MANY FREAKISH STUNTS BY HEATON WIND STORM

Jamestown, N. D., Sept. 1.—The first real cyclone that ever struck the state appears to be the Heaton storm, as all of the other destructive winds have had more of the features of a steady blow or sweep of wind, with not so much of twisting or turning as the Heaton storm.

The people of the town saw the cyclonic clouds forming to the southwest, and the cyclone came so suddenly that they had no chance to flee from the places they happened to be in at the time. The storm hit the village, practically destroying it, and all was over in thirty seconds.

Many queer, freakish incidents happened, as with other storms of that kind. The big Monarch elevator, standing 150 feet from the railroad track, was split in two. Half of the building was carried across the intervening space, and set down on the main line track, crashing through the west end of the depot building, smashing the freight house end, but not injuring the office end of the depot. The agent's house was in a different part of the town, and his wife was hit by a piece of flying scantling as she was crossing to another house to get away from the storm. Her own home was the only one that was not damaged in the town. Had she remained in her own house she would not have been injured in any way.

The Occident elevator, on the other side of the track, was lifted clear off the foundation and smashed to pieces. There were three persons in the elevator, and they were left on the floor unhurt. There were no persons in the Monarch elevator at the time.

One of the strangest incidents of the storm was the escape of the people in the house of Louis Falk. The house was completely lifted from the floor and carried away some distance. There were eight or ten persons in the building. They were lifted with the floor, and followed the house, and were let down again some 300 feet away, no one being injured except by a scratch or two. A baby in the house was soon found to be missing. The mother, who was one of the persons carried away with the floor, began searching for the child and soon after saw the little one coming towards her from the direction of the house. How the kid escaped is still a mystery.

The brick bank building that was destroyed was located between two frame buildings and appears to have been sucked out and demolished, while the two lighter built frame structures were left unharmed and not moved from their foundations. The only persons killed were the old man and baby on the outskirts of the town. Their names were Halvor Thorinsson and the child was a daughter of Albert Allison. None of the other people of the town were injured seriously, except the depot agent's wife. Rev. Saunders was slightly bruised about the back. The Congregational church was twisted around and left standing sideways, and the force of the twisting wind was so great that the concrete steps of the church were broken in two.

Several other houses were twisted and turned on their foundations, the buildings facing the south being left facing the northeast.

While the clouds were forming rain was falling in quantities, but after the storm had passed the rain ceased. Three box cars of the railroad company overturned.

The wonderful part of the storm is that no one in the town, where the greatest destruction occurred was killed outright, but escaped death by what seems a miraculous chance. The storm did little other damage elsewhere than in the town itself.

GRAND SECRETARY OF MASONIC BODIES FOR STATE SENDS LETTER

Grand Secretary W. L. Stockwell has issued the following letter regarding the death of the late A. L. Woods:

My Dear Brother: It is with feelings of profound regret and a deep sense of personal loss that I announce the death of Worshipful Brother Almond LeRoy Woods, general lecturer and auditor of this Grand Lodge. His death occurred very suddenly Sunday morning, August 21, at his home in Grand Forks, resulting from heart failure. While Brother Woods has been an active Mason in this state for more than twenty years, it was only last year that he became closely identified with the Grand Lodge, when he accepted, at the solicitation of Grand Master Bendeke, the office of grand lecturer and auditor. His work in this position was most acceptable, and it was with more than ordinary satisfaction that Grand Master Hull reappointed him; yet before he could enter into the discharge of this important office for the coming year, he answers the summons which called him to his long home. His death is indeed untimely, and this Grand Lodge has lost a good Mason and an excellent officer. His funeral, which occurred in Grand Forks, was conducted by St. Aldemar Commandery No. 3, K. T., and Acacia Lodge No. 4, A. F. & A. M.

and all honors due a good man, a loyal Mason and a courteous Sir Knight were paid him.

Personal History.

In 1892 he was elected county superintendent of schools of Walsh county, serving in a most efficient manner four years. From 1901 to 1903 he was deputy state superintendent; 1903 to 1905 private secretary to Governor Frank White. In 1905 he went to Grand Forks to live. He was actively identified with the various commercial and civic movements of that city. He was essentially a useful citizen. During the recent primary campaign he was a candidate for state superintendent of public instruction. He is the author of Woods' Civil Government of North Dakota. His wife and four sons survive him.

He was exalted a Royal Arch Mason in Grafton Chapter No. 9, in March, 1892. He served as High Priest in 1896. In 1905 he affiliated with Corinthian Chapter No. 3, at Grand Forks.

He was knighted in Grand Forks Commandery No. 3, in June, 1892. Distinguished to become a charter member of St. Omer Commandery No. 6, Grafton. Served as Eminent Commander in 1897. He was a charter member of Mizpah Chapter No. 6, O. E. S., Grafton, N. D., and served as the first patron. He afterwards affiliated with Acacia Chapter at Grand Forks. He joined El Zagal Temple A. A. O. N. M. S., at Fargo, in 1894. Became a charter member of Kem Temple in Grand Forks.

WELL KNOWN RESIDENT OF THE VALLEY DEAD

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 1.—John Drydale, one of the oldest men in Grand Forks, and well known throughout North Dakota and the northwest, passed away at the home of his son, 719 Walnut street, at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday evening. Although more than 90 years of age, Mr. Drydale was never compelled to spend a day in bed until Tuesday, and his vitality for one so well advanced in years was considered remarkable. He seemed to be in his usual health until the day of his death, but Tuesday morning he chose to remain in bed rather than arise, and his death occurred in the evening. No cause is attributed other than old age.

In one case it cost me $50, for the girl was put on it only until she could arrange to be operated, and in a wee, short time an operation was not needed. I suppose your records are just as fine as of old. You know my faith in the medicine."
