The good old festival of Halloween was not celebrated in Greenville with the general recognition it deserves. A few families in the city always make it the occasion of some observance, and this day is enjoyed by a sort of social revival among English speaking people all over the world, with its quaint and pretty customs, which are come down to us from old times when gnomes and sprites and goblins haunted every field and forest. "superstition" we superciliously call it, but it adds a grace and charm to our sadly-wise and disillusioned life.

On Sunday night, Oct. 30, Mr. E. E. Bass, principal of the Public Schools, by special request delivered a lecture on education at Mount Horeb Baptist church (colored) which was listened to with earnest appreciation by a large audience of representative colored people of the best class. The significance to the race of Mr. Bass' position as Superintendent of the public school system is fully appreciated by negroes as well as whites, and it is but due him to state that his interest and faithful work for the education and improvement of the negro race has been earnest and untiring—a work in which he is ably seconded by Miss L. C. Williams, the principal of the colored schools.

FLOWER SHOW.

On November 18th, according to a well established and popular annual custom of the Greenville Schools, a flower show will be held at the High School. These exhibitions have been held for several years in the school, and have gained constantly in popularity and extent. Many flower growers begin early in spring to cultivate special plants for this purpose; and in our favored climate the first two weeks of November are the crowning time of the year. At that date the Chrysanthemum is in full glory, and roses are larger, richer and more beautiful than even in spring. The Chrysanthemum show this year promises to be remarkably fine and will be abundantly worth the small admission fee that is charged. The proceeds of the yearly show are devoted to the purchase of literature for the school, and in this way all the best periodicals, especially those interesting to children, have for years past been subscribed to and kept for the benefit of the scholars. Every patron of the schools, and all lovers of flowers are interested in this exhibition, which really has a very important significance in the system of education pursued in our public schools.

Pecan parties are the fashion. This is the time of year when country homes become scenes of pleasure and hospitality, and town guests enjoy nothing more than one of these delicious autumn days spent in the woods in the fascinating pursuit of nutting, with perhaps a fishery and a good old fashioned plantation supper at the close of the day. The old virtue of hospitality is still alive, and the average host is not satisfied unless his guests spend at least one night under his roof, lulled to sleep by the strange sweet silence of the country or the unaccustomed sounds that only serve to accentuate the stillness. The frolic around the blazing wood fire, the dreamless sleep, and the smoking breakfast next morning are all part and parcel of such a nutting party as those which will continue to be popular until the woods have lost all their beauty, the squirrels have hidden away the last pecan in their winter stores. On Saturday last La Grange Plantation was the scene of such a party, and the guests were Mrs. Negus, Mrs. Torian, Mrs. Shelby, Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. Greenley, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Olin, Mrs. Spires, Misses Lena and Elise Holmes, Miss Negus, and a gay party of children. At the same time another party was entertained by Mr. J. B. Hammer at Port Anderson Plantation, the guests being Mrs. A. M. Whitehead, Laura Hunt, Fanny Yerger, Juanita Wasson, Carl Wasson and Benny O'Bannon.

The editor of this paper attended the performance at the opera house last evening and was very much gratified to see a large and well-pleased audience. The piece was not only a good one, but every member of this select company did well, and we must especially praise Gussie Johnstone, for she is certainly an accomplished and most versatile actress. Tonight will be presented the Klondike King, a sensational, modern up-to-date comedy. Remember that this is not only a real good company, but they play at popular prices. This company should have crowded houses every night this week, and matinee Saturday afternoon. Mr. O. H. Johnstone, the proprietor and manager, is no stranger to our people and he has brought us this time a good company and an almost unrivalled repertoire.

In the last issue of THE TIMES a little card appeared, simply announcing that the Hypatia Club, on account of more pressing obligations of its members, had decided not to resume its meetings this winter. The club has been one of the most charming and influential social organization of Greenville for several years past. Its fame has gone beyond the limits of the city, and its plan of work and study was admired and copied by similar circles in Mississippi and the adjoining states. The disbanding of the club will occasion regret, not only to its members, but to all who felt its elevating influence.

Main street, from Poplar to Walnut, is on a boom. New concrete sidewalks are every where taking the place of the old wooden ones, and the unsightly awnings and balconies will have to go. The time honored china trees which have so long shaded THE TIMES building, the Greenley building, and the bank corner, have given way to the march of progress, and the block will look like a section of a metropolitan city in a short time.

It's the Buying that Counts!

The horse pulls the wagon, we know, but nevertheless and notwithstanding, he wouldn't "get there" unless guided by the skill of the driver. It's the selling that brings the indispensable "wherewith to lubricate the revolving wheels of our business, but the selling would fall behind, like a dog chasing a railroad train, if care, judgment and ready cash did not signalize our buying. So, after all, it's the buying that counts. Take this thought along then when buying DRY GOODS, SHOES AND CLOTHING, or anything else in our line; buy from us. We buy what people want, we buy it right, we know where and how to buy the right goods at the right price, in turn we give our customers the benefit of our experience and facilities and therefore our prices are always money-saving and bargain prices. We have a line of goods this season that outshines anything and everything in the city and second to none in the State. Nothing trashy or inferior finds place in our stock; such goods are dear at any price. Every department is filled to overflowing, with rich, fresh, handsome, stylish and desirable goods, and prices that will be a most agreeable surprise to you. Call or send us your order; our motto, "A pleased customer is the best advertisement."
