HOOKER-WILSON.

On last Wednesday evening, at the ome of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wilson, Miss Evelyn Wilson became the wife of Charles G. Hooker. Rev. James M. Duer read the ceremony in the presence of about sixty relatives and friends, the bride being given in marriage by her father. The orchestra played the Lohengrin wedding march, as the bride and groom with their attendants descended the stairs and took their places before a bank of foliage and palms in the living room.

The bride was attired in white crepe de meteor with a shadow lace overskirt. Her veil was caught up with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Montgomery, was attired in pink crepe de meteor with lace overdress and carried pink roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Marion Wilson, wore pink brocaded crepe with ace tunic, and carried pink roses. Miss Marion Dodge acted as flower girl, and Master Jay Porter of Spokane, Wash., was the ring bearer. The groom was attended by Frank Daniels. The

A reception was held after the ceremony and refreshments were served in the dining room by the Misses Ruth Hoeper, Florence Wilson and throughout the dining room and living room was pink and green.

The out-of-town guests were J. E. Porter and son, Jay, of Spokane, Wash., and Mrs. M. A. Hincks of Manistee, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Hooker spent a few days in Chicago, returning home yesterday morning. They will be at home at 706 Fifth street after November first.

C. C. PARLIN HERE

C. C. Parlin was in the city yesterday and gave an address before the high school. He told of the great opportunities for the young people of the day, saying that although there were plenty of men to fill the unimportant positions, it was especially difficult to procure men of great efficien cy and alertness of mind for those at the top of the ladder. Mr. Parlin gave a number of examples and then went on to say that in sales work, in which he has been engaged the past year investigating the same, there was no need for smoking or even accepting a drink. He counselled against both of these. Drinking would most probably affect the manager's opinion of his employee, he said though smoking would not be so serious. His address was greatly appreciated as are all of his talks. Mr. Parlin spends a day or so with his mother, Mrs. H. B. Parlin, every few months and when here usually pays a visit to the high school over which he was its able principal for So many years. He departed for his home in Boston last evening.

Eating Snails. Colonel Newnham Davis has described the ideal conditions of snail eating. "At Prince's," he writes, "the horned thing is eaten with proper ceremony. In a silver bowl, with a silver three pronged fork as a means of conveying long, black gelatinous things are brought to the table very hot and swimming in a sauce in which lard and onions and garlic seem to be the principal components. Speared on the fork, the snail goes into one's mouth, and then comes one of the critical moments of life."-London Standard.

The earliest mention of the use of a crozier is of one carried by Ataldus, archbishop of Reims, who died A. D. 933. INFINITUDE OF SUNS.

Those We Know Are as Nothing to Those Beyond Our Ken.

The photographs of 25,876 standard plates show the points, or images, of 100,000,000 suns. These have not been actually counted, but plates secured by exposure in telecameras to typical regions of the sky have, and the entire number has been subjected to the calculus of probabilities, resulting in the general number of 100,000,000 colossa

These have been weighed-that is, their combined force of gravitational attraction has been computed. This led to one of the most overwhelmin discoveries-namely, this entire pull of attractions of the quantity of matter in 100,000,000 suns as massive as our own sun could not even begin to impart the high specific speeds of several well known "runaway" suns. These are dashing through what has been named space with velocities so much greater than all other suns that they are a class by themselves.

Our sun contains 333,426 times more matter than is in the earth, and this multiplied by 100,000,000 reveals the quantity of matter known to exist, beond all human imagination. But this immense mass may almost be ignored as a mere fraction in comparison with the gigantic quantity necessary to impart a velocity of from 150 to 200 miles per second to these suns flying athwart sidereal universe. Let the number of these suns or dark bodies run up to trillions or o then the entire quantity of matter in all of them would be less than the weight of one grain of sand if compared to an infinite quantity of matter. -Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York

London, Sept. 22.-A Central News dispatch from Amsterdam, brings an official statement issued at Berlin, giving the German account of the events of the battle in northern France beginning with the German withdrawal from the immediate vicinity of Paris. The statement says: "During the past weeks the troops of the allies made an attack on the fortified German position between the Oise and the Meuse. The French were protected on the west by the Paris lines and on the east by the Meuse and the Moselle. "The German troops retired slowly in conformity with the plan of the general staff until favorable positions were reached. The French, reinforced by troops from Paris and by regiments from armies to the south of Paris and from Belfort, took the offensive while guns from Paris were brought up and used in the fighting. "The plan of the French was to attack the flank of the German right wing. This plan was unsuccessful and the French sustained severe loss es. Three days ago the Germans assumed the offense.
