ALEXANDRIA, (D. C.)

THURSDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 5, 1833.

We invite the attention of our readers to interesting article in another column on the subject of the recent Atmospherical phenomonon.

Accompanying the Gazette for the country, this ar, will be found the President's Message, aliab was issued in an extra to our town subscribers on the day on which it was delivered. We said vesterday we had no time nor room for comment Upon a careful perusal we do not think the document requires an article designed expressly for its examination. Some suggestions we have to make, with regard to two or three passages which it contains, and which we shall throw out as occasion requires. The Message is a most uninteresting document, we should sav. The narrative of foreign and domestic affairs presents nothing new; and there is an almost entire absence of those kind of remarks which politicians like to talk about. The better on that account,

The late Senator Johnston .- In the Senate on Monday, the resolution of respect to the memory of ALEXANDER BUCKNER having been agreed to: Mr. Clay rose and said, that the adoption of his resolution reminded him of a severe loss which the Public and he himself had sustained since the last session, and concerning which he lid not now deem himself qualified to speak .-He felt regret that the gentleman had not been able yet to take his seat, on whom it would more properly have devolved, to submit the motion which he now proposed to offer. He desired to rall the attention of the Senate to the melancholy death of a member of this body, who had been summoned away since they last met together, under circumstances of the most distressing nature. He was a man who possessed the rare quality of making a favorable impression on all persons who knew him, and who never failed, on acquantitance, to conciliate the esteem both of mends and of opponents; for whenever he fought he lought manfully, but always afterwards chershed the kindest feelings towards those who had been his adversaries. During the last Summer, perhaps all the members of the Senate had had reason to regret some bereavements, and none nore than himself. In the course of it, a pestilential disease had traversed his neighborhood, and swept off many valuable citizens, among show he numbered some of his oldest friends and acquaintances. So it had been in other parts of the country, but, amidst all this desolation, there had occurred no instance of individual loss more afflicting to him, nor more to be lamented on the public account, than that of the Senator from which had just been agreed to, in reference to the late Senator Johnston. No man in the country had attended more ardently and more faithfully to his public duties, or had brought to their discharge a more clear, enlightened, and determintd judgment. No man ever more happily unitti blandness and affability with firmness and deision. None could be more true and faithful to friends, nor more courteous and respectful towards opponents. This expression, he hoped, sould be permitted from a heart which had bled profusely when the tidings of this afflicting event teached him, amidst the wrecks which the pestience had scattered around him.

He had not expected to be called on to offer this resolution, but he trusted that it would be received, and unanimously agreed to.

was unanimously agreed to.

The organization of the House of Representalives was completed on Tuesday, by the re-election of the old Sergeant-at Arms, and the re-appointment of the other officers, the Door-Keeper and Assistant Door-Keeper.

Mr. Mason nominated Thomas Beverly Ranolph, (Sageant at-Arms to the last Congress ) Mr. Speight nominated William D. Robinson, of Virginia.

The House proceeded to ballot, and Messrs. Mason, Williams, and Wardwell were appointed to count the votes.

Mr. Mason then reported that 220 votes had been given; that 111 were necessary for a choice:

Thomas Beverly Randolph had received 158

William Robinson - . Scattering Blanks

Consequently that Thomas Beverly Randolph, having a majority of votes, was duly elected Sergeant at Arms. Mr. Clay, of Alabama, offered a resolution, that Overton Carr be appointed Doorkeeper to the House, and William Hunter Assistant Doorkeeper; which was agreed to nem. con. Mr. Hubbard offered a resolution, proposing that all the former rules and orders of the House be adopted, with the exception of the 55th and 76th rules, for which he proposed substitutes, going in effect to increase the number of standing committees, by adding one on the Militia, to increase the number, of such as heretofore consisted of seven members, to nine; and such as consisted of three, to five; and also proposing that members sit uncovered, unless otherwise permitted by the Speaker.

Mr. Williams, considering the proposed changes important, wished time for consideration, and moved to lay the resolution on the table.

Mr. Hubbard explained.

Mr. Burges thought with Mr. Williams, and wished more consideration, especially of the proposition in relation to the coverings of the heads of members, esteeming it much more important, he said, to attend to what was under them.

Mr. Williams further urged his objections to acting at this time on these matters. If gentlemen were to be forbidden to wear their hats, what vere they to do with them? No place was provided in which they could conveniently be put. | He was opposed also to increasing the size of committees. Experience had taught him that the larger they were made, the less efficient they usually became. It was often difficult to get a quorum of a committee together now. If the worum should be enlarged, it would be harder

Mr. Sutherland suggested that it would be better to adopt such rules as were not objected to, Flour, per barrel, at once, and defer the consideration of the rest | Wheat, per bushel, for the present.

After some further conversation, this was agreed to; and the old rules were adopted, with Oats, from wagons, per bushel, 0 38 a 0 40 the exception of the 9th, 55th, and 76th, above Oats, from vessels,

[COMMUNICATED. ] Mr. Snowden:-I beg leave to address a few words to you relative to a paragraph in your pa-per of the 4th instant. "It is to be lamented, that the gentleman," the writer of that paragraph relative to the note attached to the last Meteorological Observations, in lieu of the disrespectful epithets he makes use of, had not condescended to furnish the public with "a proper and correct account," either from his own observation or from the "hundred" knowing ones of whom he speaks. Now, I am still inclined to believe the editor of the Old Countryman to be a gentleman of strict veracity and profound observation-any thing to the contrary that Star may have advanced. The editor of that respectable journal has certainly a right to attribute that wonderful exhibition of Nature to such cause or end as he pleases; and by the same privilege, others are equally entitled to assign what cause or reason, for the appearance of so strange a phenomenon, they please. With this I quit Yours, most respectfully, The Fantastical Parade -This morning, be ween nine and ten, the grand corps of Invinciles began to assemble in Park Place, and in less than an hour it seemed to be packed close with a solid body of human flesh, to witness the redoubtable heroes. We made an effort to enter, and were glad to retreat with unbroken bones. We saw enough, however, to convince us that to attempt a description of their thresses and appearance, would dety an ordinary pen. It seemed as though human ingenuity was taxed severely; for each one seemed to be the antipode of his fellow Major Jack Downing had leave of the President to show off his martial skill, and Sergeant Joel relinquished the troops which he marched With feelings oppressed with pain, he rose to to Carolina to put down the nullifiers, to his ask the Senate to adopt a resolution similar to that superior officer. #### CONGRESS.

The Senate, yesterday, did not continue in session more than a few minutes.

In the House of Representatives, the motion to admit Mr. I'. P. Moore, of Ky., to be sworn in as a member of the House, was resisted on the ground of the illegality of his certificate of election. The debate was entered into by Mr. Allan of Ky., Mr. Chilton of Ky., Mr. Polk of Tenn., Ms. Beardsley of New York, Mr. Burges of R. I., Mr. Lane of Indiana, and others. No decision was had, and the debate was interrupted by the Speaker asking leave to present certain documents, which was granted.

The Speaker then laid before the House the Report of the Secretary of the Treasury on the subject of the removal of the deposites; the Report of the Secretary of the Navy; the Report of the Treasurer of the United States, and a report on the cultivation of the Sugar Cane.

The House then adjourned.

in the County of Fairfax, four miles and a half from Alexandria, and ten a half from the City of Washington, in a pleasant and agreeable neighborhood, containing 394 ACRES. As this Estate is so generally nown, a particular description of it will be less necessary. The soil is in a good state of cultivation, having been managed for several years past with a view to its improvement. There are about two hundred and fifty acres cleared and divi-ded into eight fields, well fenced; the balance is in wood and timber. There are from forty to sixty acres of meadow land, well ditched and drained, part of which is well set with clover and timothy; the balance designed to be put down in grass the ensuing fall there is a young thriving APPLE ORCHARD, of about two hundred trees of choice selected fruit, besides a variety of excellent summer fruits. This Farm is delightfully watered; Dogue Run passes through it, and it abounds in springs of most excellent water, which continue to iun through the farm in the driest seasons. The buildings are good, consisting of a large FRAME DWELLING HOUSE of two stories, with four rooms and a wide passage, built very agas ubstantially and of the best materials, and every necessary out house to accommodate a large family.—

The Garden and Yard are well designed and improved. From the house there is a commanding view of the Potomac and surrounding country, and for healthfulness and beauty of prospect it is perhaps surpassed by none. The price and terms of payment will be made known by application to Gen JOHN MASON, or S. H. JANNEY, Alexandria, D. C. Or to the subscriber, on the premises,
