

URBANA UNION

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 16, 1917.

Neighborhood News.

The Camp-meeting passed off without a single accident.

A fine watch and chain were stolen from the residence of Mr. M. Weaver...

Mr. Alfred Boyd, died last night at 8 o'clock, P. M. He was a man of wealth, earned by his industry, and universally respected.

Hon. J. H. MCKENNEY paid a visit last Tuesday. He was on his way to Springfield, where he made a speech the same evening.

Urbana, for ten days, is a first class city.—Springfield Repub.

And that is more than Springfield ever was or ever will be—even for the period of ten days.

JUDGE W. McILVAINE, of the Supreme Bench of Ohio, Louis Helbold, proprietor of the Beckel-house, Dayton, R. Wallison, Reporter for the New York Herald, and Judge J. S. Conklin were among the guests at the Exchange Hotel while the Camp-meeting was in session.

The Delaware Gazette says that Mr. E. T. Flint, General Superintendent of the C. C. & D. R. R., refused to furnish train from Delaware to the Urbana camp-meeting, last Sunday, on the ground that "he does not sanction running trains on Sunday, UNLESS NECESSARY."

WEST LIBERTY was almost depopulated last Sunday. Every body and his wife attended camp meeting. A young man living near this place was taken from the excursion train, returning from Urbana Sunday evening, laboring under a severe attack of delirium tremens.

It is suggested that the Democratic Senatorial Convention of the District composed of Champaign, Clarke and Madison counties, meet at the Court House, in Springfield, on Friday, August 25th, at 3 o'clock, P. M.

A round Lake camp-meeting minister, Father Jenson, says: "Women and the Devil turned everything upside down in the beginning. God had given to woman a special gift for influence that he had withheld from man."

G. W. FRANKENSTEIN, Esq., the world-famous artist, has just completed a picture of Ghu-Elien, the beautiful country-seat of Col. J. B. Armstrong, situated about one mile North-east of Urbana.

FOREPAUGH'S AGGREGATION. With pleasure we announce to our readers that this grand collection of Living Wonders is coming to town.

Two TENTS. Holding 5,000 people, are used for exhibiting the "rare, strange and curious" collection of animals, and to present the scenic displays.

SAMUEL A. STEWART recently went to Dayton and offered a lot of shoes for sale at such low figures as to beget a suspicion that they were stolen.

TWO PRINTERS DEAD.—Wm. H. Ellis, aged 25 years, died in Lewistown, Logan Co., Ohio, on the 10th inst., of Typhoid Fever, and Edward Senecak, was buried in Dayton on Monday last, aged about 23 years.

They were both accomplished printers, generous in life, and were gentlemen in the true sense of the word, and in their deaths the Craft has lost two worthy members, whose memory will be cherished in the hearts of those who were most intimately acquainted with them in this world of sorrow and woe.

Peace to their ashes.

The grave-yard to be plowed up. The bones of our citizens and the soldiers of 1812 to be desecrated. Shakespeare's anathema "cursed be he who disturbs my bones," has lost its terror with our City Dads.

Shade of Frederic Gump! Rise in your revolutionary habiliments and shake your gory locks, whitened by the frosts of 107 winters, in the face of him who first dares attempt the cursed deed.

If the tax payers of this city will submit to be plucked to the sum of nearly $50,000 a year, in support of a city government, it is no reason why all the old inhabitants, who carved it out of a wilderness, should be shocked and outraged by the acts of those who now claim to be the City Council.

Some few weeks ago a petition signed by a few citizens living on Ward street, and who are greatly mistaken as to its ultimate benefit to them, or the effect of the measure upon the value of their property, presented it to the Council asking the running of said street through the old town grave-yard, upon which appropriate action was had, and reference made to the City Board of Public Improvement.

The Board after advising themselves of the merits of the proposition, very sensibly determined to report adversely. The ring watching the Movement suddenly discovered danger, and changed their tactics, and procured and presented a new petition (against the remonstrance on file with the city Clerk, of all the land owners east of Sycamore street, and some in other localities), asking the extension to East Lawn Avenue, and manipulated the Council into the belief that their former reference was not lawful, and that the Council itself must act directly in the premises.

This new phase of the proposition was promptly met by the presentation of a remonstrance, signed by about 255 of our best citizens, obtained without any general canvass, which no doubt would more than have doubled it. Instead of treating it with that respect which our City Government owes to its constituency. The people who signed it were insulted by a prominent member, by the gross and vulgar remark that such an expression amounted to nothing, that signatures to such papers were mere commonplace things, that as many or more could be obtained favoring the petition, and it was consigned without action as is usual with the Council, to a pigeon-hole in the City Clerk's office, where I hope it will remain without mutilation as a memento for the use of the Centennial meeting to be held by an adjournment on the 15th of March, 1916, as dodge number ONE.

The opponents to the measure of running the street through the grave-yard, after having been thus foiled and repulsed, obtained signatures of nearly all the old settlers of the town to a memorial respectfully addressed to the Council, asking it to submit the whole question to the people of all the Wards after 30 days notice, and send further action until the people settled it by their votes, which was also carefully read and shared the fate of its predecessor, after refusing to even second the motion of one member to accept the reasonable proposition, it was 4 to 1 ordered on FILE, to be used if he hoped, March 15th, 1916, as dodge number TWO.

On the next meeting of the Council the member who was not present at the previous meeting having the fear of the people before him, voluntarily called up the memorial from its perch in the pigeon hole, and obtaining a second he elaborately urged the reasonableness of the proposition and insisted upon a direct vote of Ayes and Nays, which seemed to be waxing too hot to be any longer skulked by some of them, and it became convenient to move an adjournment, and of course the body dissolved into this air as a City Council. This was dodge number THREE, which is also handed over to March 15th, 1916, to be reviewed by the great grand-children of this redoubtable City Council, who no doubt will stare at each other and wonder if they sprang from such "fathers," such an ancestry.

During the progress of these interventions of the people to save the old time honored grave-yard, an ordinance was dragging its slimy serpentine length through the regular weekly sessions of the City Council to its third reading, which occurred on the 31st of July 1871, and culminated in the heinous and damnable act of passing the ordinance to dedicate the old venerated grave-yard without promoting any public benefit as to travel, transit or drainage.

Well might Shakespeare be supposed to have had a prophetic vision of the scenes enacted in our City Council Chamber on the memorable night of July 31st, 1871, when applying his words to other scenes he broke forth substantially in the language "clothed with a little brief authority, they cut such high phantastic tricks before high Heaven, as made angels weep!" If departed spirits really take cognizance of the acts of men, it would not require any great draw on the imagination to suppose that, that portion of the angelic hosts, whose earthly tabernacles were reposing in the old Urbana grave-yard, would have good reason to indulge in the weeping mood, in view of the bull-headed stubbornness with which they resisted popular appeals of the people, both in the City and the surrounding country. Can this monstrosity be submitted to by the great masses of our population? Time will tell.

But there is another phase to this uncalled for proceeding, besides the burking of the bones of the dead by municipal hyenas. It destroys a magnificent grant entered of record, to the PEOPLE from the original proprietor of the town which was intended to remain intact for generation after generation, the whole of which as now inclosed, measures in a square with avenues around it, not less than one and five-eighths acres in all the times to come, will and which I have said elsewhere, not less than $20,000 and may at small expense be made a beautiful place of resort and promenade for our people of the present day. Shall this all be sacrificed to gratify the senseless whims of a few persons owning property on Ward street? They invested their money in it with a full knowledge of all the facts, they knew it abutted a grave-yard, dating back a full half century. Have they any right to complain and ask such a public sacrifice? Certainly not.

I will conclude by saying to the Urbana public, that I expect at another time to lift the veil, and expose the enormity of the measure upon them as tax payers, and point out that element in the Council that should be held responsible for it. I have taken notes "and 't'ch 'em print 'em."

WM. PATRICK.

The Miller carriage Works.—The Bellefontaine Carriage Works were established in 1858, and have been in constant operation up to the present time.

The great demand from Ohio, Indiana, and other points, for this kind of work, may be attributed to the fixed rule of using good material and employing skillful and trusty workmen, and each branch being superintended in person by the proprietors, (all three of whom are practical mechanics and devote their time to the business,) and to the facts that their constant aim is to make improvements in points of style and durability, and thus turn out first-class Family, Pleasure and Business Vehicles.

The Muncie, Ind., Carriage Works were established Jan., 1888, and have been in uninterrupted operation to the present time.

The same rules, with reference to employing first class mechanics and No. 1 material are adopted and the same care is exercised in the building of first-class Vehicles, as at the Bellefontaine Works.
