

New-York Daily Advertiser.

PARIS, Oct. 12.

Extract of a private letter of the 3d inst. from Marseilles:—"The Egyptian vessel lying on her side is expected to be got up ere many days, but fears are entertained of her being much damaged. A second frigate of sixty guns for the Pacha is on the stocks. A few days ago the corvette L'Amazone sailed for Alexandria under the French flag, and with a French crew. Recent letters received from Alexandria, announce that the cotton crop will be abundant, but its quality is not good. They also mention a very warm altercation having arisen between the Pacha and General Boyer; the former requires of the General services which he is not bound to render, according to their convention. The letters add that General Boyer will probably come shortly to Marseilles, where he will find his worthy friend the Marquis de Livron, who spends a very retired life."

The Lausanne Gazette contains the following article, dated Corfu, Sept. 12, which seems to reconcile the contradictory accounts given of the state of things at Athens:—"the Turks, who had made themselves masters of all Attica, and closely besieged Athens, succeeded with fifteen thousand men in taking possession of it. Goukas, alone, with 15,000 men, retired into the citadel and maintained the siege. An energetic proclamation of the Government reanimated the courage of the garrison, and they swore that they would bury themselves amidst the ruins of the ancient monuments rather than capitulate. Several Greek corps, to the number of 6,500 men, had just united in the isle of Salamis. They disembarked on the 16th of August at Eleusis, and after having crossed Mount Icarion and the Gulf Elensino, encamped on the 16th at Hermos. The Turks, upon learning their march, abandoned the town, went out against them, and met them in the plain of Athens.—The action commenced immediately and lasted more than five hours, when the Turks, after a considerable loss, were forced to retreat to Eleonora. In this engagement Col. Fabvier and the French Philhellenists particularly distinguished themselves. Giovanni Bajactar, who commanded the attack, was made prisoner, and his horse and standard were taken. Since this period, Reschid Pacha being beaten under Athens, continued his retreat upon Negropont, and from thence upon Carysto, where he remains with the Pacha of the province, notwithstanding the animosity existing between them, and the Greek General Karaiscaki, who advanced at the head of 3,000 men, blockaded them closely. Thus Athens is again occupied by the Greeks. We learn by letters from Zante that Ibrahim Pacha being reduced to despair, set fire to Tripolitza, and withdrew to Coron and Modon. The Constantinople squadron has abandoned its projects against Samos, and taken refuge in the Dardanelles. Its troops were disembarked at Echella Nuova. The Greek squadron is now at Samos."

Extract of a private letter of the 19th ult. from Moscow:—"For some time doubts were entertained at the court of St. Petersburg, whether the hostilities committed upon the frontiers of Persia were to be attributed to the restless and turbulent spirits of the hordes which dwell in those countries, or to a positive intention on the part of the Schah; but intelligence brought by a courier that arrived here yesterday has set the question at rest, and our Cabinet considers itself decidedly in a state of formal war with Persia. Our Ambassador is believed to be detained at the Schah's camp, near Su-icimania." Another letter from the frontiers of Russia, confirms the intelligence of a formal declaration of war by Russia in consequence of the incursions of the Persians; the march of troops to reinforce the Russian army in Georgia; and the revolt of some of the frontier provinces.

EXTRAORDINARY MISTAKE.

An industrious poor man, named Macbride, living in Kevin street, whose wife had been for some time confined in a fever hospital, received a notification from the hospital on Saturday, that his wife had been just dead, and requiring him to send a coffin to have the body removed. The poor husband, anxious to testify his respect for the memory of his deceased wife, by providing for the interment of her remains in the most decent style possible, taxed his slender means to the utmost for that purpose, and repaired to the hospital with an oak coffin, which was received from him at the gate according to custom, and shortly afterwards returned containing the body, and having the lid fastened down. The husband, and friends who accompanied him, had the corpse conveyed to the Cabbage Gardens, Kevin street, and there interred. However, an hour had scarcely elapsed after his return from the funeral, when, sitting alone in the house, he was started by the sound of a well-known voice at the door, desiring admission. On opening the door, he almost sunk to the earth, on beholding what he conceived to be the apparition of his departed wife, but which was in substance and reality herself, returned hale and recovered from the hospital. The mistake, for mistake it was, was now traced to the hospital, notification having been unwittingly sent to the wrong person.—The shock however proved too much for the poor man, and he yesterday became an inmate in the same hospital in which the mistake had occurred.—English paper.

NATURAL HISTORY.

In our paper of the 20th June last, we stated that an eel had been caught in the Garpal, near New Galloway, which contained in its stomach two adders, one of which was quite entire, and measured seven inches in length; and that the other, though partly decomposed must have been originally a full half larger. The angler, Mr. Lorimer, after opening the eel with his pen knife, carried it home as a curiosity, but as there was at least a chance that the poison of the adders had been partly absorbed, the fresh water reptile was thrown away as an infecting thing. In the course of the very same week he caught several more eels, and though these appeared to be sound and good, the recollection of what had occurred before excited such a prejudice against them, that it was unnecessary to cook what no one would eat. These, therefore, he also threw away under a tree beside the former; and on passing the spot soon after, he was surprised to find myriads of flies preying on the eels he had caught last, and not one attacking the other. To be sure of this fact, he purposely changed the position of the fish; huddling them together at one time with a stick, and placing them a good way apart at another—and after repeated experiments of this kind, he found that the flies, though they occasionally lighted on the infected eel, shifted their quarters as soon as possible, and abstained, so far as could be ascertained, from making a single puncture in its skin. Here, then, we have the testimony of a respectable individual (and we could mention other names) to two rather curious facts; first, that eels devour adders, and secondly, that flies have a perception of, and shun any poisonous substance. That all insects are not so nice, the experience of every day may convince us; but the flies which feast on carrion, are quite different, we believe, from those which buzz about and annoy us at midsummer.

Look Out! Look Out! Look Out!

$100 Reward.
ELOPED from my residence on the 10th inst. negro NORRAGE, about 24 years old, 5 feet eight or nine inches high, of a dark complexion, regular features, likely appearance and considerable intelligence. He has been trained from his infancy as a house servant, waiter, market man, carriage driver, &c. He has no doubt taken with him a supply of money, with different kinds of clothing, as he has been very lately conversed to this bore the character of a very trust-worthy servant in every respect. He is well known in the District of Columbia, particularly in Alexandria, and has been at different times with me, and on my business, in Baltimore, Annapolis, and other parts of Maryland.

It is likely some unprincipled scoundrel will furnish him with forged papers to facilitate his final escape. I will give Twenty-five Dollars if he be taken and secured in the District or Prince Georges County, so that I get him again, or Fifty Dollars if taken in any other part of Maryland or Virginia, or the above reward if taken elsewhere, with all reasonable charges if safely delivered to me at my residence.

To Farmers and Physicians.

BEING afflicted with the rheumatism, and my health otherwise too delicate to admit of my attending to an extensive country practice, I offer for sale the FARM on which I reside. This farm contains from

400 to 500 Acres
of rolling land of the best quality. The soil is a mixture of clay and sand, with a substratum of marble, which by deep ploughing may be kept in a constant course of improvement. It is situated in King George county, Virginia, in the centre of a wealthy and populous neighborhood, (called Chotank.) The buildings are commodious, the dwelling house not of the modern fashion, but comfortable and sufficiently modern for the purpose. The stables and granary have been built but a few years, and are upon the most improved plan. The situation is handsome and elevated, three-fourths of a mile from the Potomac river, of which it commands a beautiful & extensive prospect. On this estate there are some never-failing springs, yielding the purest water, that I have ever seen on the same number of acres. Timber, of the kind common to such a soil, is abundant, viz.
Red & White Oak, Hickory, Walnut, &c.
The second growth is locust and cedar. It lies sufficiently remote from creeks and marshes to ensure health to its possessor, and yet near enough to receive the physician's employment in his profession. The terms will be very accommodating. Persons disposed to purchase will address their letters to Hampstead, Va. GEO. FITZGUGH.

BRYAN'S APPEAL, &c.

JUST received, and for sale, at the Book-stores of Messrs. Kennedy, Douglass, and Stewart, and at the Post-Office—

THE
AND

The Triumph of Truth.

By Daniel Bryan. Price 50 Cents.
It has already been announced that the profits of this work—if any should be realized—are to be applied to the relief of the BOSTON BARR, who is now wholly dependent upon the benevolence of his countrymen for the humblest means of subsistence.
If not through sympathy and respect for hapless Genius—or from regard to the honor of your country—O, do, for the sake of Charity—do, through pity for the sufferings of a consumptive, dying, brother-man, and of his aged, widowed, heart-broken mother, contribute your mite to shelter them from the chilling blasts of winter, and the horrors of starvation!

To those who love Health and Comfort.

I am still anxious to sell my SNOW HILL FARM, in the upper part of Prince William county, Virginia, 32 miles from Washington and Alexandria, over a good turnpike, containing 879 Acres of Locust Land, originally of first quality, and a very successful attempt has been made to improve it. By excluding stock one dollar per acre in clover and plaster will bring it in value and product to land in the adjoining county, that now sells at three times as much as will be taken for this. It is divided into six fields, capable of producing in a good season 500 barrels of corn, 1500 or 2000 bushels of wheat, and other grain, and 20 hogsheads bright tobacco, of which the crop now on hand affords good proof.

The dwelling house is two stories, with four rooms and a spacious passage on each floor, on an eminence commanding a beautiful view of the mountains 3 miles distant, with all other necessary buildings. Nothing but the want of funds induces the sale, and it will be sold much under its value; has a crop of 500 barrels of corn now on it, and a crop of wheat on very fine land. It would be cultivated on very advantageous terms next year to a purchaser, either farmed, or in partnership, or the force &c. let with it. For agreeable society and good health, it cannot be surpassed. With 40 in family, I have scarcely had a fever on it in the four years I have occupied it. Other property in town or country would be taken in part payment. Doctor H. Peake of Alexandria, will give any further information.

A Bargain may be had in the Establishment of the Virginia Free Press.

THIS paper has been published five years and three months. It has a respectable list of subscribers, and the advertising business will show for itself to the eye of a Printer. The materials, consisting of fonts of Six Lines Pica, American Cannon, with Italic; Double G. Primer, (capitals); Double English, Roman and Italic; English (or Columbian); Roman and Italic—Shaded, Antique, (Pica and Brevier); Long Primer and Brevier—Are excellent, and, as may be seen, very little worn. The Press is equal to any of the sort in the U. States. The terms will be moderate—400 dollars cash, and the balance (which will be small) in two yearly payments. To an enterprising and intelligent young man, the establishment would afford a handsome income.—Possession given on the 25th of January next. Letters, post paid, will be promptly answered.
