"But I was not aware that there was so very, large a sum."
"The letter which accompanied my portion of the map, which, by the way, came from my greatgrandfather, who was in your navy as a very young man—"Mino also," interjected the governor. "I know it; that is how I came to be aware of the fact that you had the other half. Your greatgran father and mine were midehipmen about the British 90-gun ship-of-the-line Formidable, Rodney's flagship in these waters, in 1872. How they cume across this map I do not know, but I have suspicions that as young lads of that date they were not over-particular as to what they took from a native. Their elders were not, and why should the boys not afollow their example?"

not, and why should the boys not afollow their example?"

"Quite so, quite so. My piece of the map came down with my grandfather's effects, and simply had a larger piece of paper attached to it, which read: "Do not part with this. Some day it will be of great value."

"It is curious that your greatgrandfather was not so careful as mine, but mine was Scotch and yours was English—thah may account for the difference."

ence,"
"It may, But if I may ask, what does it amount to?"
"Amount to? Have you that plece with you? But of course you have, now
I think of it."

"Come," continued Brent, after admin-ing this shot. "let us go to my cab-in. I have something to say to you in private."

hind Brent, he became aware of the presence of a beautiful girl, who rose from the table at which she was writing whon stairs.

"A charming young woman!" exclaim ed Fitzmorris as she left.

"Yes, yes," was the absent minded reply. "Looks like her mother, I believe."
"You believe? I do not quite follow you. Do you not know?"
"No to tell you the truth, I do not.

"No to tell you the truth, I do not. I have been married four times and I cannot for the life of me remember to which one this daughter belongs. She is the only child that I have and I spoil her most cheerfully. But I cannot quite place her mother. My life, you see, has been ruther exciting and varied and whether this girl was the daughter of the wife that lived in New Orleans, or one that was in Valparaiso, I should not dare to say."

was in varieties, it should not say, "But you know how old she is, and you know when your wife died?"
"Ah, If I did know, but I am not at all sure that they are all dead!"
"All are! Why, man, do you mean to say that you had more than one at a time?"

"Why, of course! Have you not heard

"Why, of course! Have you not heard the saying that a sallor has a wife in every port. I am a great believer in keeping up the truthfulness of those old proverbs, which are so fast growing into disuse, so I made up my mind when quite a young man that I would try and live up to the precepts of such as I could and I commenced with that one. I have always, even with my roving habits, had a great desire for the pleasures of a home life, in fact the longing is so irresistible at times that I have t ohave them and It was much more convenient to have and it was much more convonient to have four homes to go to as one might be miles or more to one. You see my point?"

"Yes, I never parted with it after it was given me by my father. Those were "Very well; here is my portion. Put yours into that torn space and see how ently it his."

"It does indeed!"
"There, you see is the longitude sixty-

the governor entered the cabin be

Aggregate amount of all liabilities, including paid up capital atoms, and net $2,872,701 84

Companies. Total deduction. St. 200. St

Dominion of Canada; Province of Ontario; County of York—48:
Sworn to January 23, 1903, before W. B. RAYMOND, Notary Public.

JULIUS STRAUS & SON, Agents.

1013 East Main Street.

J. J. KENNY, Vice-President.

BUSINESS IN THE STATE OF VIRGINIA DURING THE YEAR.

Aggregate amount of receipts actually received during the year in cash ....... $2,851,058 70 DISBURSEMENTS DURING THE YEAR. Marine and

Gross premiums and bills unpaid at close of last year.... $ 256,802 00 $100.855 84

BRENT, OF THE BADGER

THE KIDNAFPING OF A GOVERNOR GENERAL.

A ROMANCE.

Copyright By PHILIP LITTLE

"These rooms are insufferably hot," romarked Captain John Brent, smuggler by profession, as he said to his intimate friend, but called by his enemies, and those who had suffered from his numerous initualities, a pirate plain and simple. He strede up and down the two rooms which were his temporary quarters during his confinement. Yes, sad to relate though it is, Captain Brent was confined in durance vile and did not like it. "I have no doubt that they are hot," said a short stout man who sat leaning bad in a long arm chair near one of the windows looking out upon the courtyard of the governor's palace which stood over opposite.

"It seems to me, however, if you will permit me to make a suggestion, that they are not as hot as the place that you are going to!"

He chuckled asthmatically, and then became prefernaturally grave at the usly expression that came into the other's face. remarked Captain John Brent, smuggler

"Really! I never could understand the British idea of humor before. If I amuse you it seems to me that you are making a mighty poor return in hang ling me, to say nothing of the fact that you are cutting off your supply so to speak, and I judge that you don't have much fun here, if I afford you amusement under the pleasant conditions." The nide-de-camp, with the usual im perturbability of his nation saw nothing to cause a smile, and gazed stolidly at the prisoner.

"But you have not answered my queenion. When is the pleasant little cermony, in which I seem destined to take a prominent part, to come off? At what nour do you puil the string?"
The officer took his watch from his occket and looked at it casually. Then impling to his feet, he cried:
"Why pless my soul! it is almost 7 o'clock. His excellency will have finshed his coffee in a few minutes and he axeculion takes place immediately ifter that."

execution takes place immediately r that."

Ou are horribly abrupt, Col, MerIt strikes me that you might at give a man some slight warning, ave not even time to change my hes, or rather to dress, and I do obto being sent into eternity in a suit blue and white striped pajamas! I be over-particular, but first aprances are always the most impressand one never knows whom one may t on going to a strange place."
iy dear Captain you have plenty of to dress. We have to parade the ps to receive his excellency. You are heard of a British Governor genbeing present at affairs of this sort out troops, my dear sir, and the

CH.PTER II.

nat donkey makes me feel as though puld like to put a builet through 'growled the captain, as he walked and down his rooms. "Confound the rnor and general and his troops, there is no use in grumbling about

ed out into the hallway which ran n front to rear of the one-story build-which served as his prison, and down the stone corridor tramped the sentry.

"Stupid work that," said Brent, as he "Stupid work that," said Brent, as he smiled cheerfully at the man. I could give you better employment and four times the wages if you were on my beat, and I was, too," he added with a knowing look.

The man appeared to notice nothing, but he halted opposite to where the pirate stood.

"Why didn't you say so hefore? It's too late now," and then he marched stolidly on.

B-rrrrr-brrrrrr-rub-a-dub-rub-a-d ub, and Brent could not resist the temptation to rush to the window to see the troops as they marched into the hot and dusty square.

and I will give my word that I will make no attempt."

And so he had gone forth with his broad-brimmed felt hat upon his head, and his dark bright eyes looking carelessly to right and left as he walked

lessly to right and left as no warred bravely along.
Out into the center of the sun-dried and glaring square marched the little band. Past all the troops, first from left to right, so that all might view the noted Captain Brent.

"Just as if I was a confounded dancing bear," grumbled he, half aloud, and the men at his side could not suppress a grin.

lows, and mounts the steps to the plat-form, looking down with a high and mighty air on the crowd of soldiery beow. A chaplain of the church stands the departing soul.

"Thank you kindly, reverend sir," says "Thank you kindly, reverend sir," says Brent, "but as I do not know where I am going, nor do you, it will be impossible for you to give me a proper inroduction. Besides' I have never been inside of one of your houses of worship since I was old enough to do as I pleased, and I will not die a hypocrite, nor will I cry mercy for my sins now that it is of late. I thank you kindly, for I know that it is well meant, but it is useless."

that it is well meant, but it is useless."

The chapiain stepped back somewhat nonplussed at such unexpected logic.

Brent turned and looked down at the adjutant who stood just below him.

"How long have we to wait here?" he asked. "It is dreadfully hot, and I do not see any cause for delay now that I am here!"

"We are waiting for the presence of his excellency the governor general," was the reply, "without whom no ceremony can take place."

"Well, why does he not come? He has had warning enough. I do not think that it is right or proper for one great man, even though he be in authority, to keep another waiting. It does not seem to me courteous, especially under the circumstances."

The soldlers who heard him found it impossible to repress a smile, and even the rigid adjutant twitched about the impossible to repress a smile, and even the rigid adjutant twitched about the Suddenly a figure in full uniform, with

Suddenly a figure in full uniform, with all white plume in his chapeau, hurried down the steps of the palace, and approached the colonel.

"I beg your pardon, Colonel Mercer."

"Good heavens!" exclaimed the colonel, "doesn't the man know that I cannot receive any official communications except through my adjutant?"

But the personage was not to be put off off.

"Colonel Mercer, I regret to inform you that the ceremony cannot go on. The governor general is not in the palace."

"Not in the palace?" cried the colonel, startled out of his usual dignity. "Then startled out of his usual dignity. "Then where is he?"

"We do not know, sir. His bed has been slept in, but seems to have been left hurriedly, and we cannot find any trace of his excellency!"

"This is most unpleasant," murmured the commanding officer.

"That depends on how you look at it," said Brent to himself.

At this moment six sallors, armed with rifles and escorting an officer in uniform, with a hat for all the world like Brent's appeared at the gateway which led to the palace yard. He carried a paper in his hand and approached the colonel without the slightest hesitation.

led to the palace yard. He carried a paper in his hand and approached the colonel without the slightest hesitation.

"CHAPTER IV.

"Colonel Mercer?" he asked, as he halted a faw feet from the latter officer.
"I am that person," was the reply of that rather nonplussed individual.
"I am instructed by Governor Fitzmorris to give you this paper, which he said would explain itself. That is, he added, that it would do so as far as he was able to make it.
"He looked up at Captain Brent and gave him an almost imperceptible wink. The demeanor of the prisoner at once changed from a somewhat discontented frame of mind at the lack of haste on the part of his captors to one of absolute indifference to the outcome.

In the meantime Colonel Mercer was reading the paper which had been handed him with a countenance at once indicative of extreme surprise and a certain proportion of fear.
"This is evidently genuine." he said proportion of fear.

"This is evidently genuine," he said "This is evidently gentine," he said in a somewhat shaky voice, as he handed it to the officer with the white-plumed chapeau, who was the lord chamberlain. The latter took the document and quickly ran it over, surprise growing more and more plain in his face as he recorded.

proceeded.

"O, this is terrible!" he murmured.

"Most unfortunate error. You will of course release the prisoner at once with all the necessary apologies, Colonel Mercer."

all the necessary apologies, Colonel Mercer."

"My province does not go beyond releasing him, Sir William. The apology must come from either you or his excellency the governor general. I simply constitute the military gaard." He smiled triumphantly at the other as he took the paper. Then proceeding to the scaffold and mounting it he said to Captain Brent:

"My dear sir, there appears to have been some very unfortunate error committed in taking you into custody. For that, I am thankful to say, I am not responsible. My painful duty is now over, and I have the pleasant one of reading you the following communication from his excellency Lord Goorge Fitzmorris, governor general of the island."

"Regretting that he cannot be present at the hanging?" asked Brent with a sar-castle smile.

contrabrand goods into this island. I find that it is not Capital John Brent that has done this, but Capital Jonathan Brent, who is, I am informed, quite a different person. (It is necessary to add that all this information was received by his excellency with the barrel of a regulation navy revolver pointed across the cabin table of the Badger, and the very determined face of the first officer of that vessel directly behind it.)

"I therefore direct," continued the paper, "that you do immediately upon receipt of this, set him at liberty and provide him with a suitable escort to the dock, where he will take boat for this vessel.

Fitzmortis."

CHAPTER V.

CHAPTER V.

"Very good of you. I am sure. Sir William, he good enough to order his excellency's carriage for the captain. It is entirely too hot for you to attempt to walk, my dear sir."

"Well, as you press it, perhaps I will. Sir William, I shall be pleased to have your company. Colonel, I regret that I know that your position at the head of your regiment precludes my having the pleasure of your company on the way down, but I shall see you at the dock upon our arrival."

He bowed politely to the soldier, and taking his seat in the state carriage, which had now appeared, drove off to take up his position in rear of the gallant lilith foot.
On the arrival at the dock he stepped

On the arrival at the dock he steppe lightly from the vehicle and turning to the lord chamberlain, said: "I will now bid you farewell, and thank though I trust that we shall meet again. I quite realize that this very handsome secort which you have tendered me would not have been forthcoming had things scort which you have tendered me would not have been forthcoming had things been otherwise," and laughing somewhat sarcastically at the discomfitted officer, he walked gaily down the steps and into the walting boat.

CHAPTER VI.

Arrived on board the Badger, a fine topsail schooner-rigged steamer, about 350 feet long and very fast, Captain Brent found the governor general pacing up and down the after deck awaiting his coming with impatione.

"Ah, my dear sir," he said as he walked quickly forward to meet the sailor, "I am delighted to see you again."

"I have no doubt of it," was the reply, "especially as you are well aware of the fact that had I not appeared you would have suffered exactly the same penalty as I did."

"Ah, but, captain—"

"Well, governor, we will let bygones be bygones."

"That is very good of you, and now if you will be good enough to send me ashore I shall be very much obliged to you."

"Ashore! You? I think not! You are

"Ashore! You? I think not! You are to go on a cruise with me, dear man!"

"A cruise with you! But it is quite impossible you know! What would become of my government?"

"You are the government: and I can tell you one thing that I know from my own experience, and that is that there will be fewer executions than there have been for a long time, for they cannot have one while you are away." z 2 "But really—"

"Now, don't keep 'butting' me, as though you were a goat. You go with me, and if you will kindly look at the shore, you will see that we are already going to sea. Here is the receiving ship now, and we shall soon be by the point, Come with me to my cabin; but wait a moment. I have not heard how you happened to come here so opportunely.

"One of your officers, that one over there, came with a number of men some time in the night after I was sleeping soundly, and roused me from bed, telling me to dress quictly and follow them."

"O, that is Murchamp! He always did have a rather curious sense of humor, but he is not at all a bad fellow at heart.

"Possibly not, but he has a most abrupt way about him. I must say, He woke me from asound sleep, as I have with him. When I made some remonstrance he made use of a most offensive expression, told me to 'stow my gab, or he'd see that my windpipe was cut.

"Rather forcible, I will admit, but perhaps called for."

"Rather forcible, I will admit be perhaps called for."
"I cannot see why. "I simply told him that I was not accusted to being disturbed in that manner and I never dressed without my valet."

"Ah, 'indeed!"
"Yes and then remarked in the most abrupt way, that if I couldn' dress myself, that one of his me would act as a nurse, or I could go or board the ship as I was. When I mad further remonstrance he used the for-cible expression which I have already

ed the sentry.

"Rupid work that," and Brent as he service of the property of general in great surprise.

"I have, and it was but a short time ago, that I discovered that you were the man who had the companion half, Unfortunately, as you, of course, know, neither raif is of any use without the other. It cannot be said correctly that either of us has a half, as I have the latitude and longitude of the map, and you have the plece with the island and point on it. The person who tore that part out know his business. I was coming to see you on the subject when your people were so officious as to arrest me, and find it not been for Marchamp's brilliant idea of kidnapping you we should both of us have been deprived of a large fortine."

"But I was not aware that there was so very, large a sum."

"The letter which accompanied my por-

"How far do you make it?" asked Fitzmorris.

"Worth it? Why man-but I forgot. Your great grandfather was not so particular as mine, was he? Listen:

He took from his pooket a thin package, lied with a faded ribbon. Undoing this carefully he proceeded to read the contents of a piece of parchment that it contained.

To my descendants:

When two parts of a map of the West Indies, one in the possession of Midshipman George Edward Fitzmorris, of the Majesty George the Ilid's navy, serving under Admiral Lord Rodney, in the year of Grace 1782, on board the flagship "Formidable," and of which the undersigned is also midshipman, and holds the other part of said map, are put together, then will be found the exact position of the island of Fernandos. On the southwestern end of this island there is a Spanish fort. Off from this fort in a line with the western side, distant about 800 yards and lying in about six fathoms of water, is the Spanish Galleon "La Nostra Maria de Trinidado." This vessel contains more than seven millions in gold and silver, which is stored under the after deck directly beneath the floor of the state cabin. By following the line indicated, direct from the western side of the fort. Illi the guin on the southwestern paraphet is in range with the old tower on the hill behind the town, you should be directly over the center of the galleon, which lies bow on to the shore. It is well to note that the bottom is constantly changing at this part of the island, owing to the storms at certain seasons, and hat what is six fahoms now, may be 10 or 20 by the time that this paper is used.

"This map was the property of a Spanish prisoner, who said that he was of noble birth and related to some English family, the name of which he would inherit his wealth and title if certain papers should ever come to light, which we judged were on the salken galleon, but do not know for sure.

"Goth Lennox Brent, "There is nothing foolish about it. It is a sure thing. Think what a splendid provision it will make for your widow."

"But I have no widow!" exclaimed the governor general, hastily.

"No, no, certainly not!" replied the other quickly, and then he added with a pleasan

"Gov. Pitzmorris, this is my daughter, Madeleine. Madeleine, this is the governor general of Montego, who is going to take a cruise with us."

"I had no idea that there were any ladies aboard?" stammered his excellency, very much overcome with surprise.

"The day is yet young, governor, and my daughter is not an early riser, so you would hardly have seen her in the short time that you have been aboard. I do not always take her with me, but as this is somewhat a voyage of discovery, unattended with any danger that I anticipate at present, and as she begged to refuse."
"Chermed.

come. I felt that I had no good reason to refuse."

"Charmed as I am sure," murmured the governor, quite overcome by the well-dressed, self-possessed young woman, who stood looking at bim with a half smile.

"And now, Madeleine, if you will excuse us, I have something particular to say to his excellency in private,"
"Certainly, papa. I shall be delighted to got some air. I shall see you later, Governor Fitzmorris," and with a dazzling smile and a slight courtesy she walked past him and up the companion stairs.

No, Ne'er Can Thy Home be Mine. (Published by Request.)

have told thee how sweet the roses

warm; Henceforth let my home be thine.

I have heard thee tell of a sky more

he true.
To dwell in that clime were bliss;
But ah; when I gaze on my tranquil cot,
Where the clemals boughs, entwine.
The land of the stranger tempts me not,
No, ne'er can thy home be mine.

He.
Thising to thee if with me thou'lt rove,
The songs of the olden time,
And thou'lt not compare my ardent love,
With the love of this colder clime,
Thou'lt scorn the fruits of thy moun-

olding the purple vine,

"There, you see is the longitude sixtysix degree twenty-one minutes W. latitude twelve degrees thirteen minutes N.
It is plain sailing for us now." He rose and stepping to the side of the cabin,
"But is it worth it?"
"Tell Mr. Marchamp to make the course east by south, one-quarter south," he said, as a man reported at the door.

Alas, it is plain, my mountain home,
Must ever be scorned by thee.

And may I not fear that a time will come.
When thou will have scorn for me:
Whose voice if less sweet than thine.
To my simple taste is far more dear;
No, ne'er can thy home be mine.

A NULLI STATEMENT FOR THE YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31, 1002, OF THE CONDITION AND AFFAIRS OF THE WESTERN ASSURANCE COMPANY OF TORONTO, ORDONIZED UNDER THE LAWS OF THE DOMINION OF CANADA, MADE TO THE AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF VIGINIA, IN PUBLIANCE TO THE LAWS OF VIRGINIA, IN PUBLIANCE OF VIRGINIA, IN PUBLIANCE OF VIRGINIA, IN PUBLIANCE OF VIRGINIA, IN PUBLIANCE OF VIRGINIA, VIRGINIA, VILLIUS STRADIS, RESIDENCE, RICHMOND, VA.; Organized or Incorporated, AUGUST, 1851; Commenced Business, AUGUST, 1851.

ASSETS.

Loans on mortgage (duly recorded and being the first llons on the fee simple) $ 20,000 00 BONDS AND STOCKS OWNED ABSOLUTELY BY THE COMPANY. Value, Value, Value, $ 210,000 00 $ 228,375 00

	65,350 00	66,003 50
Dominion of Canada stock 4 per cent	10,000 00	11,000 00
	50,000 00	53,750 00
Otto of Columbus O honds, 4th but contessistes	50,000 00	50,750 00
	42,000 00	43,470 00
	80,000 00	84.800 00
City of Donthand Ore. DONGS, D DOC CUBL	5,000 00	6,287 50
Otto of Dortland Oro bonds, u Der centeressessissississis
City of Non Vork Corporate Stock, asy per convitition	141,000 00	148,402 50
	40,000 00	40,724 00
	46,000 00	48,495 00
	21,800 00	28,536 50
City of Kingston, Ont., 4 per cent.	20,700 00	27,400 95
	14,000 00	14,110 00
	16,000 00	16,200 00
	10,000 00	10,750 00
	25,000 00	25,000 00
	88,000 00	88,000 00
	16,172 44	16,738 48
	60,000 00	63,660 00
	20,000 00	22,400 00
	8,000 00	8,020 00
	00,000 00	50,400 00
n e o pare co bonds d Der cent	50,000 00	48,250 00
	50,000 00	50,750 00
	155,000 00	153,450 00
Clareton & Dombroto RWV, DODGS, & DOF COM	50,000 00	44,500 00
Manitoba & Southeastern Rwy, Co., bonds, 4 per cent	07,832 00	101,871 27
	40,000 00	64,800 00
Dominion Carings & Invest, 10., Block	15,000 00	10,500 00
	10,020 00	23,704 80
Control Canada Loun & Silv. Co., Stock	20,000 00	27,200 00
Toronto Loan & Savings Co., Debentures, 4 per cent	72,500 00	72,500 00
TATALAN SAME IS BUTTON

Total per and market value carried out at market value. Cash in the company's principal office. $1,674,274 44 $1,658,288 50 $1,658,288 50 $10,556 in the company in bank. 114,146 01 Gross premiums (as written in the policies) in course of collection, not more than three months due. 140,290 05 10 118 receivable, not matured, taken for fire, marine and inland risks. 28,700 70 Aggregate amount of all assets of the company, stated at their actual value . . . $2.372,701 88

Cross claims for adjusted and unpaid losses due and to become due... $28,611 Of Gross losses in process of adjustment, or in suspense, including all reported and supposed losses. Including all crosses resisted, including interest, costs and other expenses thereon...... 6,196 13 Net amount of unprid losses.

Gross premiums received and receivable upon all unexpired fire risks running one year or loss from date of policy, including interest

"It is down here as 240 Spanish leagues say about 800 miles or thereabouts."

A NNUAL STATEMENT FOR THE YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 51, 1902, OF THE CONDITION AND AFFAIRS OF THE VIRGINIA STATE INSURANCE COMPANY OF RICHMOND, ORGANIZED UNDER THE LAWS OF THE STATE OF VIRGINIA. MADE ITO THE AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA. IN PURSUANCE TO THE LAWS OF VIRGINIA.

President, GEORGE L. CHRISTIAN, VICe-President and Secretary, ROBERT LECKY, JR.: Principal Office, RICHMOND, VA.; Organised or Incorporated, 1865; Commenced Business, 1866.

Value of real estate owned by the company, the first lieus on the fee simple) upon Loans on mortgage (duly recorded and being the first lieus on the fee simple) upon which not more than one years' interest is due.

Interest due en all said mortgage loans, $18.30; interest accrued thereon, $320.10....

sigh. "I am not much used to this sort of business."

He realized however, that he did need the money, as he was deeply in debt and had a title to keep up, which his half salary, even though it was made up as Brent had sald, by fees and commissions, was entirely inadequate to begin to cover. "That is proper and as it should be," said the captain with a sm.e. "It would have been exceedingly disagreeable for me to have a hanging incident aboard, with you as the principal tragedian, so to speak, had you refused."

(TO BE CONTINUED TUESDAY.)

are.
In a home beyond the sea,
In a home beyond the sea,
Where the dark-syed maid with her sweet guitar
Sits under the orange tree.
Then fly oh, fly from this isle of storms!
Where all that is fair must pine,
To a sky more blue, and a sun more warm:

hiue,
And a sun more warm than this,
And I've sometimes thought if the t

Henceforth let my home be thine,

BUSINESS IN THE STATE OF VIRGINIA DURING THE YEAR.

 Risks written.
 $5,407.120 00

 Premiums received (gross)
 130,030 38

 Losses paid
 70,006 17

 Losses incurred.
 80,122 21

State of Virginia; City of Richmond—ss: Swc. 2 to January 22, 1903, before W. A. CRENSHAW, Notary Public. HOME OFFICE.

NORTHEAST CORNER OF NINTH AND MAIN STREETS. GEO. L. CHRISTIAN, President, ROBT. LECKY, JR., Vice-Pres & Secy.
CHAS. K. WILLIS, Treasurer.

A. W. GARBER, L. F. MASON, W. F. RICHARDSON.

W. A. Crenshaw, T. L. Alfriend & Son, D. N. Walker & Co., A. L. Pleasants, B. C. Wherry, & Sons, Realty Bond & Trust Co, Chapin & Hume, Montague & Co., W. W. Hardwicke, Capitol Savings Bank, W. C. Claiborne.

Total par and market value (carried out at market value)..... | Par Value. | Par Value. | Va Total par and market value and amount toaned $4,000 00 $4,000 00

Total par and market value and amount tones $4,000 00 $4,000 00 $2,813 66 thereon company's principal office.

Cash belonging to the company in bank the principal office of the company in bank interest due and accrued on bonds not included in market value. Interest due and accrued on bonds not included in market value. Interest due and accrued on bonds not included in market value. The more than three months due.

State of the principal of the oas claims for adjusted and unpaid losses due and to become due.....

Grbss losses in process of adjustment or in suspense, including all report of and supposed losses. 33.705 09 deads supposed losses. 2,500 00 roses resisted, including interest, costs and other expenses thereon. 2,500 00

Aggregate amount of all Habilities including paid-up capital stock and set surplus $537,800 55

SOLICITORS. A. E. HEINRICH, A. F. HULCHER,

AGENTS.

Williamson Talley,