JUDGE INGHAM'S EXPLANATION. Judge John R. Ingram, of Marchester, who during the pending centest has made horts of friends both in this city and elsewhere by the dignihed manner in which he is conducting his canvass, yesterday made the following explanation as to his position in the canvass. "I became a candidate," he said, "at the earnest solicitation of many friends, I placed myself in the hands of those friends, and I shall be controlled in the matter by their highment. In speaking of his chances at the hands of the convention next Wednesday, Col. Ellett said that there was no doubt that he would go to that gathering with at least eighty-five delegates sure for him, and that he would be nominated on the first ballot. He then continued:

'I have fifty-six delegates from Richmond, four from Kins William, one from Chesterfield, three from Hanover, and two from Goochland I will rot get less than twelve from Henrico, and at least eight more from Hanover, and two from Goochland I will rot get less than twelve from Hanover, and two from Goochland I will rot get less than twelve from Hanover, and at least eight more from Hanover.

Col. Ellett made this statement before cided to withdraw from the race.

Four delegates were elected in Hanover on Thursday, Rural Point precinct Democrats selected R. R. Horne and Willoughby Newton, Jr. The former is for Ellett and the latter for Wise. Cold Harber sends John Puller for Ellett, and D. H. Timberlake, an Ellett man, was chosen to represent Clay precinct.

Chirman Mitchell and the members of the Henrico County Democratic Committee had a conference late yesterday afternoon, and it was decided that the withdrawal of Capt. "The Century War Book."

Captain Whilam H. Powell, of the Fourth Regular Infantry, in "The Century War Book," thus describes the restreat upon Washington after the disastrous battle of Bull Run:

"The last volley had been fired, and as night fell upon us the division of regulars of Forter's corps was ordered to reside to Centerville. It had fought hard on the extreme left to preserve the line of retreat by the turnpike and the stone bridge. We were gloomy, despondent, and about 'tired out,' we had not had a change of clothing from the 14th to the 31st of August, and had been living, in the words of the men, on 'salt-horse,' hard-tack,' and 'chicory juice.' As we filed from the battle-field into the turnpike leading over the stone bridge we came upon a group of mounted officers, one of whom wore a peculiar style of hat which had been seen on the field that day, and which had been the occasion of a great deal of comment in the ranks. As we passed these officers, the one with the peculiar hat called out in a loud voice:

"What troops are these."

"The regulars,' answered somebody, "Second Division, Fifth Corps,' replied another."

"Jod Diess them' they saved the army,'

"God bless them, they saved the army, added the officer, solemnly. We learned that he was General Irvin McDowell.
"As we neared the bridge we came upon confusion. Men singly and in detachments were mingled with sutlers' wagons, artillery, caissons, supply wagons, and ambulances, each striving to get ehead of the other. Vehicles rushed through organized bodies and broke the columns into fragments. Little detachments gathered by the roadside, after crossing the bridge, crying out the numbers of their regiments as a guide to scattered comrades.

'I have an old organ. It is one of those instruments with many stops and but few qualities. I think I have been able, after much endeavor, to distinguish two different qualities of tone in all the long row of stops, but my dog made it apparent to me that my ears were not as acute as his. I play for variety upon the organ, notwithstanding its being antiquated, and my dog seems to enjoy this as much as the plane, all except one stop.

"Whenever I pud that stop out he rises to his feet suddenly and commences to bark and growl at me in a most victous manner, sometimes biting at the organ. Now, to my ear, that stop makes no differenance in the sound of the organ. I have tried hard to detect the distinctive quality which aggravates the dog's nature, but without success. I have tried to fool the old fellow by commencing the tune upon one stop and suddenly pulling out the obnoxious one. He never fails to detect this, though the sound to me is just the same."

and master omits the usual evening stroll.

One evening the family were in the sitting room with some guests. A thower had come on, and it was raining hard when the clock struck 9. The strokes had hardly died away when Jack danced gryly in the room with the orange-wood stick in his mouth. "No, Jack," said his master, "we cannot go to-night, it is raining too hard. We should get wet. Just listen to it, Jack," With that the nost turned his attention once more to his guests, and presently they heard Jack builling over the things in the hatrack. They my rosed he was putting away the waiking stick, like the clever dog that he is.

A few moments rater a beseeching little bark was heard. There in the sating-room door stood Jack, with an unbrella in his mouth. Every one flew for the waterproof and hat of the man of the house, and that gentleman, hearing the umbrella so persuasively offered Pim, took Jack out for his walk without furthere delay.—From the San Francisco Breeder and Sportsman.
