MANUFACTURE DURUM FLOUR

There are immense possibilities in Fargo for the manufacture of durum flour-if the power problem is satisfactorily solved. The day of fake white flour is over. The fad will be a go back to the natural color. The golden-hued flour will look richer than the pale kind. The reaction from the bleached craze should be beneficial to durum. Tests of the flour from durum wheat have long ago demonstrated its excellent bread making qualities. With the chief objection regarding its color be inclined to eat it. The flour makes more nutritious, better tasting bread are many by-products. Why not make Fargo the center of a big durum flour manufacturing industry? Why not turn out the macaroni and other by-products for which the flour is noted right here in Fargo? This city is located in the center of the greatest durum wheat area of the United States and it would not be a difficult matter to build up a great plant here-with cheap power.

NATIONAL INHERITANCE TAX.

There are inheritance tax laws in a number of states. In this state there is one from which 'mantle of E considerable revenue is derived and a reference to?" bill has just been introduced in the legislature by which the rate would be these years it can't be a gas mantle. graduated according to the value of the estates of decedents and range from 1 per cent up to 25 per cent when the inheritance amounts to as much as $20,000.000. This is peculiarly a form of state taxation, because the property rights of citizens and the laws regulating the holding and transfer of estates come exclusively within the jurisdiction of states. The laws affecting wills and inheritances and the accumulation and descent or distribution of estates are state laws, and these matters come under national authority only in the District of Columbia and the territories or dependencies of the

The argument in favor of a tax upon inheritances above a certain moderate limit, increasing in rate with the amount distributed and the remoteness of the relationship of the heirs, is that fortunes are accumulated under the protection of law, that often they escape in the process their full share of the burden of supporting the admin-istration of the laws, that those to little or nothing to the labor or service by which they have been gained, and that the diffusion of such accumula-tions rather than their continuance to another is desirable. The public is regarded as having an equitable claim to a liberal share in the disposition of property that has been gathered under the protection of the law, upon the longs by right of earning and saving, to the relief of the burden of taxation upon those who are still devoting their energies to the production of wealth.

But this benefit rightly belongs, uner our form of government, to the cople of the states under whose laws and protection the property has been accumulated. There may be no constitutional bar to the national government coming in for a fair share of this kind of revenue in case of special need. but as it has no direct claim upon it state taxes and in the nature of double taxation, it cannot be fairly resorted except in case of special need like that of war or calamity, requiring a sudden and unusual increase of revenue. There is no such exigency now sease, and it is certainly not "impossible" so ing so. to arrange customs duties and ordinary internal revenue taxes as to "secure an adequate income" for the government. The present deficit is due to temporary conditions, which will disappear when the industry and trade of the country have resumed their normal activity. There is no occasion now for trenching upon the field of state taxation to support the national government, as collecting an inheritance tax would distinctly be doing. The tariff bill should not be complicated by any such
