CARRIE NATION IN SCOTLAND.

The rough reception tendered in Glasgow and other parts of the Scotland to Mrs. Carrie Nation, of Kansas and the rest of the United States tends to revive the antiquated slander that the Scots have no sense of humor, and that it takes a surgical operation to get a joke into a Scottish head. assault on national sentiment.
Mrs. Nation is reported to have said that she has seen more flagrant drunkenness in Scotland, and especfally in Glasgow, than she ever saw in her own country. Yet she must confess than she has not found any place in Glasgow or elsewhere in the Scottish kingdom where she could quench her thirst with an alcoholic beverage in public after 10 p. m. or at any hour on Sunday. The Scots may be, as Harriet Beecher Stowe has recorded, 'a gay, proud, ignorant drunken pack," but at least the law is enforced there in letter and spirit, and when the law says the drinking without any respect of persons.
