WEST OF LIVING ABROAD.

A Self-Controlled Youth.

A. F. MILLER, Publisher.

WORTHINGTON, MINNESOTA.

The early breaking up of the Yellowstone and other North river streams, far in advance of the season, is regarded as strong confirmation of the alleged wildness of what is termed the "chink" winds from the Pacific, of which everybody has heard so much since the project was first broached of a Northern Pacific railroad.

Hon. Emory A. Storrs, one of the first lawyers of Chicago, finds serious fault with the pleuro-pneumonia bill, now before Congress, and says it will fail to pass because "it is not proper, or right, or reasonable, or just to place the enormous cattle interests of this country under the absolute control of a few horse dealers, veterinary politicians, and give them power to prevent the shipment of cattle to market every time a cow sneezes."

The most successful journals of the country are newspapers—in fact as well as in name. The old style papers, full and redundant in opinions and chary of facts, have ceased to be profitable. Some of them are yet in existence, but the income therefrom is small, and in some cases, below expenses, which have to be eked out by the bounty of politicians and others more remotely interested in their continued life than the public in general.

The Milwaukee & St. Paul has opened South Alma, Iowa, a new station on the Cedar Rapids & Ottumwa line, thirty-one miles from Marion. The Union depot of St. Paul is daily thronged by emigrants on their way to the West. The baggage and emigrant rates are growing longer each day.

The first through party from the City of Mexico, over the recently completed Mexican Central railway, left Chicago for Mexico City on the 26th, in a special train of the Burlington road. The party is made up jointly of the Federal Reserve Bank, the National Loan Association, and thirty American students, who left for Norte Dame.

Most of the people in this latitude have had a long period of comparative rest, but the summer is at hand and it behooves all to make the most of it. Those who want to be comfortable in the winter must work to that end during the summer. The old saw "make hay while the sun shines" may be extended to include gathering in all other products of the soil, and firewood for winter. If farming products are low raise an additional amount to more than cover the deficiency. That is the best way of getting even. Let there be a diversity in sources of income. A great many things are scarce and bring a high price in all the markets. Don't put all your eggs in one basket.

Farmers in Iowa and other states are looking about for good seed corn. The seed gathered after the severe freezing of the middle of last November, has been subjected to the usual tests and has failed to grow in a way to indicate it safe to plant in the most favorable spring. On the other hand all the specimens gathered prior to this date—even when in the first stages of glazing—and carefully dried have germinated in that perfectly vigorous way that indicates seed safe for the most unfavorable seasons. There are few things more disheartening than the failure of seeds and the greatest cause will doubtless be caused in planting this year. Corn especially will be closely scrutinized and tested, and more attention than usual should be bestowed upon seed wheat.

Mr. Henry Clews, the distinguished New York millionaire, undisguisedly and publicly says that "the laboring classes must be educated up to accept a reduction of pay 33 1/2 per cent on the present rates of wages," that "we must have as cheap rates as Europe or our interests will suffer." The man who is but the type of a class that seems to be torn to break down the dignity and independence of American citizens. This was the class that would have deluged the country with "cheap Chinese labor." It was welcomed as a fitting substitute for America in all the departments of labor, because of its cheapness, and what is peculiarly gratifying to the latter-day mobs—the slavish servility—more degrading, if possible, than slave labor. All of the large cities and many of the smaller, contain just such friends of their own race as Henry Clews, and it really seems as if they might succeed in their wicked and inhuman scheme.

Quite a panic was produced in New York and vicinity by reports set afloat by home butchers that western dressed beef sent in refrigerators cars was unwholesome from a chemical process used in preparing it for transportation. Western men denied this emphatically and Mr. P. D. Armour, of Chicago, who is a responsible man, asserted positively that there is nothing in the process of refrigeration that renders the beef unwholesome. When chemicals are used for refrigeration it is in pipes that do not come directly in contact with the beef. Of course, after having been frozen, the beef may not keep so long as that killed at home; but except in occasional instances, that is not a serious objection. The newspapers did their best to allay the panic, and the trade was not materially injured, and probably will hereafter be greatly augmented. The people of the east look to their west more than ever before for their bread and butter and beef.

Washington County. The senate passed a bill to pay for depreciation of the White Sulphur Springs in 1870. Mr. Nelson presented the petition of James Billings, relative to the improvement of the Shell and Crow rivers.

During the first eight months of the present fiscal year the interior revenue receipts were $78,000,350, a decrease of $18,451,360, as compared with the corresponding period of 1883. The total receipts for the year were $2,530,582 less than February, 1883.

The president has approved the joint resolution for the relief of sufferers from the overflow of the Mississippi river. The bill supplies the secretary of war will follow the same general plan employed with so much success in the case of sufferers from the Ohio floods.

The house committee on postoffice and post-roads, held a hearing on the bill to recommend the passage of a bill to create a postoffice at a free delivery office, entitled to a leave of fourteen days each year, without loss of pay upon the expiration of the term of office.

Ex-Senator Dorsey has written a letter to say that he will appear before the Springer committee of the Senate, to give his own experience and knowledge of the management of the state route investigation and trial, and estimates that there will be made by the full committee when he takes the stand, a good deal of lobbying to get it through.

Ballot Stenographers. The Milwaukee & St. Paul has opened South Alma, Iowa, a new station on the Cedar Rapids & Ottumwa line, thirty-one miles from Marion.

that America has conferred democratic honors upon a man who is regarded as a victor of Bismarck's policy. The German Gazette, Bismarck's organ, is silent on the subject. The Telegraph says: "It is a pity that it is not a very wise man. It shows that the American government approved Bismarck's course and promised him as a reward, that he should have had all the other emblems of honor in honor of the emperor's birthday."

The Black Hawk, mentioned so frequently in the dispatches from Shakin as having borne the brunt of Gen. Grant's last engagement in the Battle of Gettysburg, is now in the hands of the Highlanders. Into this regiment were enrolled 17,000, the companies dressed in black or dark blue, and had watched the Highlanders fight the war for the restoration of the British rule. The members of the British army have familiar names in the United States, and from some of them the names of the Highlanders are derived.

Another sensational divorce suit is on in London, for a judicial separation brought by the beautiful Lady Colin Campbell, the Miss Gertrude Campbell, the fifth son of the Duke of Devonshire, and brother of the marquis of Lorne. The lady is a divorcee, and her husband, while still a member of the House of Commons, is a man of considerable fortune. The lady is a divorcee, and her husband, while still a member of the House of Commons, is a man of considerable fortune.

At Burlington, Iowa, Lawyer Brimmond did the general divorcing act among his friends and a recently a lady away. At Leocadia, N. H., the grand jury indicted the common law murderer of Mrs. Jane Frank Ruddy and child, for the murder of Mrs. Ruddy and for burning a house.

While returning from Joliet, Ill., to his home, Michael Conlin, collector of the township of Joliet, was waylaid by the ten men of the gang of John J. O'Connell, who had been recently released from the penitentiary. The robbers made good their escape, but left behind them a trail of blood and footprints.

At Yankton, Dak., Dennis E. Donovan, a convict of the penitentiary at St. Paul, was sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of one year for a crime committed while he was in the penitentiary. The judge said that he was a good man, but that he had been in the penitentiary for a long time, and that he had been a good man, but that he had been in the penitentiary for a long time.

Matthew Arnold made $1,300 by his lecturing on the subject of the "Poets of the West." A memorial session was held at the Connecticut state, 18 to 3. The private banking house of William Look, at New York, has suspended payment.

A Lawrence, Massachusetts, man, who had deposited with the Catholic Augustinian society a sum of $10,000, for the purpose of building a bridge over the St. Louis river, between Convent Point, Wis., and Duluth. The plans and specifications for the bridge were completed, and the contract was let very soon, calling for the completion of the bridge within 120 days from the date of the contract.

The Northern Pacific Express company has established an office at Fort Custer, Minn., at the head of the lake of that name. A line of mail and express service will be maintained between the office and the city of St. Paul, and the office will be open for business on the 1st of next month.

George A. Frodenreich of Alexandria, is in Washington, en route for Russia. He has been four years in that country, representing the McCormick Manufacturing Machine company of Chicago. His headquarters are in Odessa. He has been in this country on a brief visit to his home. His father, Baron Frodenreich, was among the early settlers in Minnesota.

New York papers print telegrams from St. Paul alleging that John Douglas, one of the Yellowstone Park Improvement company, accuses Rufus Hatch of bribery and deceit in securing the appointment of a receiver. Mr. Hatch, when interviewed concerning the matter, said he did not care to talk upon the subject. The courts have ordered the receiver to be appointed, and his interests from the sharks. The current understanding is that Hatch has a majority of the non-forfeited stock, and will have things his own way.

Sitting Bull visited the St. Paul engine houses and the boys astonished him by their knowledge of the engine. He took in all the situation at one time and viewed the horses getting to place, the evening harness, and the men sliding down the pole with huge delight, giving vent to a number of "hows." The hitching process was repeated for their benefit, and their eyes concentrated upon the sliding poles, which they seemed to regard with the greatest interest. One Bull said, "Look man at that!" The chief's horse, which was hitched to the engine, was hitched to the engine, and the chief was hitched to the engine.

Thomas Eagan, a brick-layer, was found dead in St. Paul. Mrs. Jessie Gilliland, wife of Hon. J. B. Gilliland, of Minneapolis, died on the 20th. Just before the cyclone of last year an indebtedness of $1,500 resting upon the parsonage of the M. E. Church at Rochester, was lifted, leaving the society free of debt. Almost immediately after the storm of Aug. 2, which wrecked the church edifice. The work of reconstruction was at once entered upon, and the only candidate for the office of minister was at once elected, and the church was dedicated for its new use.

These will be completed in ample time for the storage of next season's crops. Among other improvements are the dock now being completed on the Wisconsin side of the building on the Wisconsin side of the docks and warehouse of the Northern Pacific Elevator company on Minnesota. When all the elevators under way are completed the storage capacity will reach 5,000,000 bushels. It is now about 2,700,000 bushels.

Officer John Casey, who has been on the police force of St. Paul since April 10, 1869, died Friday morning at St. Joseph's hospital from a rupture of the blood vessel in the brain. Casey has been sick for some time, and his death was expected. He leaves one son who is in business in St. Paul. Nicolas Galles, a former resident of New Ulm, is now one of the principal members of the New Mexico legislature and receives his mail as "Hon. N. Galles" with becoming dignity.

Arrangements have been completed to introduce the fire alarm system into Faribault. There will be four boxes, one being located so as to accommodate the fire department, and the other three members, and the universities by nine. The constituencies are of three kinds: boroughs (which comprise the cities, small towns), universities and counties. The boroughs are represented by three hundred and sixty members, the counties by two hundred and eighty-five members, and the universities by nine members.

A House of Commons, unless sooner dissolved, lasts for a period of seven years. But the House can be dissolved at any time by the Queen, on the advice of the Prime Minister, and a new general election. As a matter of fact, the House rarely lives longer than four years.

Capt. Frank H. Pratt, whose death occurred at St. Paul on the 15th, was a Minnesota man of many years' standing, and was well known throughout the state, both on account of his public services and his business connections. He was a native of the state of Maine, and came to St. Paul in 1854, where he was engaged in the lumber business. He was connected with the Minnesota as one of its editors and proprietors.

Just before the cyclone of last year an indebtedness of $1,500 resting upon the parsonage of the M. E. Church at Rochester, was lifted, leaving the society free of debt. Almost immediately after the storm of Aug. 2, which wrecked the church edifice. The work of reconstruction was at once entered upon, and the only candidate for the office of minister was at once elected, and the church was dedicated for its new use.
