Excellent Acting.
A Yorkshireman having killed a pig, and not wishing to divide with his neighbors, as was the custom, said to his man (who, by the way, was a son of the Emerald Isle):
"Pat, if I give the neighbors who have given to me a piece of my pork I'll have none for myself. Can you tell me what I am to do?"
"Bedad, sir," said Pat, "it's meself that can do that same thing."

"Good," said the Yorkshireman, rubbing his hands and looking at Pat.
"Now tell me what I am to do."
"Faith, sir," said Pat, "sure, and when the crathur is cleaned just be after hanging it against the door where every mother's son of them will see it, and early in the morning, before any one is about, get up and take your pig and hide it away."

This when your neighbors come be after telling them that the pig was stole.
"Capital idea, Pat," said the Yorkshireman. "I'll do it."
So when the pig was cleaned it was hung up outside, so that the neighbors might see it. The countryman anxiously awaited the approaching night, and at last retired to bed, but not to sleep. Pat, under the cover of the darkness of the night, crept round the house and stole the pig.

The astonishment of the Yorkshireman when, at the early dawn, he arose to hide away the pig but found no pig there, can be better imagined than described. Pat came in with his "Top of the mornin' to ye," and giving him a knowing wink, said:
"Master, how about the pig?"
"Well, Pat, the pig was stolen in reality."

"Faith, and that sounds just as natural as if you had lost your pig," said Pat, with another knowing wink.
"But, you blockhead, I tell you the pig was stolen."

"Faith, and the sorrow a bit of me thought you could act so well. Just stick to that; it's natural as life."

"But," roared the now irate Yorkshireman, "I tell you the pig was stolen."

"Och!" said Pat, "stick to it, and yer nabors will believe you, and sorrow a bit will they. I didn't think you could do it so well!"

How They Gather Cocoanuts in Ceylon.
[Correspondence from the Troy Times.]
Cocoanut forests of thousands of acres are spread over the plain back of Galle. The trees run up without knot or limb from thirty to eighty feet to the branches that bear the fruit. A matured tree is only about one foot to a foot and a half in circumference at the base, and it maintains nearly this size all the way up. How is the fruit gathered at such a height? The coolies climb these trees like squirrels; they place a rope around the legs near the ankles, so as to hold them in position around the tree, and then without spur or other artificial help, they climb up with astonishing celerity, gather the fruit and drop it on the ground. A single tree produces about a dozen cocoanuts, and the coolie harvester is allowed one for gathering the fruit of each tree. These cocoanut forests are really beautiful, presenting symmetrical growth, graceful proportions, and charming shade. The fruit itself, with the inclosed milk, affords healthful food and cooling drink; it is a source of considerable revenue from export; the fibre of the shell is largely utilized for the manufacture of cloth and rope. Next to coffee, the cocoanut is the most important and valuable product of this island.

There is a strange animal scampering about the back part of the county. It has been seen several times lately, but defies description. Andy Coopersaw it a few days ago, but he declares it is unlike anything that ever came within his vision before. It is as large as a dog, resembling a goat in some respects, is very short, but broad, has thick legs and is as quick on its feet as a deer. A dog got cut up slightly the other day by getting too near to the animal. It makes a noise about half way between a whistle and a bark. We suspect this is the same thing that brought Buckhorn furnace out in battle array about a year ago, and which was afterward seen by some parties out on the John's creek road. We hope the animal may be caught, and stuffed for exhibition at the Fair. Tronton Register.

Fashionable Bonnets and Neuralgia.
A physician of a London hospital writes to the British Medical record: "There is no recognized reason why of late years neuralgia of the face and scalp should have increased so much in the female sex as compared with our own. There is no doubt that it is one of the most common of female maladies—one of the most painful and difficult of treatment. It is also a cause of much mental depression, and leads more often to habits of intemperance than any other. This growing prevalence of neuralgia may to some extent be referred to the effects of cold upon the terminal branches of the nerves distributed to the skin; and the reason why men are less subject to it than women may to a great extent, I think, be explained by the much greater protection afforded by the mode in which the former cover their heads when they are in the open air. It may be observed that the surface of the head which is actually covered in man is at least three times that which fashion allows to a woman; indeed, the points of contact between the hat or bonnet and the head in the latter are so irregular as practically to destroy any protection which might otherwise be afforded. If I were to report to the journals a case of facial neuralgia cured on the principle of protecting the lateral and frontal surface of the face as well as the superior part of the scalp, it might excite a certain amount of ridicule. I can assure you, however, that my patient considers that her case ought to be reported; for she says that, if we cannot do more for neuralgia with our prescriptions, we ought to oppose fashion when we find it prejudicial to health and productive of suffering."

The Shrewdest Yet.
A applied to B for a loan of $100. B replied: "My dear A, nothing would please me better than to oblige you, and I will do it. I haven't the money by me, but make a note and I'll indorse it, and you can get the money from the bank." Grateful A proceeded at once to write the note. "Stay," said B, "make it $200; I want $100 for myself." A did so, B indorsed the paper, the bank discounted it, and the money was divided. When the note was due B was in California, and A had to meet the payment. What he is unable to cipher out is whether he borrowed $100 of B or B borrowed $100 of him.

Mr. PATRICK DONAN, editor of the Raleigh Sentinel, "Democratic all ways and under all circumstances," thus addresses himself to his brethren in Congress, complaining of their inactivity: "A rush of billingsgate and fol-de-rol. Old womanish criminations and recriminations. A blatherskite parade of fanatical patriotism, which talks, talks eternally, and does nothing. A clipping of a few nickels from the salaries of poor-declerk clerks and working men. A sticking up of Presidential puppets and puppies. Humbug, gab, old-sore opening, folly, fail failure, and—nothing more! Democratic Congressmen! Do you know that your constituents are beginning to reproach themselves with having blundered in your election? Stop gabbling and go to work! Lay open to the light of Heaven all the dark secrets of the vast whiskey-ringer piracy; and when you have pinned the damning evidence of guilt to his skirts, impeach the great chief magistrate head-chief. Up and at them! Do something worthy of the party that elected you, or own yourselves failures and frauds, and adjourn and go home!"

ROAD NOTICE.
NOTICE is hereby given that a petition will be presented to the Commissioners of Gallia county, at their next session in March, A. D. 1876, praying for the alteration of the Gallipolis and Pomeroy State road on the following line, to-wit: Beginning at or near John R. Cole's barn in Gallipolis township; thence running in a northeasterly direction across the lands of the said John R. Cole to the lands of Edward Willis; thence in same direction across said Willis' land, and across the lands owned by the late Calvin Shepard, so as to come out and intersect the present State road at or near what is known as the Butler house, on land recently sold to John Bryan from the Shepard farm, and there to terminate. Said alteration to vary from a straight line, if necessary, to make a good road. The old road to be vacated.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,
For restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color.
A dressing is at once applied, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It soon restores faded or gray hair to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulation also can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.

Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulation also can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.
