A GENERAL REVIEW

Of the Work Accomplished by the Fiftieth Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The Fiftieth congress ended to-day at noon. At that hour it expired by limitation. The house dissolved, but the senate, continuing in existence, meets in extra session to form a new organization and to confirm or reject such nominations as the president may submit for action. The Fiftieth congress will be noted in history for four things:

First, the admission into the Union of four new states—North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Washington.

Second, for the tariff discussion which consumed so much time in both house and senate.

Third, for the creation of a new executive department.

Fourth, for the amount of filibustering that took place in the house.

Undoubtedly the most important piece of business congress disposed of was the admission of four new states to the Union. This action would have been almost an impossibility before the election which settled the question of the presidency. It was an action of great importance to the Union, adding to the strength of the general government and relieving it of a great deal of responsibility. It is of importance to the Republican party also, assuring it a good working majority in the next congress.

There were introduced in the senate in the Fiftieth congress 3999 bills and 143 joint resolutions, and 2710 reports were made from committees.

In the house there were 12,659 bills, 267 joint resolutions and 4154 reports. In the Forty-ninth congress there were introduced 3835 senate bills, 11,300 house bills, 118 senate joint resolutions, 266 house joint resolutions, and there were received from senate committees 4181 reports.

The number of presidential vetoes received by congress has been very large. The greater portion of these measures have been private pension bills, although the president has refused his consent to some legislation of a general and very important character. In the first session of the Fiftieth congress, the president returned without his approval 128 bills. Of these 103 were pension bills, 13 were claims and 6 were for public buildings. In the second session, 27 veto messages were received from the president. Of these 21 were pension vetoes, 4 of the vetoed measures were relief bills and the other bills disapproved by the president were the direct tax bill and the bill to quit title of settlers on the Des Moines river lands.

The following senate bills and resolutions have been reported from the senate committees and are still on the senate calendar: To provide for inquest under national authority; to retire judges of the circuit and district courts who are disabled to establish a United States land court; to establish a postal telegraph system; to establish a bureau of harbors and water ways; to establish a bureau of animal industry; to incorporate the Atlantic and Pacific Ship railway; to repeal the pre-emption and timber culture act; proposing an amendment to the constitution prohibiting the manufacture, etc., of alcoholic liquors; the Pacific railroad funding bill; to declare unlawful, trusts and combinations in restraint of trade and production; to extend the right of suffrage to women; to establish a national board of health, and to provide for the formation and admission of the states of Idaho and Wyoming.

Bidding Farewell.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—A great many personal friends of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland called at Secretary Fairchild's home yesterday afternoon to bid the ex-president and his wife good bye. Many tender expressions of regret at their departure from the city and good wishes for success and future happiness were uttered, and many of Mrs. Cleveland's lady friends could hardly repress tears as they shook hands and affectionately embraced her and bade her good bye. The ex-president, Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Folson and Col. Lamont and his family left Washington this morning on a special train over the Baltimore and Ohio road.

Secretary Whitney's Tribute.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Secretary Whitney took official leave of the officers and employees of the navy department yesterday afternoon and at the same time took occasion to say a few pleasant words in regard to his successor. He said: "I am personally acquainted with Judge Tracy, and consequently can truthfully congratulate you upon his selection. He is a man of probity and ability, and will make an excellent secretary of the navy. It is a good appointment."

The Cabinet Members.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—All the members of President Harrison's cabinet are in the city, with the exception of Postmaster General Wamamaker and Secretary Tusk, who will, however, be here to-day. All the members of ex-President Cleveland's cabinet have tendered their resignations to President Harrison and he accepted them. It is expected that all the new officials will assume their duties to-day.
