The sum of $19 was given by the Standard Bearers to the missionary society to go toward the support of the child in China that the society has promised to support.

IS UNABLE TO SHAKE STORY.

and the district attorney as to just what "counting" meant caused some merriment. Mrs. Thaw and Jerome both seemed to appreciate the humor of it and laughed, the witness smiling in good nature for the first time on the stand. She declared she didn't know whether Thaw had matrimonial intentions during the first period of their acquaintance or not.

The district attorney questioned Mrs. Thaw minutely regarding her acquaintance with Frances Belmont and George W. Lederer. She admitted having frequently taken supper alone with Lederer.

Mr. White, Mrs. Thaw said, did not want her to go to Europe with Thaw in 1903. Her mother had told her she must not tell Mr. White that Mr. Thaw was paying for the trip. Mr. Jerome then took Mrs. Thaw over the trip she made over Europe alone with Thaw.

When Mr. Thaw heard of the letter of credit which Stanford White had given her, he became much excited.

"He said the money was filthy and poisonous and that I must never touch it again," said Mrs. Thaw. "He said he would take it so I could not use it. He said that he would give me anything I wanted and that if mamma wanted anything she would only have to ask for it."

"When Mr. White gave me the letter of credit it was sealed up. I did not know what it was, and he told me I must not open the letter until we were at sea. Whatever was used of the money was for my mother. Mr. Thaw gave it to her after I had given it to him."

Mrs. Thaw said she first met her husband at Rector's restaurant in December, 1901, or the following month. It was at a dinner after a matinee performance. Thaw seemed to be calm during the meal, did not have any dispute with the waiters as to the amount of the bill and didn't need anybody to help him distinguish the denominations of his greenbacks. She saw Thaw again about a week later. He called at her hotel and met her mother. He appeared to be perfectly rational.

Thaw began sending her flowers at this time, American Beauties chiefly. On the first occasion, when he inclosed $50 with a bunch of roses, she returned the money to him. She told him never to send her money again, and he apologized. She had seen nothing improper in accepting flowers from Thaw.

"You were not in the habit of receiving money from men, were you?" asked Jerome.

"No." The tone was one of indignation.

"How many times had you seen Thaw before he sent the money?"

"I can't remember."

"Didn't it strike you as strange?"

"I knew it was always done at the theater; I saw it going on all the time."

Mrs. Thaw was in good spirits when she took the stand and looked decidedly better physically than she did last week. She seemed thoroughly at home in the witness chair and with a foot stool and back cushion appeared quite comfortable. She had all her wits about her and did not fare at all badly in the hands of the district attorney, who was more gentle in handling the witness.

A very good point Mrs. Thaw made was concerning the cablegrams which Thaw is said to have sent to Stanford White from London. It appeared Thursday that these cablegrams were requests to White to use his influence in keeping Mrs. Nesbit from "raising a row" and interfering with Evelyn continuing in company with Thaw. Mr. Jerome took up the subject again, but his questions elicited the information that the letters did not concern Mrs. Thaw at all, but related to a man, a secretary of the American embassy, in London, whom Mrs. Thaw said had "sneaked up to mamma's bedroom and insulted her." She said the man had also insulted her and that Thaw, promising to punch his face, had gone in search of him, but failed to find him.

The proceedings dragged a great deal, and it was evident long before he announced the fact that Mr. Jerome was nearing the end of his cross examination.

Mrs. William Thaw, mother of the defendant, and Mrs. Carnegie, his sister, were at the courthouse for the first time in ten days. The elder Mrs. Thaw has been suffering from a severe cold.

Copper-Plated Aluminum.

A process of plating aluminum with copper by welding methods has been invented in Germany by Herr Wachnitz. This is regarded as important because one of the obstacles to a wider use of aluminum has been its comparative lack of resistance to the action of many fluids and its failure to hold paint. These objections are removed when it is covered with a thin plating of copper, while its weight is not materially increased.

A CASTLE OF INSTRUCTION.

Knights of the Golden Eagle Assemble in Camden for Big Event—State Represented.

CAMDEN, Feb. 26.—Knights of the Golden Eagle from all parts of New Jersey attended the greatest numbers last night the "Annual Castle of Instruction," held in Sigle's Hall, Twenty-fourth and Federal streets, East Camden, the headquarters of Cross and Crown Castle, No. 25.

This is the first time such an event has been held south of Trenton, and in consequence, the hall was crowded to its full capacity. Grand Chief William B. Kirby, of Bridgeton, presided, and in his opening remarks explained that the "Annual Castle of Instruction" was held for the purpose of securing uniformity in the ritualistic work of the order and to increase the interest and enthusiasm of the Sir Knights.

There were a large number of candidates who took the three degrees. The first, or Pilgrim's degree, was worked by the degree team of Cross and Crown Castle, No. 25, of Camden; the second, or Knight's degree, by Millville Castle, No. 2, of Millville; and the third, or Crusader's degree, by Washington Castle, No. 3, of Camden.

The opening and closing ceremonies were exemplified by Monarch Castle, No. 9, of Camden. The degree teams and officers who took part in the work showed they had given close study to the ritual in preparing themselves for the event.

It was one of the greatest functions in the history of the Knights of the Golden Eagle in Camden. The "Castle of Instruction" is next in importance, of the Knights of the Golden Eagle events of the year, to the Grand Castle's annual session at Trenton in September. It is a rally point for the entire membership of New Jersey, which now includes seventy-three castles and about 7,500 Sir Knights.

This was the third annual "Castle of Instruction." The two previous ones have been held in Trenton, but this year Grand Chief Kirby placed it in Camden, that the Sir Knights of South Jersey might have a better opportunity to attend.

He had been ill for the last few months with asthma and also an internal disease, but was not taken to his bed until Saturday morning. From the time he was placed in bed his condition steadily kept growing worse until his death late Sunday night. He is survived by a daughter and three grandchildren. His son, Joseph P. Bracken, who was married, died in this city about a year ago. Another daughter, Mrs. Emily M. Parsons, died about twelve years ago. Mr. Bracken was sixty-eight years old. He was born in Ireland and came to this country in 1883. For some time he lived with his surviving daughter at 49 East avenue.

THE ANTITOXIN BILL.

Dr. Crowther's Bill as Introduced in the Assembly Last Night—To Take Effect Immediately.

Special to the EVENING NEWS:

TRENTON, Feb. 26.—Dr. Frank Crowther, assemblyman from Middlesex county, introduced in the house last night a diphtheria antitoxin measure. It is practically the same bill as that introduced by Dr. Henry of Perth Amboy three years ago, which failed to become a law. The Crowther bill follows:

An act to provide for the free distribution of diphtheria antitoxin to the inhabitants of this state.

Whereas, the preparation known as diphtheria antitoxin has become of vital importance in the treatment and prevention of the spread of diphtheria; and by reason of the cost at which the same may be purchased, it is impracticable to use the same to any great extent; therefore,

Be it enacted by the senate and general assembly of the state of New Jersey:

1. The State Board of Health shall provide such laboratories, apparatus, materials and other requirements necessary to make or prepare and distribute diphtheria antitoxin to the inhabitants of this state.

2. The State Board of Health shall make or prepare and distribute without charge, in sufficient quantities to supply the inhabitants of this state, diphtheria antitoxin in such manner, through local boards of health, or otherwise, as the said State Board of Health shall, by rules, determine.

3. This act shall take effect immediately.
