NASHVILLE:

SUNDAY MORNING, NOV. 6, 1853.

☞ Rev. J. B. Ferguson will preach at the Christian Church this morning at the usual hour.

☞ The subject of the Lecture at the Catholic Church this afternoon will be: The Church, The Interpreter of the Holy Scriptures.

☞ We are indebted to Messrs. W. T. Berry & Co., for copies of Putnam and Harper for November. These Nos. are very interesting.

BUILDING ASSOCIATIONS.

We copy a second article to-day from the Memphis Appeal, in continuation of the subject commenced Friday:

Building and Loan Associations.—In our last issue we hinted briefly at the history, uses and mode of operation of these associations. Our purpose this morning is to allude to the stimulus which they give to mechanical enterprise, as well as to economy and thrift among the humbler classes of society, regarding these societies in the light of saving institutions. We have said, and experience proves, that these societies wind up, on an average, at the end of six years; but it should be borne in mind that they never wind up until they can pay two hundred dollars on each share; so that the apprentice or laboring man who subscribes one share, ($1) at the end of the six years will draw out two hundred dollars. This amount is within the power and capacity of every man in the community. He saves and pays into the Association one dollar per month for six years, which is $72. At the end of that time he draws out, not only his monthly savings of one dollar, with six per cent interest, but he actually draws out two hundred dollars—more than fifty per cent on the amount he pays in. This shows the advantage to the mere stockholders; we yesterday showed the advantage of such societies to those who desire to procure money for investment.

But further: There are but few laboring men in community that instead of one, could not afford to pay into the Association five dollars per month, which is sixty dollars per annum or three hundred and sixty dollars for the six years, at the end of which time he would be allowed to draw, not for this amount only with simple interest, but for one thousand dollars, this being two hundred dollars for each share subscribed. As a mere savings institution then, these Associations are worthy the encouragement and support of the community, and the protection of the Legislature. Every man or even every apprentice boy who is able to pay in one dollar per month, is entitled to become a member and enjoy the benefits of the Association, which acts and operates upon the principal of mutual benefit: a benefit to the mere stockholder in the shape of a saving bank, and a benefit to the man who wishes to invest in real estate in the shape of a moneyed institution which will afford him the means at a rate not exceeding six per cent per annum for purchasing him a home for himself and family. We cannot conceive of any higher recommendation for the fostering and encouraging of such institutions.

But as a stimulus to mechanical enterprise—what shall we say of these societies? We have shown that every thrifty mechanic, by availing himself of their benefits, may become his own landlord by an outlay for six years equal to what he would otherwise pay solely for rent.

If this is not a sufficient stimulus, we do not know what further we could offer. But of this we are well assured, that the establishment of only one As ociation of this character in Memphis, would give such an impulse to mechanical enterprise in our city, as would at once lead to an enhancement of value in all the real estate contiguous to the city of the bluffs. With these Associations, poverty finds itself enabled to level itself up with the rest of the busy world, and all are enabled to go on, hand in hand, to thrift and affluence. But more anon.

It is proper that we should acknowledge our indebtedness to the merits of these Associations to Dr. J. P. Wallace, of Mississippi, who is familiar with the workings of the Association in Charleston and other Southern cities, and who is moreover, a warm advocate of their general use and establishment throughout the country.

In our Monday morning's paper, we shall refer to the fact again, setting forth, to the best of our judgment and information, the benefit of such institutions to the public at large.

Dr. Morse's Invigorating Cordial.
