all the taxes are security. I quite took a fancy to the Post Office Savings Bank when I found how simple the machinery was. It was almost as handy as the drawer to have a bank round the corner where you could corner them, buy your tea and sugar, and put your money away all at once, and without ceremony. I was as pleased with it as a child with a new toy, and I liked the importance of receiving letters every now and then "On Her Majesty's service." Suean used to put the letters on the chimney-piece for people to see. It was soon the talk of the seighborhood that I was holding a correspondence with Government, and it was reported that I was going to be appointed watchmaker to the Queen and the Royal family. I passed the postoffice twice every day—on coming home to din-ner and going back again to work—and to walk in with my book and put away a few shillings was just like calling into a public house to have a drop of ale. And always the next day, wheth-er it was pounds or shillings. I had a letter "On THE PROBATE COURT. er it was pounds or shillings. I had a letter "On Her Majesty's service;" and Susan would meet me at the door and say, "George, here's anoth-er letter from the Queen," and then we'd sit down after supper and count it up, and see how much I had at my banker's. I found putting ministrators of the said Estate, praying for an money away in the Post-Office Savings Bank so casy and so pleasant like, that I rather overdid the thing, and put more money away than I could spare. So one day I ran short, and had to of paper with a form of withdraw out.
