"PENTACOSTAL" SCENES.
Strange things are seen, strange words are heard this week at Beulah Park, Cleveland, Ohio where the annual sessions of the Christian Missionary Alliance are being held. The gift of tongues has been received, delegates proclaim; the pentecost has again been evidenced.

The great tent in which the sessions are held was hurriedly emptied Wednesday afternoon when the strange gift was believed to have fallen to the lot of one of their number. Prayer meeting was in progress. The reverent intonations of the speaker of the meeting suddenly were interrupted by a piercing scream. A man, sitting well toward the back of the audience sprang to his feet, one arm upraised, his index finger pointing towards the sky. It was he who had uttered the cry.

The assemblage was stilled. Then the man, possessed by a religious frenzy, broke the silence, speaking rapidly, excitedly, his arm still pointing heavenward.
Every eye was turned in his direction. No one understood what the man was saying. He spoke in a strange tongue, if tongue it was, unintelligible syllables finding vent in a flow of incoherent utterance.
"It's the gift of tongues," the people whispered, one to another, their gaze fixed on the speaker. "It has come again. It's the gift of tongues!"

The speaker, his gaze intently fixed apparently on spaces, took no heed of his neighbor. He talked rapidly, fervently, but of what he talked and to whom he talked none knew nor understood.

The side wall of the tent was hurriedly lowered. The assembled congregation, awe-stricken, quieted, filed out from the place, glancing uneasily over their shoulders as they went. One woman was left with the figure standing in the tent, motionless save for the movements of his lips. He had received the "gift of tongues," they said. He must not be interrupted.

For 15 minutes the man talked in a tongue which none before had heard. Then he collapsed, overcome by the frenzy which had seized him.

But the "gift" is not the only significant feature of the daily programme, for people are healed, the delegates believe, of all disease, no matter what. At the close of the stirring addresses Wednesday afternoon by Rev. J. Hudson Ballard, an invitation was extended to all who wished to be anointed with oil and healed to retire to a room in one corner of the tabernacle. About 25 remained.

This service was conducted by Rev. John Salmon, of Toronto, Canada.

About 20 kneeled and received the anointing. It was an impressive sight. One man carried the bottle of oil and two others took turns in offering prayer. They assured the patients that no matter what the disease, whether it were "tuberculosis, tumor, nerves or any other ailment," they could all be healed.

One woman, a cripple and unable to walk, was duly anointed, and prayers were said for her recovery, but it was a noticeable fact that she did not get up and walk.

Sample Shoes, worth $5.00, $6.00 and $7.00; your choice, $2.24. See our windows. J. A. Marshall & Bro., 132 King street.

RIOTOUS STRIKERS.
One woman seriously shot, three strikebreakers badly beaten, a number of minor assaults perpetrated and the arrest upon the charge of felonious assault of Henry D. Morgan, the high-salaried refinery cashier, were incidents in the sugar strike in New York yesterday.

The shooting of the woman was an unintentional episode in an attack upon Russo Dogo by a band of strikers shortly after he had started home from the Williamsburg refinery.

ure by Mrs. Celia Backer, who took in washing at Boston for several years to support her seven children, after the disappearance of her husband, A. S. Backer.

Last June, taking the tip of a relative who had visited Seattle with a theatrical company, Mrs. Backer located her husband there as the proprietor of a fruit and confectionery store. He is now worth, she says, $50,000.

Conferences between the husband and the wife's attorney resulted in the understanding that the husband did not care to go back to Boston, and that he was willing to give about $10,000 to his wife upon her agreement not to contest a divorce suit. The agreement was indorsed by attorneys for Mrs. Backer, and the husband now has the deed.

Included within its provisions as ordered by Judge Wilson R. Gay is the granting of approximately $10,000 worth of property in Los Angeles to Mrs. Backer, who will now forsake the sweat and live in comfort.

PARDONING OF CRIMINALS.
Executive clemency manifesting itself in the pardon of numerous criminals sentenced to the guillotine, is likely to bring an "interpellation" of President Fallieres at the next session of the French chamber of deputies. Public indignation is so high over the recent commutation of the death sentence of four cold blooded assassins that several deputies announced yesterday that they will demand that the president explain.
