HITS GOLF PLAYER IN EYE

Chas. M. Tucker received a painful injury Friday afternoon while playing golf, one of the players with a vigorous swing of the stick missed the golf ball and mistook Mr. Tucker's eye-ball instead, evidently hitting what she was aiming at. Mr. Tucker is quite optimistic about it, but just as soon it wouldn't happen again.

SENIOR PLAY WAS

THE USUAL SUCCESS

"Ruth in a Rush," Drew Big House and Was a Genuine Treat For All

"Ruth in a Rush," the Senior play, the write-up of which has been held up to appear with the class pictures, was one of the best local productions to be given in Liberal.

The play was a farce comedy, and the parts were well-cast, throughout. Ruth Fields as "Ruth Moore"—Always in a Rush—had a very difficult part, but one for which she was especially well qualified, and she handled it like a professional. Her secretary, Juliet Raymond, played by Wilda Naylor, was all that the author could have wished. Both young ladies were splendidly gowned, and were most charming.

Gilbert Lansing, a writer was well done by Vernon Engel, and as usual with Vernon, he acquitted himself with great credit. His chum, Phillip Grant, a millionaire, known locally as Edgar Bush, could hardly have been better played. Edgar is another of the L. H. S. boys who always make good, and this was no exception.

Chester Boles with the part of Dwight Lambert, and Roma Browne as Peggy Patton, the eloping sweethearts, were a scream. While Roma and Chester are not so well-known on the stage as some of the other participants, they convinced the audience that they had plenty ability in that line, and certainly did well.

Laura Barrier as Sadie Sodastrom, the station agent, covered herself with glory in the clever acting of her part.

Velma Bond as Ruth's aunt, Mrs. Brownell, carried her part perfectly, with the ease and grace of one accustomed to the stage, while Blanche Jones, as Mrs. Foster, Ruth's sister, could not have been improved upon.

Susie, the maid, was played by Lucy Barbee in a very clever manner. Lucy looked and acted her part superbly.

Paul Barrier as Leonard Bruce, looking for a fortune, had a good comedy role, and he made a hit with the audience, while Alva Cain as Wayne Ashley, a man of means, was up to his usual standard of ability.

"Just Like a Gypsy," a specialty by five young ladies in gypsy costume, was given by Freda Ideker, Leta Nickel, Estella Heath, Francis Morrow and Ila Hill. They were charming in their dainty costumes, and gave a most pleasing number.

"Plantation Echoes," another delightful specialty, was given by Harriet Boles, Ruth Cure, Willard Harnden, Clifford Leete, Leo Ackers and Alva Cain. All were in "coon" costume, and they brought down the house with their songs and clever acting. The two little Helsby children as the picnicians, were a pleasing part of this number.

Miss Fern Ellsaesser presided at the piano, and the musical numbers were directed by Miss Dorothy Edson, and both are deserving of much credit.

The play was directed by Miss Clara Pittman, instructor in English in L. H. S., and she is to be commended for the successful presentation of the play.

She is Glad Now that Her Laundress Failed Her

Last week Mrs. Brown was in despair.

For the third time her laundress had failed her.

And the family simply had to have clean things to wear.

She had never tried our Family Laundry Service—she was quite certain that it was terribly expensive. But something had to be done, so she bundled up her washing and called for our driver.

Then she was on needles and pins until her bundle and our bill came back.

"Imagine my surprise," she told us, "to find that my week's washing had cost me no more than I had been paying my laundress."

"And the work was so nicely done—everything was so fresh and spotless. The little bit of ironing left for me took hardly any time at all."

You will find our Family Laundry Service [equally delightful—try it today and be convinced.

We will call for your bundle, and wash your clothes in oceans of rainsoft water, with the mildest of pure, white soap. We'll iron all of the heavy flat pieces, and we'll return your washing promptly, with only a few garments left for you to iron.

Just phone us when your bundle is ready.

GARRETT VESSELS BUYS OLD BLACKSMITH SHOP

Has Come Back to Liberal to Remain Permanently and Is at Work

Garrett Vessels and family who came back last week from Loveland Colorado, are now located here permanently and Monday morning Garrett went to work in his old place of business on East Third, having purchased the tools of Chas. Kennard.

Garrett is among the old timers here, and while he has been in Colorado for the past two years he says he has never become thoroughly reconciled to living away from Liberal. He says Colorado is a delightful place to live and they enjoyed their stay in that country, but that all the time there was a longing in his heart for Liberal and the friends of olden days.

Liberal folks are glad to welcome this good family back to Liberal and hopes they find everything to their liking.

Garrett invited his old customers to come and see him as well as any who have work in the blacksmith line. He has worked here so many years that most of the old timers know what he can do, and they will be glad to again give him their business.

EPISCOPALIANS TO BUILD

On Sunday, June 5, the Rev. J. W. Jones of Hutchinson, Archdeacon for the Southern part of the District of Salina, made his regular monthly visit and held services at the Baptist Annex.

After the sermon an informal meeting of the congregation was had and plans for building a church house on their lots at the corner of Sherman and Sixth streets were discussed.

The Archdeacon brought a very generous offer of help from Bishop Mize who strongly urged that such a building be erected.

St. Andrews Episcopal Mission though small in numbers has managed to hold together consistently since its formation in January 1911 although its membership has been a changing one. When one family moved away another would soon take its place and there is now only one charter member.

St. Andrews Guild has usually been active and has three well-located lots upon which to build. When these lots were bought some years ago they seemed "away out" but now are in a choice location.

The congregation is enthusiastic and looking forward to the carrying out of its plans and the fulfilling of its hopes for a church of its own, and only waits for the passing of the present "hard times" when it will begin the work in earnest.
