We noticed some time ago that the Brillion correspondent of the Pilot was lauding the section of the S. E. S. M. C. T. A. for publishing the excuses of teachers that were absent from meetings and expressed the opinion that he would be hoo-dooed? We fully agree with the president of our section, that the attendance should be improved, and that excuses should be forwarded to the proper authorities, but we fail to find, that any other section has done the same and with good reason. It causes an unfriendly feeling among some teachers as the writer has noticed, and it does not further our object of bettering the attendance at the meetings. If they do not come by their own free will, they will certainly not come after seeing their excuse in print and disbelieved by the section. Enthusiasm is out of the question.
