

HOW GERMAN EFFICIENCY DEALS WITH THE CHILDREN OF THE WAR

Life Is a Pageant and a Play to These Children in Berlin Whose Fathers Are at the Front.

Toys Abound and the "Wasser-Wagen" Travels About the Playrooms Which the Government Provides for the War Orphans.

The Mothers and Babies of France Are All Numbered by Their German Captors, and by Their Numerals Their Lives Are Arranged.

German Boys Have the Boy Scout Fever, and Very Active They Are in Their Trench Digging and All the Operations of Mimic Sieges and Play Marches.

A Group of Peasants Returning to Their Homes After the War Has Desolated the Familiar Scenes.

In Groups, at Appointed Places, with Nurses in Charge, Berlin's Soldier Children Are Fed.
