THE CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.
The Democratic and Conservative Convention, which closed its labors at Bolivar last night after twelve o'clock, was the most important gathering that has occurred in this end of the State since the close of the war. The magnitude of its relations to the public weal can be understood and appreciated only by those who have closely studied the political complexion of Tennessee and the South for the past ten years, and who are now cognizant of the great issues that will be developed during the pending canvass. The Convention was equal to the demands of the public. It was composed of the best men of the district, men who represented with eminent distinction every profession, avocation and trade, and every nationality of the city and country. It was to be expected, then, that its deliberations would be characterized by the dignity and harmony consistent with the morale, intelligence and worth of such an assemblage. When we consider that the Convention was called upon to choose a standard-bearer from such an array of distinguished men as Fenest, of Hardeman; Mosby, of Fayette; Townsend, Lowe, Avery, Young, Morgan and Winchester, of Shelby, no wonder that fifteen ballots were cast before a conclusion was reached. While the respective friends of these gentlemen—any one of whom would do honor to our party—displayed a laudable zeal in attempting to secure the nomination of their favorite, the entire proceedings were noted for being conciliatory and harmonious in the highest degree. The delegates went to Bolivar determined to nominate a man that could represent the people, and right well did they succeed. Some features of the contest are worthy of special note, though it is hard to discriminate where so much magnanimity was displayed. The career of Mr. Lowe, however, should not go unnoticed. He entered the convention with a larger positive strength than any other candidate in the field, and his friends remained steadfast as long as he would allow them to use his name. Had he been factious or over-ambitious, he might have defeated the objects of the entire convention; but with the unselfishness worthy of a noble nature, he twice withdrew from the contest, and that too when he was the strongest man in the field. While he was not nominated, he occupies a high position in the hearts of his countrymen, and he will doubtless yet fill some exalted station in recognition of his patriotism and self-denial. Colonel H. C. Young, the nominee, is well calculated to lead our party to a glorious victory over the black cohorts of Radicalism in the November election. He is a hard student, a man of undoubted integrity and ability, cool, clear-headed and well versed as to the needs of the country. He is a fluent speaker, a forcible debater and a sound reasoner. His nomination will meet with general approbation, and we predict his election over Barbour Lewis by an overwhelming majority.

A SPECIMEN BRICK.
Ed Shaw is the recognized colored leader of the Republican party in West Tennessee, although he holds an office to which he could not have been elected without more white votes than his party usually controls. He led off the civil rights crusade in the State at the colored convention held last spring in Nashville. On that occasion he demanded that colored children should be admitted to white schools. Yesterday he took pains at Zion Hall to prove that the Republican party wants nothing of the sort. He not only knows better than he did at Nashville, but knows better how to interpret the civil rights bill than Senator Boutwell, who proclaimed himself from his desk in the United States Senate in favor of mixed schools as the best way to destroy race prejudices at the South. Then Shaw came home and made a very inflammatory speech at the Pole-Bearer's Hall, on Second street, in which he advised his enthusiastic hearers to assassinate the editors of the LEDGER. Next we hear of the gentle and lamb-like Shaw, who is so anxious for peace and good will, at a peace meeting, so called, held at the Exposition building to furnish him another opportunity for abusing the press of Memphis and the white race without stint or discrimination. He rose to such vast and dignified proportions on that occasion as to forget the name of the obscure little evening sheet until a colored brother rose up in meeting and suggested that it might be the LEDGER ("yaw yaw, he he"). He thought possibly that was the name, and went on. This, of course, was a bit of pleasantry for stage effect, like everything else he perpetrates, whether original or borrowed, when in public. After disposing of the LEDGER in his usual felicitous and pleasant manner yesterday, he denounced the Southern whites awhile, and then paid his respects to Governor John C. Brown. He informed what few people live in the United States that they should never rest until John C. Brown is hung as high as Haman, which was so high as to leave the lamp-post branch of the business entirely out of the question. The placid orator, after scowling once more at the LEDGER's chief of artillery, who happened to be present taking notes, and shaking his long, spectral finger in that direction, renewed his oath of allegiance to the Republican party, and retired amid hideous applause and showers of sunflower bouquets. Shaw is an unlettered mulatto, and it may be said that his utterances are not worthy of any notice, any more than the senseless ravings of a lunatic. This would be so if he addressed an intelligent class of people, but, unfortunately, his hearers are an ignorant, prejudiced race, who hang on his words as gospel messages. His wildest utterances and most incendiary appeals bring forth the most vociferous storms of emotional applause. When he proposes to shoot the editor of an independent paper or hang a Democratic Governor by way of getting up an appetite for breakfast his colored hearers evince their delight by a liberal display of ivory and the hungry shout of impatient cannibals. Shaw is harmless himself, as all cowards are, single handed, but he moulds the sentiment of the colored people in Shelby county, who look upon him as an orator and a prophet. His insane ravings, made under the presumed forbearance of the white people, have more weight with his followers than the combined testimony and wisdom of the whole world. This is no overdrawn picture, but an every day reality which Northern Radicals think is the very thing to reconstruct Southern rebels.

In article 2d of the platform adopted by the Republicans at their Congressional Convention yesterday, they "recognize the principle is older than our Constitution, that that every man's house is his castle." That, however, did not deter thirteen of the colored members of the party from breaking into Mr. Durant's well protected house on the Pigeon Roost road the other night to rob the house and outrage his wife. If they failed to carry out their designs it was from fright and cowardice. The citizen's "castle" was very little protection on that occasion against the mob who undertook to illustrate their ideas of civil rights.

DOUGLASS JAMISON, one of the ten negroes who was permitted to escape from the Trenton jail-breakers, is in town and has had an interview with the correspondent of a Radical paper, who telegraphed the facts to day to his journal.

We feel authorized to say that the next Congressional convention will not be held in Bolivar. It is a pleasant little town, but an unexpected crowd sometimes has to sleep on the floor for the good of the country.

We have had enough of Ed Shaw's incendiary talk to his ignorant dupes. It is high time he were arrested and punished under the sedition laws which he defies and tramples under his feet.

The Great Show at Memphis, the New York and New Orleans Exposition, September 15th and 16th.

A great many of the circuses traveling over the country are first-class frauds with high sounding titles and deceptive glittering generalities. But not so with the New York and New Orleans Zoological Equestrian Exposition is enthusiastic and emphatic. The processions through the streets are the finest ever seen. The animals and horses are all in splendid condition, and the displays are grand. The menagerie is complete, and embraces a wonderful collection of animals, serpents, etc. The open den of lions and their tamer are alone worth the price of admission. The ring performance has never been excelled by any circus in this country. The riders, leapers, etc., are wonderful in their many feats, and the lady equestrienne, with her trained horse, presents one of the most magnificent sights ever witnessed. She seems indeed to be part and parcel of her steed, and her graceful and splendid bearing exceeds anything in the equestrian line ever attempted.

NEW YORK.
NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Three men were arrested here yesterday on the charge of forging deeds representing one hundred thousand dollars. One of the men, Charles Sacer, is implicated in extensive forgeries of Harlem Bank stock, of which Van Eetta, who recently committed suicide, was accused as principal.

A cargo of tea valued at $40,000 has been seized by the Collector on the charge of an attempt to defraud the Revenue. Specific charges have been filed in the United States Circuit Court against Commissioner John J. Davenport, on the ground of his arbitrary partisan conduct at an election. Davenport is Chief Supervisor of elections, as well as United States Commissioner.

Charles Disner was arrested last night for selling his daughter, age thirteen years, to Peter Halleck, keeper of a disreputable house. Halleck was arrested while taking the girl to his house. Disner is said to have disposed of two other daughters in the same way.

Railroad Shop Burnt.
CINCINNATI, September 9.—The car repair shop of the Marietta and Cincinnati railroad at Zaleskie, Ohio, burnt early this morning, with about twenty-five freight cars, most of which were old and out of repair. The loss is estimated at $75,000.

River Telegrams.
CAIRO, September 9.—Arrived: Cooke, Evansville, 8 p.m.; Fannie Lewis, Vicksburg, 9 p.m.; Belle Memphis, Memphis, 3 a.m. Departed: Cooke, Evansville, 9 p.m.; Lewis, St. Louis, 10 p.m.; Chester, Memphis, midnight; Belle Memphis, St. Louis, 8 a.m. Weather fair and warm.

It is astonishing how obstinate a woman can be when she chooses. A French provincial paper tells the story of a dame who, after a domestic emette, hid herself in the bars, where she remained for forty-eight days without eating or drinking. She chanced to have two crusts of bread in her pocket, and upon these she declares that she subsisted. She all this time drank nothing. Once she went down at night to see whether she could find any water in the bucket at the well; but there was none. After three weeks she felt neither hungry nor thirsty. She experienced no pain. She said: "If I did not leave the barn it was because I dared not. I did not wish to be scolded, either by my husband or my brother-in-law or my mother-in-law." Poor child! No wonder she doesn't have much appetite.

Chancellor Von Moltke, brother of the Field Marshal, is dead.

WHY SHOULD YOU INSURE?
BECAUSE YOU ARE SURE TO DIE, AND YOU CANNOT TELL HOW SOON. A POLICY of Life Insurance makes a present security of what otherwise is at best a future contingency. If you are poor now, it will protect your family or dependent ones against want, in case of your death, at a small cost. If you are rich now, it is by no means certain that you always will be. In this country, poor men often become millionaires, and millionaires often become poor men. If you are in moderate circumstances, in a permanent place, at a good salary, earning high wages as an artisan, a life policy hits your case exactly. On a salary, or on day wages, you can't lay up money rapidly; but you can, with self-denial, be paying up a life or endowment policy of five or ten thousand dollars. Either way you look at it, a life policy in a sound company is a good thing. It is a man's DUTY to throw every protection possible about his wife and children.
