Imperator, Greatest Ship of the World, Listed After Fire in Hold

More than 1,000 steerage passengers were in a panic in the hold of the Imperator, the greatest ship in the world, when she caught fire at her pier in Hoboken, N. J. Flames broke forth from a provision room, and the ship's crew, called to fight, attacked the flames. The second officer of the vessel lost his life. The steerage passengers, ordered from their quarters, fled in panic to the pier. The flames raged for several hours while tons of water were pumped into the hold. Although the vessel has a displacement of more than 60,000 tons she took on so much water that it caused a list to starboard.

HEAVY TRAVEL ON G. N. FOR WEST

MANY LEAVING OVER GREAT NORTHERN FOR FORT PECK RESERVATION LAND OPENING —G. N. OFFICIALS REPORT THE TRAFFIC VERY HEAVY.

Large crowds are reported to be traveling over the Great Northern for the Fort Peck Indian reservation land opening, which was yesterday. The Great Northern officials say the traffic has been very heavy. Monday night the crowds on the trains passing through the city and boarding the Great Northern trains at various points in this state, were exceedingly large. From Grand Forks alone there were sixty people who boarded the train bound for the reservation.

Fargo was not so largely represented with home-seekers going out to the drawing, but there were several from here who went.

On the heavy travel for the reservation, many of the trains were routed via Grand Forks instead of the Fargo-Minot cutoff which was crowded with trains. The plan will probably continue to be in effect as long as the present rush to eastern Montana continues.

Most of the passengers are from St. Paul and other points east.

HOME GROWN SEED SHOULD BE SAVED

THE NORTH DAKOTA EXPERIMENT STATION ADVISES SAVING CORN FOR SEED—STATES THAT HOME GROWN CORN IS BEST KIND.

Ten thousand posters are being sent out in the state of North Dakota from the department of botany of the North Dakota Experiment station advising the farmers of the state to save their corn for seed and plant only that kind for the next season.

The department also states that they will place under a seal any seed of any variety at the expense of the farmer if it is sent in to the department.

All communications should be sent to L. L. Bolley, botanist and state seed commissioner at the agricultural college.

Misrule and Barbarism Hold Full Sway in Guatemala

Chicago Tribune: Guatemala is the worst of all Central American states.

That such crime, such tyranny, such absolute lack of order and contempt for justice could exist in the twentieth century, and so near the United States, seems impossible. The worst of it is that an attempt is made to cover it all up. There is an outward show of decency, which has and does deceive the unwary and gives the interested a backing for their argument that everything is as it should be.

The great show and at the same time the greatest fake in Guatemala is the school system. In some of the towns, particularly Guatemala City, the capital, schools have been built. Every building erected means graft for an official. The course of study outlined is complete and covers a large field, only it is not followed and never has been.

Ordinarily teachers get 40 to 45 Guatemalan pesos a month. Professors in the national institute get 50 up to 400, the salary of the director. It takes just 19 to 20 of these pesos to make one American dollar. Sixty per cent of the population of Guatemala is Indian and yet the Indian children in school are few and far between. What students there are are mostly Ladino.

The chief subject taught is a smattering knowledge of reading and writing. The fact of the matter is the school system is a colossal bluff, got up to deceive Americans.

Plays to Uncle Sam.

Cabrera knows his continuance in power depends upon American tolerance. He knows that were the truth known about him the indignation it would arouse would sweep him from power immediately. For this reason he not only tries to deceive Americans entering his country, but employs in Washington a firm of American lawyers to really represent him, the Guatemalan minister being a mere figurehead, and in addition spends considerable sums in the United States for a press agency.

The currency of the country is steadily and rapidly depreciating. Exchange is rising at the rate of about 100 points a year. There are no gold or silver coins in circulation, nothing but paper and nickel.

On June 30, 1912, there had been issued $102,765,436 of this debased currency. This was an increase of $15,885,380 over the amount out June 30, 1911. None of this money has ever been redeemed. It is not the purpose to redeem it. The plan is to keep the paper in circulation until it wears out.

Wages are paid in this money. Cabrera, however, collects all his coffee tax in gold and insists that one-half the customs duties be paid in gold. Guatemala has defaulted on the interest payments of her foreign debt for fourteen years. England has just compelled her to start payments. These payments having to be made in gold will still further lower the amount of the preceding one.

Those who displease Cabrera or whom he considers dangerous are disposed of in a way which cannot be traced to his door. Some night when walking along the street they are murdered. Cabrera regrets that the robbers should become so trust, but then he cannot be held responsible.

The result of these conditions is that in all the countries with the exception of Costa Rica and Panama the people are steadily degenerating. Each generation grows up with fewer ideas of truth and honesty than the preceding one.

Such is Central America, a land favored by nature with every opportunity for development, and kept by misrule and barbarism.

What's the Use?

Everybody's: Eugene was going for a week's motor trip with his father.

"Have you everything you need?" inquired his mother. "You'd better let me look at your bag."

Who was very anxious to be off. "Every single thing I need."

"Have you taken your brush and comb?" queried his mother.

"Brush and comb!" cried Eugene indignantly. "Why, mother, I thought I was going on a vacation!"

"Everything's in it," replied the boy.

Those Women!

Judge: Marie—I wonder how old you are?
