

Women and Their Interests

LOVE'S SMALL IRONIES

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Why in the human round of things is the old jungle sadly true—"For I loved Tom and Tom loved me and Bee loved Arthur and Arthur loved me!"

Why is it one of life's pet ironies that when a perfectly worth-while and lovable man loves a girl she must pour out her affections at the trampling feet of some scoundrel?

And why, oh why, does the splendid, fine, manly man pass by the charming woman who would make him an ideal mate, and lavish his great gift of love upon a peach-blossom person with a butterfly soul?

Why? To keep the zest in life. To keep us running after the rainbow pot of gold. To keep us hoping for the ideal love and happiness that may come to us. To add to living the charm of uncertainty that life would lack if all mating were a sane and well-ordered thing where each of us married the obvious person and settled down to the utter boredom of a life like a series of blue-skied, sunlit, warm June days.

Because life is not an obvious, cut-to-measure thing; because love is not a well-ordered affair in which like seeks like; because the human soul is stimulated by "the gambler's chance" of happiness, we escape perishing of ennui.

When it seems not ironical and bitter jest, but cruel tragedy, that you should love some one to whom you feel sure that you could bring supreme blessing with your love, the while they love some worthless person, just make up your mind to these things:

Out of the sorrow of hopeless love strength, serenity, sympathy and splendid loveliness may be brought by the woman who is fine enough to rise above sorrow instead of letting it drag her down.

In the consummation of what seems perfect love the utter disappointment of life might linger.

In losing the person you think you might love—though you have nothing but your own fancy on which to build—you are getting splendid training to enable you to give the fullness of love to the right man when he comes.

It is a pretty wasteful proceeding to go on cultivating a love that is perfect love and closing your eyes to the things that might satisfy you if you gave them a chance.

But when you get all through philosophizing there remains the supreme "WHY?" WHY—if I am given the power of living, cannot I attract love? asks one lonely heart. Why—if I know I could love a man unselfishly and strongly must he waste his affection on someone else who does not care for him any more than he does for me? pleads another.

Humanity has not quite worked out the answer.

It would be much more efficient to turn your love where it is desired. It may be wiser to give when you are sure of receiving in return. It might be pleasanter if the power loving isolated the power of attracting love.

But as long as human nature remains human nature, a rose will be lovelier because it does not live forever and because its fragrance is elusive and not to be reproduced. The beauty of a sunset is enhanced by the fact that it must soon fade. Sunshine is more glorious because the storm-clouds are capable of blotting it out in a short time.

The elusive, the unattainable, the inaccessible, charm our hearts. We all long for distant moons and cool stars when grate fires and electric lights are near at hand.

And in life's little ironies lie the flavor of existence. So in the trickiness of love lies much of love's hold upon our imaginations.

Had we never loved so blindly—we had never loved so kindly, to rearrange an old quotation.

It is love's elusiveness and mystery that make life eternally charming.

FRANK C. SITES, Postmaster.

Preparations are being made in this city for an unparalleled rush of Christmas mail. Frank C. Sites, postmaster, expects that his office will handle daily 3,000 sacks of Christmas mail. To accommodate the rush the system of handling the general mail has been rearranged. The Harrisburg office will use the Donaldson store apartment, 308 South Second street, as a receiving station for parcel post matter exclusively. This parcel post office will likely open next Thursday.

STEAL GOODS FROM THE POLICE STATION

Recovered Goods Disappear Again From Detectives' Room; Want Storage Closets

When Colonel Joseph B. Hutchison makes out his annual budget for next year, he will ask for funds to provide two closets. One closet will be for taking care of stolen goods and the other for the keeping of Bertillon records.

When the articles found at the home of A. J. Silks, the alleged shoplifter, were gathered up yesterday, it is said, several were missing. The stolen goods had been stored in the detectives' room. This room is used as a detention room for small boys and by persons who are arrested and held for identification.

Among the goods recovered from Silks were a dozen or more bottles of perfume and a pair of manicure scissors. Yesterday one bottle of perfume and the manicure scissors were missed.

In all, $55.25 worth of goods found in Silks' room have been identified by the following: William S. Tullis, stationer; John Garland, druggist; Harrisburg Rubber Company; Nathan Gross, North Sixth street; Robert V. Fairlamb, cigars; E. Z. Gross, John P. Ensminger, and Henry Reuser, druggists. Silks was held for court.

REGISTERED CATTLE KILLED

Herd of Holsteins Valued at $3,495 Condemned

Special to The Telegraph
Mechanicsburg, Pa., Dec. 8.—Thirty-four head of registered Holstein cattle, which were afflicted with the foot and mouth disease, were killed at the farm of G. Lawrence Strook, in Monroe township about one mile south of Mechanicsburg. Dr. George Farnon and Dr. J. E. Eadie, veterinarians, representing the United States government, superintended the work of slaughtering. The cattle were appraised at the sum of $3,495, which will be paid to Mr. Strook. The farm cannot be re-occupied so long as Cumberland county is under quarantine.

CONSULT ORDERED BY COURT IN LEBANON VACCINATION CASE

Special to The Telegraph
Lebanon, Pa., Dec. 8.—Judge Charles V. Henry in the common pleas court here granted a motion for a compulsory consult in the case in which Health Officer E. H. Gingrich was sued for $10,000 damages by Oscar K. Peffer, who made the allegation that Gingrich had forcibly vaccinated Peffer's minor daughter, Beatrice Peffer, during the smallest epidemic here a year ago. The case grew out of the vaccination of all the girls at the Lebanon paper box plant last July.

FINGER CUT OFF

Special to The Telegraph
Dillsburg, Pa., Dec. 8.—David Wagner had the index finger of his left hand cut off in an odd manner. Mr. Wagner was assisting to move a heavy iron trough, which fell back on his finger, cutting it off back of the second joint over the edge of a drain pipe, the end of the finger dropping into the pipe.

Makes Stubborn Coughs Vanish in a Hurry

Surprisingly Good Cough Syrup Easily and Cheaply Made at Home

If some one in your family has an obstinate cough, a sore throat or chest cold that has been hanging on and refuses to yield to treatment, get from any drug store 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex and make it into a pint of cough syrup, and watch the cough disappear.

Pour the 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 54 cents, and it gives you a fine, family supply of a most effective remedy, at a saving of $2. A day's use will usually overcome a hard cough. Easily prepared in 5 minutes—full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste. Children like it.

It's really remarkable how promptly and easily it loosens the dry, hoarse or light cough and heals the inflamed membranes in a single day. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. A splendid remedy for bronchitis, winter coughs, bronchial asthma and whooping cough.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in gualiac, which is pine healing to the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction goes with this preparation of money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

FOLLOW MAIL RULES TO AVOID GIFT LOSS

Postmaster Sites Expects to Handle 3,000 Sacks of Christmas Mail Daily

RULES FOR CHRISTMAS MAIL

Mail your parcels early. Christmas stamps allowed. Caution—"Do not open until Christmas" allowed on parcels. Written or printed inscriptions, "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year" or "With best wishes," may be inserted in parcels. Simple dedicatory inscriptions not of personal nature permitted on fly leaves of booklets. Other written additions or inscriptions subject parcel to letter postage. Written communications to accompany parcels must be inclosed in envelope, affixed with first-class postage and securely tied to outside of the parcel. Name and address of sender should be plainly written on cover of package and also included in packages. Books or sets of books weighing more than eight ounces may be sent by parcel post; those weighing eight ounces or less must be sent third class—1 cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof. Wrap every parcel securely with strong paper and stout cord. Umbrellas, canes and golf sticks must be reinforced by strips of wood to prevent breaking. Put candies and flowers in strong, suitable, well-tied boxes. Points and edges of sharp-pointed tools or instruments must be protected. Parcels improperly or inefficiently wrapped will not be accepted at post offices for transmission. Mark breakable article "fragile." Mark food "perishable."

Don't blame Uncle Sam in every case of a lost Christmas package! Follow the rules laid down and you not only will insure the delivery of all gifts sent through the mails, but will also relieve the overworked lieutenants of Santa Claus—the postal employees. Every year hundreds of thousands of Christmas packages are lost in the mails through improper addressing, insufficient postage or careless wrapping. Postmaster General Bursleson in Washington and the army of postmasters over the country are issuing Christmas mail rules to guide gift-senders. Do your part and the postal authorities will do theirs.

Careless addressing and insecure wrapping of packages are two of the greatest causes of lost gifts. The post offices are annually confronted with the problem of disposing of thousands of parcels that have lost their tags or outer coverings and have nothing to identify either the addressee or sender.

But aside from the question of the delivery of gifts there is the matter of consideration for the mail man. The most appreciated Christmas gift that the public can give him is aid in his work. Early shopping not only aids the girls behind the counter, but the man who handles the mail as well. From now until after New Year's he will be the most overworked individual in the country, and the Yankee for him is often nothing short of a nightmare.

The parcel post people stand in the front ranks of the losers. Their usual Christmas work, heavy enough in itself, is rendered almost beyond human possibility by the tardy sending of packages. Every parcel should be shipped at least three days ahead of time if it is to be in the hands of the addressee by Christmas Eve. So "shop early and send early," so that on Christmas morning the mailman in the office and the carrier who rings your doorbell can say "Merry Christmas" with a ring of truth.

To Put On Flesh And Increase Weight

A Physician's Advice
Most thin people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all a matter of what is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Thin folks stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just about the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "stay there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition I always recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is a scientific combination of six of the most effective and powerful flesh building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by Geo. A. Gargas and other good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.—Advertisement.
