Wausau Pilot.
TUESDAY, JAN. 2, 1900.

Published weekly and entered at the Post Office at Wausau as second class matter.

CHICAGO was visited by a million dollar fire on Saturday.

GEN. BULLER was a long ways from Proctoria on Christmas day, so he could not eat his Xmas dinner there.

EX-CONGRESSMAN Michael Griffin died suddenly at Eau Claire last Friday of apoplexy. He was one of the foremost men of Wisconsin and his death will be a loss to the whole state.

EVEN the country newspaper man is in danger of being "slugged" and knocked into "pi" if he goes out on the streets of Chicago. The other day Edward Rindlaub, of Plattville, was held up and made to disgorge a county order amounting to $208.28. Heretofore the thugs have confined their work mostly to saloon keepers, but they are now after larger game, so it seems.

THE following editorial paragraph clipped from the Milwaukee News, seems to hit the mail squarely on the head: "The year and century is nearing an end with the two great English-speaking nations of the earth—the United States and England—the nations that boast they represent the flower of civilization—at war with weak powers. Both wars are those of conquest, against people fighting for the right of self government. These are of coercion in the hypocritical plea is made that the advancement of civilization warrants the onslaught these great powers are making against weak powers. The more backward nations of the earth have cause to rejoice that they have not reached the degree of civilization that compels them to go to war for conquest on the heels of the recent peace congress."

THE Milwaukee Sentinel quotes from an article in the last issue of the Pilot, in which we suggested that the honor claimed by the Wausau Record as being the only supporter of the gold standard among the republican papers of Wisconsin, during the campaign of 1896, should at least be divided with the Sentinel. The Sentinel disclaims that either itself or the Record can make that claim and says:
"Throughout the campaign of 1896, nearly all republican papers in Wisconsin, to the best of our knowledge and belief, openly advocated the gold standard. * * * * * The only thing for which the Sentinel is disposed to claim particular credit is its insistence, before the meeting at Milwaukee of the republican convention in March, 1896, that this convention adopt a flat-footed declaration for gold.
In giving this advice it acted almost alone among the republican papers of Wisconsin."

The Sentinel is correct in stating its attitude as to the gold standard before the meeting of the state republican convention. We distinctly remember that.

In our article we said we did a know of any other republican papers in the state that advocated the gold standard besides the Milwaukee Sentinel and the Wausau Record, during that campaign, and suggested that the attitude of friendliness to bimetalism taken by the republican press of the state generally at that time probably misled republican voters, who were opposed to the gold standard. The Sentinel thinks differently and says that the republican papers of the state according to the best of its knowledge and belief (a rather cautious statement, by the way), "openly advocated the gold standard." As to this our recollection is the same as that of the Wausau Record, only we think the Record ought to have divided honors with the Sentinel, or taken second place.

Delagoa Bay.

The British government stands a fair show of getting into trouble with other nations by her seizures of foreign vessels freighted with merchandise for Delagoa Bay which is a Portuguese port in East Africa, and is connected with the Transvaal by railroad. The Transvaal has no seaport, and is much better off on that account, as Great Britain could blockade an enemy's seaport. As it is all she can do to keep her men of war cruising around and seize such vessels of neutral powers as happen to be met on the high seas.
Damages will be paid, ultimately for these seizures, but England can afford to pay treble damages if she can prevent neutral supplies from reaching the Transvaal. It is probable, however, that the people of the Transvaal will remain fairly well able to raise farm products so long as they can carry on the war upon British territory as they have hitherto. And in the mean time many a vessel will discharge its cargo at Delagoa Bay, notwithstanding the British cruisers. Besides it is likely that other powers will call a halt upon the wanton seizures of ordinary articles of food which have never yet been regarded as contraband of war by civilized nations.

The Panic.
The Pilot has no fault to find with Secretary Gage's recent action. Russell Sage and other New Yorkers had predicted a panic, and an attempt was made to fulfill the prophecy. Gage stepped in. It may be acted ultra vires, but it is conceded that he stopped the game, and what one Secretary of the Treasury has done, he or another may do again upon occasion. A panic is too serious a thing to be fought with gloves.
A panic is as serious a thing in every way as a great war. It takes men out of useful employment, and it kills people as surely and as numerous by starvation as war does with its murderous appliances. Like war, a panic condition can not be treated by ordinary remedies. When such a condition threatens it is a question of self preservation; constitution, law and everything must stand aside, and a remedy that will be effective applied if it can be found, regardless of any question of regularity or jurisdiction.

An English Weyler.
Will our friends who are inclined to believe that British colonial rule is good, and that the Transvaal republic is an oligarchy of Dutch farmers which denies civil rights to all aliens within its limits, sit down a moment and reason with us. Throw aside prejudices, as far as possible, and let us see what may be inferred from admitted facts: Here are two important facts not disputed by anyone:
First, the able bodied Boers are all gone to the war, leaving their wives and children at home with the Uit-landers and Hottentots. Yet we hear of no sign of an outbreak there, although we have been told that the Uit-landers have been much misgoverned, and that they outnumber the Boers two to one.

Second, in Cape Colony which is under the rule of a British governor, Gen.
Gatacre, fearing revolt has issued a re-concentrated order compelling all males over twelve years of age to go into camps, and there sustain themselves.
This is that previously unheard of measure whereby the Spanish general, Weyler, excelled himself in cruelty, shocked the civilized world, and made the blood of Americans boil to the fighting point. It was considered cause for war by the United States against Spain.
Consider these facts, friends; consider them candidly, and draw your own conclusions.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT.

His Annual Report to the County Board Now Ready.

J. F. Lamont, County Superintendent of Schools, has issued his annual report to the County Board, and the same is a very interesting document. He shows the number of children in the county, between the ages of four and twenty years, not including the city of Wausau, to be 11,885, and 7,104 attended school during the year. The number between the ages of seven and thirteen, 5,435, and 4,593 of them attended school.
Average paid male teachers, $38.75; female, $30.96. Eight new school houses were built. There was received by the school district treasurers, from all sources, $76,002.83, and paid out $56, 219.18, leaving a cash balance of $19, 783.65. The cash values of the school houses and sites, $82,478.00, and school apparatus, $21,638.00. Net assets of school districts, outside of the city of Wausau, figuring cash on hand, $123, 899.65. There were two successive institutes held during the year. The superintendent thinks there is something radically wrong when 892 children from the ages of seven and thirteen were not in the schools, and he gives his opinion on this in no uncertain language. He devotes considerable space to the teachers of the country schools and to the training school. The Pilot would like to give the report in full but has not the space this week, it will appear later in the county board proceedings.

PLAIN WORDS.

Rev. W. O. Carrier's Sunday Morning
Sermon.

Last Sunday morning, Rev. W. O.
Carrier preached a very forceful sermon on the theme of "Slippery Places or a Firm Foundation, Which?" He took for his text the 17th verse of the 2nd Chapter of Corinthians. The first part of his sermon was along the lines of religious thought outlining the duties of a Christian; calling attention to the past year, having been a prosperous one and he hoped that it had also been one of spiritual gain to his listeners. He also called attention to the approaching New Year and hoped that it would be started and continued right.

The latter part of his discourse was devoted to the evils which, in his opinion, afflict our city and we doubt if over plainer words were spoken from a pulpit in Wausau, and whether all who composed the reverend gentleman's congregation could agree with him or not, they could not help but admire a man who had the courage of his convictions and who dared to give them utterance from the pulpit.

Rev. Carrier spoke of the saloons, Sunday opening, etc., and warned his hearers that those places which had the finest exteriors and were the most gladly furnished were the most dangerous, as they attracted the better classes and gave the traffic a tone of respectability, which extended down the scale to the lowest of the low.

The Sunday theatre came in for a dressing down, and he deplored that plays were allowed to be given in our city on Sunday evenings contrary to law. He cited such plays as "Gay Paris" and the "Black Heifer" as being disgraceful exhibitions and tending to very greatly lower the morals of our city and the paper hung up on the bill boards, heralding these combinations was unfit for public gaze. Our new opera house he thought was a public necessity for lectures, concerts, etc., but for our citizens to extravagantly support the drama was all wrong, and had a bad effect upon the community.

Rev. Carrier made a statement which, if true, should call forth very harsh measures on the part of every good citizen of our city. He said that there was a social order in our city, into the rooms of which, it was reported, girls had gone with the members and became intoxicated. He believed it to be true, because the report had been allowed to go uncontradicted. To which social order was referred we do not know, but if such a thing ever happened it should be known, and the society allowing such proceedings most roundly condemned. If it did not, then the society should clear its skirts of such a scandalous story.

Rev. Carrier spoke with much feeling and his words of warning came from depths of a heart, which he averred, was filled with love for humanity, and none doubted his sincerity. He preached that which he thought was right, and he did it without fear or favor. While we cannot agree with all that Rev. Carrier said (nor did he ask his listeners to do so) in the main it was a timely sermon which should prove very effective, in stirring up a sentiment in favor of working necessary reforms in our city.

We understand that in the M. E. and Baptist churches similar sermons were also preached at the morning services.

Mrs. J. S. Curtis, mother of C. S.
Curtis, of this city, died at her home in Clinton, Iowa, last Wednesday, after a brief illness. She was well known to many in Wausau. Mr. Curtis was called to Clinton on the Sunday previous and was at his mother's bedside when she died.

Wm. Kasten, aged 50 years, died yesterday at his home on the town line road. Death was due to pneumonia.
He leaves a wife and six children.

DELIGHTFUL ANNUAL.

The Members of the Ladies' Literary Club Entertained Last Evening.

The Ladies' Literary Club of this city held its "Annual," at Mercer's Hall last evening. On this occasion the husbands of the members were invited and the members of the Tuesday Musical Club and their husbands were guests of the evening. There were fully 100 present and it was one of the most delightful annuals in the history of the Club.

The handsome offices of Dr. Lawrence, and Mrs. Spencer and Willard were placed at the disposal of the Literary Club and into these rooms guests were ushered and wraps laid aside. The ladies comprising the officers of the Club, were stationed in the southwest corner of the hall where they received until about 9 o'clock.
The hall was handsomely decorated.
The walls being covered with handsome pictures taken from the traveling art display now on exhibition in this city, in charge of the Literary Club.
Around these lovely pictures were sprays of California Pepper, a large box of the same having been sent the Club for decorative purposes by Mrs. E.
Phipps Corey, of California, and at the close of the evening's entertainment each of the ladies were given a spray, as a souvenir of the occasion. On the floor were many maps, lending a cheerful and homelike appearance to the scene. In the dining room the decorations were more elaborate consisting of the Club's colors—cardinal and gold, and the Club flower—red carnation; a profusion of ribbons and cut flowers were arranged with charming effects.

Mrs. S. Livingston, at 9 o'clock, bade welcome to all, and a "Happy New Year," and announced the program of the evening and the same as executed was excellent and happily interpreted, the musical numbers being furnished by the Tuesday Musical Club. Every number was well received and heartily entertained.

THE PROGRAM.

Overture Rosamunde, (two pianos).....Schubert Meadows, J. A. Lamont, Karl Janine, D.
Jones and Miss Marie Johnson.
President's address.....Mary J. Dickens.
Social Song.....Mrs. F. W. Kiebsch.
Selections from Lotzinger (two pianos).....
Meadows, E. V. Jones and Miss Smith.

At the close of the president's address, Mrs. W. S. Armstrong, arose and in a nicely worded speech presented the president with a handsome bouquet of flowers tied with ribbons all representing the Club's colors and flower.

The president's address was the feature of the evening and Mrs. Dickens delivered herself. She was calm, possessed and spoke in a moderate voice, but so distinctly that she could be understood in every part of the hall and in adjoining rooms. At the close of the program she was the centre of the gathering all tendering congratulations on her splendid effort.

The address covered the grounds of the aims and attitude of women's clubs, in general, as well as of the home club toward social economics. The speaker spoke of the public activities of clubs in administering charities, instituting reforms and increasing the efficiency of schools and libraries, of marvelous increase in the number of clubs and memberships. The number of club-women being quoted as two hundred thousand, in twenty five hundred clubs in the U. S.

Reference was made to the industrial question as it relates to women and children and the four heads under which the subject is being studied by club women. Namely, Domestic Service, Protective Legislation as it exists, Needed Legislation, and The Consumer's League. The biennial meeting of the General Federation was referred to as a subject very dear to the hearts of Wisconsin, because of the honor conferred upon them by the location of this meeting in Wisconsin's metropolis, and because the Badger women feel proud of the honor of being the hostesses to the thousands of representative women from all parts of the Union. The work of the home club was briefly shown by citing the lines of work distinctively belonging to each department.

The parliamentary practice of the club was treated in a humorous vein as was the subject of men's clubs.

At the close of the evening's program supper was served in the dining room, Mrs. Geo. F. Bellis doing the catering, which is evidence sufficient that the "spread" was excellent.

The entertainment may be summed up as a success without a detracting feature.

It was midnight when good nights were said and all sought their homes.

JOINT TEACHERS' CONVENTION.

To Be Held in Wausau the Middle of Next October.

While attending the Wisconsin State Teachers' meeting held in Milwaukee recently, Supt. Karl Mathie, President of the Northwestern State Teachers' Association; and Supt. M. H. Jackson, President of the Northwestern Teachers' Association have fixed the date for the joint convention to be held in Wausau on or about October 15, 1900, when Wausau is in its most charming dress, and when the teachers throughout the state are looking forward to their school year with deeper interest in educational problems.

It is a matter of satisfaction to Wausau people generally, that our city will be seen at its best, rather than in the spring when it is at the worst.

The three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. August Lambrecht, of 1309 Third street, fell and broke his right thigh at about eleven o'clock yesterday morning.

Rev. Carrier spoke with much feeling
depths of a heart, which he averred,
