AUCTION SALES

SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 26, 1855. THE FAMOUS COLUMN OF CONSTAN-

TINOPLE. Excavations have lately been made at Constantinople in order to uncover the column which lies buried in the ground between the Obeliek and the Hippodrome. It is the famous column which Gibbon calls a very singular fragment of antiquity, and which he describes as "the bodies of three serpents twisted into one pillar of brase." The guardians of the most holy places, he says, "would rejoice if they were able to produce such a chain of evidence as may be alleged on this occasion. The original consecration of the tripod and pillar in the Temple of Delphi may be proved from Herodotus and Pausanias. The Pagan Losimus agrees with the three ecclesiastical Historians, Eusebius, Socrates and Sazomen, that the sacred ornaments of the Temple of Delphi were removed to Constantinople by the order of Constantine, and among these the serpentine pillar of the Hippodrome is particularly mentioned. All the European travellers who have visited Constantinople, from Boundelmonte to Bococke, describe it in the same place, and almost in the same manuer. Mahomet II broke the under jaw of one of the serpents with a stroke of his battle-axe."

The last link has just been added to this chain of evidence. It was known from Herodotus that, after the battle of Platæs, this brass column, supporting a golden tripod, had been erected at Delphi, and the ancient historian mentions particularly that the name of the Tenians (the inhabitants of Tenos, a small island near Delos) was placed among the names engraved on the tripod, because by giving the first news of the approach of the army of Xerxes, they were considered as having contributed to the defeat of the Babrarian. The tripod is lost and it is known that it was carried off by the Phocæans. But on that part of the column which has just been disinterred, a few faint traces of inscriptions were discovered. On the second spiral line all that could be read was amprak.. fo.., and it is impossible to find any meaning in these disjointed letters. But on the seventh coil of the serpents, a curious accident has preserved the very name of the Tenians, for there can be little doubt that teno.. which is which has destroyed this ancient monument, is the name of the inhabitants of the little island of Tenos, whose honorable mention Herodotus .- Athenceum.

GRAMMAR IN RHYME. We advise every little grammarian just entering on Murray, Brown, or any of the thou-need to mistake a part of speech : 1. Three little words you often see Are articles-a, an, and the.

2. A Noun's the name of any thing, As school or garden, hoop or swing.

3. Adjective stell the kind of Noun, As great, small, pretty, white or brown. 4. Instead of Nouns the pronouns stand-

Her head, his face, your arm, my hand. 5. Verbs tell something being done-To read, count, sing, jump or run.

6. How things are done the Adverbs tell-As slowly, quickly, ill or well.

7. Conjunction join the words together-As men and women, wind or weather.

8. The Preposition stands before

A Noun, as in or through a door. 9. The Interjection shows surprise,

As oh! how pretty; ah! how wise. The whole are called Nine Parts of Speech, Which Reading, Writing, Speaking teach.

COULD NOT SEE TO READ. An amusing incident occurred to Mr. Ware, the occulist. He had performed the operation of couching, upon a poor old woman. After it was over, Mr. W. inquired of his patient whether she could read a book of tolerably sized print, which he opened before her. "No, sir, I cannot read it," replied the Down she was set in the chair again, and Mr. W. succeeded in removing another coat of film from her eves "Can you read it now, my good woman?" "No, sir-no, sir, I cannot."

"Very extraordinary !" cried the occulist, throwing down his instrument, "very extraordinary, indeed! Cannot you see to read at all ?"

"No, sir, no," rejoined the old lady; "but perhaps it may be because I never learned to read at all !

NO QUACKERY.—PRESCOTTS & LANTE'S FAMILY MEDICINES.—In presenting these preparations to the public, the proprietors are aware of the prejudices which they must expect to encounter. The country is deluged with quack nostrums, each claiming to be the ne plus ultra—the medicine of all medicines, and are pushed into notice by the aid of printer's ink, with a zeal worthy of a better cause, notwithstanding all that has been said and the essays written against their use by the profession, and out of the profession. Indeed so prevalent has become the mania for quackery, that a recent writer, a man of eminence in the medical profession, strongly advises that the subject be let alone. "It exists," says he, "in every walk and occupation of life, by the exercise of which men procure bread," and thinks t time wasted to endeavor to stem the tide.

We have long since thought that the only effectual method of counteracting this strong current of quackery is to place in the hands of the people regular Medicines, prepared in accordance with the rules laid down by the different colleges

When our prairies and mountains catch on fire, and the inhabitants behold the devouring element sweeping towards their devoted homes, what do they do! Do they vainly endeavor to stop its progress by throwing a few buckets of water on it? By no means! They build up counter fires which rush forth to meet the approaching torrent of flame, and by exhausting its food, put a stop to its ravages, or turn it out of its course. Now this is precisely what we are trying to do. The counter fire which we are kindling consists in presenting to the public, Medicines, which are prepared according to the laws of science-from formulæ given by the United States Pharmacopæia, except in two or three instances, where they were obtained from regular physicians of high standing in the medical profession. They are prepared from the best of drugs, under the superintendence of a regular physician. For testimonials of their efficacy in the treatment of the various diseases for which they are recommended, we would refer to the whole medical profession throughout the world. We bring forward no certificates from obscure individuals, stating that they have been cured of all manner of incurable diseases, deeming it an insult to the intelligence of the community to try to palm off such stuff upon them. If these medicines are humbugs, then medical science is a humbug. bric and Swiss Flouncings; Bl'k English Crape;
