MEASURED PLANET MERCURY.

Dr. See of the Naval Observatory at Washington Finds Its Diameter to Be 2,658 Miles.

Dr. See, of the United States naval observatory in Washington, has just concluded a measurement of the planet Mercury with the large telscope of that institution. Its diameter is found to be 2,658 miles. Dr. See calls attention to the fact that he has never observed any marked spots on the planet's disk, not even To all our friends and custom-when the sky was absolutely pure and the image of the planet perfectly defined on the lens of the telthere is no diminution of brightness at the edges of the disk, such as would be produced by an absorbing atmosphere. ## Thursday, January 2.

Cut prices, Specials -- Bargains of all kinds, will p evail in this department during this sale. All who benefitted by taking advantage of our former sales in this line will no doubt repeat their action of previous years and appear upon the scene early to make their selections, if in need of any linens. To those who have never attended these sales, we would say, examine into the qualities and prices and judge for yourself, as that will cost you nothing but the effort.

Remnant Sale.

The more goods that are sold, the more remnants are left, of course, therefore we have a greater number than ever in every department, our fall trade having been a record breaker in every respect.

Cloak Department.

This department shows a greater percentage of increase in sales than any other, we think, and, of course, the purchases were correspondingly large, consequently the assortment left over is greater also which will prove advantageous to those who may want to invest in any kind of a garment, as all styles lengths and qualities are fairly well represented in this stock.
