Specialization
at Porter's

The best thought, energy and care go into the making of our young men's suits. These are all specialized garments—have their own smart style, character and individuality. But you'll observe that they stop short of dandyism.

The young man who is fitted here for the first time may be attracted by style, but it's quality that will hold him.

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN WILL ATTRACT REUNION VISITORS

Chattanooga, March 21.—(Special).—It has been said that the richest asset that Chattanooga has is historic Lookout mountain, and the saying is true. Lookout mountain is really a beauty spot in a land where scenic beauty abounds. And while this scenic beauty cannot be excelled anywhere on earth, Lookout mountain is also probably the most historic eminence in the world. It bears the marks of many wars and carries on its tablets the history of two races of people.

Lookout mountain was first a habitation of the Indians, as Indian relics gathered on its summit and sides clearly show. The Tennessee river got its name from the Indians. The state of Tennessee was named after the river. In the Indian tongue the name signifies spoon. Some historians contend that Indians named the river from a view they had of the stream from the point of Lookout mountain.

The view from the point of Lookout mountain is certainly one of the finest in America. Many people who have traveled over the world declare that there is nothing so good in scenic beauty in all Europe. Quite a number of European potentates and geniuses have visited Lookout mountain and their verdict is unanimous that the view from Umbrella rock on the highest point of the mountain is unequalled.

Looking to the west from the point of the mountain the spectator sees a blue line of mountains of almost equal altitude. These are Raccoon and Sand mountains in Tennessee and Alabama. Following the blue line of these mountains to the north the vision crosses the Tennessee river, takes in Moccasin bend and enjoys Walden's ridge, the far famed spur of the Cumberland. This mountain towers 2500 feet above the level of the sea and presents to the eye as fine a picture of mountain scenery as can well be imagined. Off to the east a low line of hills, across the valley is seen. This line of hills in Missionary ridge, where one of the most sanguinary battles of the civil war was fought. Following this ridge to the south, monuments may be plainly seen of a clear day on the Chickamauga battlefield, while away to the east, a hundred miles on a straight line, tower the peaks of the Great Smokies, and farther still the peaks of the Blue Ridge mountain. If the atmospheric conditions are perfect, the tourist on top of Lookout mountain can see into a half dozen states. It is as natural that Chattanooga should treasure Lookout mountain as a point of great interest and one of the richest assets of the region.

QUININE AND IRON—THE MOST EFFECTUAL GENERAL TONIC

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic Combines Both in Tasteless Form. The Quinine Drives Out Malaria and the Iron Builds Up the System. For Adults and Children.

You know what you are taking when you take GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC, recognized for 30 years throughout the South as the standard Malaria, Chill and Fever Remedy and General Strengthening Tonic. It is as strong as the strongest bitter tonic, but you do not taste the bitter, because the ingredients do not dissolve in the mouth but do dissolve readily in the acids of the stomach. Guaranteed by your Druggist. We mean it. 50c.

There is Only One "BROMO QUININE" That is LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for signature of E. W. GROVE on every box. Cures a Cold in One Day, 25c.

The famous battle of Lookout mountain, known as the "Battle Above the Clouds," was the first skirmish in the fighting around Chattanooga in September, 1863. This battle was fought on a bench of the mountain some distance below the summit. The conflict raged with the greatest energy around the Cravens house. This house is in the center of the battlefield and is preserved today in practically its original form. Several handsome monuments have been erected on this field.

The Confederates to the number of 1500 to 2500 held the position and were engaged by the federals, 10,000 strong, as the latter came around the point of the mountain from the west. During the battle a cloud passed over the top of the mountain, enveloping the combatants and from this incident the engagement has been since known as the "Battle Above the Clouds."

No fighting took place on top of the mountain. A detachment of federals ascended the top of the mountain and the Confederates had retreated into Georgia. Lookout mountain is reached from the city of Chattanooga by trolley line to St. Elmo, and from there a cable car to the top of the mountain by the best incline railway in the world.

This incline is constructed on a straight line from the base to the summit and has two commodious and handsome cars drawn by two steel cables. Electric power is used and modern safety appliances have been installed to guard against accidents. However, in its more than 20 years of operation this incline road has had no serious accident. There is an electric line on top of the mountain that carries the tourist to all points of interest.

The federal government has erected the point of Lookout mountain into a national park or reservation. The state of New York has erected in the midst of this park a handsome monument that cost more than $100,000. Historical tablets are conveniently placed, upon which the visitor may read the history of Lookout mountain in war. A bill is pending in congress authorizing the building of a suitable memorial hall or lodge in Point Park, as this reservation is known in the archives of the war department and will be passed by congress at the next session.

Lookout mountain will, of course, be a point of much interest to the veterans when they assemble here in their twenty-third reunion, May 27-29, and in order to supply ample transportation facilities a trolley line is being constructed to the top of the mountain which will be completed for the reunion. This new line, with the incline railway, will satisfactorily handle all of the traffic that the reunion brings to Chattanooga.

TARIFF REFORM IS NOT WORKING BIG MONEY FOR TRUSTERS

What They Want to Know
Now Is McReynolds' Attitude
Toward Trusts

LITTLE INTIMATION OF PROBABLE COURSE

Understood That He Is Not Entirely
Satisfied With Way Standard Oil
Has Complied With Court's
Dissolution Order

By C. E. STEWART
Washington, March 21.—(Special).—The question of tariff reform has been discounted far in advance by those whom it will affect. They have seen the handwriting on the wall for several years and have been making the most of the opportunities left them, and the slight reprieve they gained by the failure of the Taft administration to carry out the programme it promised before it was given the reins of government.

It is no longer dreaded; the country is prepared for it. The important thing in the Wilson administration to the "interests" is not so much what will be done with the tariff—they are ready for the tariff dose—but what is going to be the attitude of the administration toward the trusts. What kind of a trust buster is McReynolds going to prove? Is he going to hunt in the open with a brass band accompaniment or is he going gunning for the trespassers on the anti-trust laws with a pair of gum shoes on.

No Stranger to Interests
Mr. McReynolds is no stranger to the "interests." He took an active part in the government suit for the dissolution of the Tobacco trust and other cases, being appointed a special attorney for the government. His ability as a lawyer is well known, but it is not so well known just how active he is going to become in probing into the affairs of the big corporations of the United States and holding up their acts in the light of publicity wherever he may believe there is reason for doing so.

It is already hinted that he is not altogether satisfied with the manner in which the Standard Oil company has conducted its affairs since it was ordered dissolved by the United States supreme court, and that he is considering even now the feasibility of bringing action against them for contempt because they have not obeyed the mandates of the decree handed down in their case. Further, it is stated that he is inclined to reopen the Tobacco cases much for the same reasons.

The enormous advance in the price of "Standard Oil" since the government suit and the company was ordered dissolved, considered as a lawyer, is well known, but it is not so well known just how active he is going to become in probing into the affairs of the big corporations of the United States and holding up their acts in the light of publicity wherever he may believe there is reason for doing so.

The Tobacco Decree
It is a matter of record that the new Attorney General while acting for the government in the Tobacco cases never did approve of the decree agreed upon by the then Attorney General, Sherman, and the Tobacco trust. Mr. McReynolds at that time and has since voiced his disapproval of the decree, and being aware of the position of chief trust buster to Uncle Sam. At any rate, it is safe to say that the acts of both the Standard Oil people and the Tobacco trust will be kept under the eye of the Attorney General, and if they want to avoid trouble it would be well for them to show a lively disposition to follow to the letter the intent and purpose of the orders of the supreme court in their cases.

So far the Attorney General declines to discuss these two cases. He admits, however, that recommendations have been made to him to bring action against both, but that he has not yet had the time to go into the matter thoroughly.

The Pacific Case
Mr. McReynolds gave his full approval to the plan of dissolution agreed upon by former Attorney General Wickham and the Pacific coast states, the Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Central Pacific railroads. This was one of the last acts of the former Attorney General, and it was thought that this important matter involving one of the greatest railroad systems of the country was finally settled, but unfortunately at the last moment the California railroad commission interposed objections and obtained an injunction against the carrying out of the plan, and now the entire matter must be threshed out, or a new plan acceptable to the California commission evolved.

The syndicate for the underwriting of the securities of the deal organized by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of New York expired last Saturday night, and the officials of these several roads must again take up the task of separating their holdings in a manner that will meet the approval of the Attorney General and others interested with as little loss to their stockholders as possible.

Left Much to Be Done
Attorney General Wickham was fairly active during his administration of the office, and yet in the minds of many he left much to be done. His suit against the beef trust was a failure, and ended in humiliating defeat for the government, which was charged to the deficiencies of the Sherman anti-trust law, under which it was brought. It is believed by others that his suit against the United States steel corporation, now pending, will fail, and that it was unwise to begin with Representative Stanley, who was chairman of the committee of the last Congress which undertook an investigation of the corporation, now has one or two bills, which are to receive the attention of the judiciary committee, which their author believes will remedy all the defects of the Sherman law, and put it in the power of the government to regulate, not only the Steel corporation, but other big corporations of the country, and will place a permanent prohibition on interlocking directorates, the principal evil according to our national legislators, in the commercial life of the country.

Attorney General McReynolds has not yet indicated what his policy will be. As a result there are many anxious big, little and middle sized trusts in the country, "good trusts" and "bad trusts," all waiting with faces turned inquiringly toward the department of justice wondering just what is going to happen to them under a "progressive" administration, and not knowing whether to burst into applause, or view with alarm.

GREENVILLE AIDS STRICKEN TOWN

Georgiana Also Raises Fund to Help Flood Sufferers
at Garland

Greenville, March 21.—(Special).—A petition was circulated in Greenville for a fund to aid the sufferers at Garland on account of the recent high waters that caused serious damage to that town. The citizens contributed very liberally. A fund was also raised in Georgiana.

Butler county bridge superintendent, John Berry, stated that the heavy rains of last week damaged the Butler county bridges to the amount of $500.

Regular trains are now running through Greenville, with just a few hours late.

The Greenville public schools are closed for today and Friday. The faculty attending the educational convention at Montgomery.

Eight cars of radishes have been shipped from Greenville during the last two weeks. The crop has been damaged 33-1-1 per cent on account of the recent rains and high waters.

BURNETT READY TO RECEIVE PETITIONS

Seriously Considering Primary at Gadsden to Decide Postmastership

Gadsden, March 20.—Congressman Burnett states that he now is ready to receive petitions from candidates for the Gadsden postoffice. He will review them at his leisure. He is seriously considering the plan of holding a democratic primary to decide the matter, but expects to make no announcement until after a conference with the officials at Washington as to the manner in which it should be conducted, if it be held. There is a large number of prominent men in the race for the office.

TWO OPPOSED TO AN EXTRA SESSION

Etowah and Cherokee Representatives Believe Call
Would Be Unwise

Gadsden, March 21.—(Special).—That nothing of much importance could be accomplished at this time by an extra session of the legislature seems to be the opinion of Representative A. B. Brindley of Etowah county and Representative W. H. Lumpkin of Cherokee county. Mr. Brindley says that the session would be very expensive and would require about all the funds which could be raised by additional legislation.

Landmark Removed
Etowah, March 21.—(Special).—The old Fraternal hall that has stood on the corner of Main and Fort William street for many years has been torn down and a dwelling will be erected in its stead.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN AND AROUND THE TRI-CITIES

Florence, March 21.—(Special).—The Juvenile City Beautiful club has undertaken the stupendous task of beautifying the city park. It has met with the encouragement it deserves, as the mayor has kindly tendered the city prisoners to do the work of grading and plowing, and the Rev. C. L. Price of the Episcopal church offered his services as landscape gardener. Mrs. E. L. Bickley has charge of the "City Beautiful" and under her efficient guidance the work is being pushed rapidly.

The circuit court is dealing out justice to all the delinquents in Lauderdale county this week and the courthouse is the busiest place in town.

The completion of the organization of the state commandery of the Golden Cross at Florence was closed with a banquet, presided over by Judge James F. Koonce. Many bright and witty toasts were given which caused much merriment. All the delegates returned to their homes last night much pleased with the courteous treatment they were accorded by the citizens of Florence.

On Sunday night the celebrated lecturer from Richmond, Va., Dr. Cameron Johnson, will give a stereoscopic lecture in the Presbyterian church. He has visited Asia, Japan and India as a missionary and will give interesting views of the work done by all churches in those fields of mission work.

Dr. F. A. Johnson, chairman of the committee of "Oral Hygiene" for the state dental association, delivered an address to the students of the normal college.

The city council of Florence voted on paving Military avenue and the measure was carried.

The winter term has just closed at the Florence State Normal college, and it is gratifying to the administration that the work is far better than any preceding term, and the grades of pupils show marked improvement on all lines. The enrollment last year, including the summer school, was 450. At this time it has reached 570.

Sheffield, March 20.—(Special).—The commissioners met in regular monthly session on yesterday. The showing was gratifying as the clerk stated that the city collections since last October were as much as the entire year preceding. Taxes alone registered as much as the entire of last year.

The Horace K. Turner collection of pictures are on exhibition today at the Habber building, just below the Spielberger store. An admission of 10 cents is being charged and the proceeds devoted to purchasing pictures for the public school in Sheffield.

The Sheffield hotel has placed the grill room under the management of H. T. Smylie of Jackson, Miss. It has been refitted in the most elaborate manner.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Elliott left today for El Paso, Tex. They will make Texas their future home or until Mr. Elliott's health improves.

The Woman's Christian union has recently been organized in Sheffield and will hold their initial meeting next Sunday afternoon in the parlors of the First Methodist church. Mrs. Charles T. Polk has been elected leader for the coming year.

NEW YORK FACES AN ICE FAMINE

New York, March 21.—New York city is facing the worst ice famine in 10 years in the opinion of Wesley M. Oler, president of the Knickerbocker Ice company. With the first day of spring the harvesting season ended today.

"There is a total of 1,151,000 tons on hand for the summer," said Mr. Oler. "Last year the consumption in New York alone was 2,220,000 tons."

GOVERNOR BREWER BACK FROM TRIP

Files Answer to Declaration of Engineer Shackleford
in His $100,000 Suit

Jackson, Miss., March 21.—(Special).—Governor Brewer has returned from Memphis where he went to file an answer to the declaration of Chief Engineer Shackleford in his suit for $100,000 damages, and while he does not seem to be losing any sleep over the case, he is necessarily worried over having to attend court in another state, and which, according to his idea of the law, and those of his attorneys, has no jurisdiction. He has, therefore, filed a plea in abatement, urging that the Tennessee courts have no jurisdiction, and is confident the courts will be determined when the question is presented next Saturday week.

The governor was very appreciative of the attitude of several of the foremost attorneys of the Memphis bar who volunteered their services to defend him in this suit.

REMAINS ARE TAKEN WEST FOR CREMATION

Body of W. F. Throckmorton Buried in Sheffield Last Sunday Removed to St. Louis

Sheffield, March 21.—(Special).—The remains of W. F. Throckmorton, who died last Sunday and was interred on Monday afternoon, were disinterred yesterday by his son, who had the body shipped to St. Louis for cremation. Mr. Throckmorton had resided in Sheffield for several years, and had a small button factory. It was with difficulty that his relatives were located, and the body was interred before his son reached Sheffield.
