MUCH INTEREST IN COMING COMEDY

"REJUVENATION OF AUNT MARY" MADE HIT IN EVERY PART OF COUNTRY.

Same Company Here That Has Appeared in All Large Eastern and Western Cities.

That there is a great interest in the production here of that great comedy, "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" is apparent on account of the big advance sale of reserved seats. Aside from the play itself, there is the fact that May Robson will appear in the title role as an added attraction. In this day of magazines with their large theatrical departments the name of May Robson is almost a household word as she is one of the best-known of the actresses who are on the stage. This company does not depend entirely on the work of the leading lady, however, but Miss Robson has surrounded herself with an unusually capable company of actors and the performance is as finished and complete as would be given in New York or Chicago. Any one who has seen the play with Miss Robson in the lead will tell you that it is really the leading comedy of the age. The performance this evening will commence at 8:30.

FUNERAL WAS HELD THIS AFTERNOON AT METHODIST CHURCH

Another link was broken in the fast weakening chain of North Dakota pioneers with the death of Martin L. Marsh, Wednesday at the home of his sister, Mrs. R. R. Marsh, on East Main street. Mr. Marsh has been closely identified with the history of the capital city since his coming in 1872, and has countless friends and acquaintances all over the state who mourn his loss.

The deceased was born in New York state in 1844 and came to Bismarck in June of 1872, where he at once went into business as the proprietor of the Capital Hotel, Bismarck's first hotel, on the present site of the Gunner store. On Thanksgiving day, 1881, he was married to Miss Anna Tully, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Tully, still residents of this city.

In 1895 Mrs. Marsh died, leaving three children, Grant, Mary and Terrence Marsh, to be cared for by Mr. Marsh's sister, Mrs. Phoebe Marsh has also cared for her brother for many years, as he has been in ill-health for some time.

Among the bereaved relatives are two brothers and two sisters, Francis G. Marsh of Windom, Minn., W. W. Marsh of Frewsburg, N. Y., Mrs. L. A. Forbush of Jamestown, N. Y., and Mrs. E. L. Rawson of Centralia, N. Y.

The funeral occurred this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Methodist church with Rev. Shute in charge of the ceremonies, and the remains were buried in the Catholic cemetery.

MERRYMAKERS THROUGH STREETS

Carnival Brings Many People to Minnesota City--Will Be Larger.

The streets of Moorhead were crowded to overflowing last evening with a merry throng who were enjoying the Great Cosmopolitan Shows and street carnival which has been there all week. Some of the corners were so crowded as to be impassable. People from all over the county were in the city, and it is altogether probable that the crowds will be even larger at the latter part of the week. Fargo, too, was well represented at the carnival, for last evening after the attractions had closed for the evening the bridges and cars were packed with people who were returning from the festivities.

The week promises to be a busy one for the carnival company, for their attractions are as good as those of any carnival which has ever shown in the city, and are as good as those shown at many state fairs. From the Fargo Courier-News, Thursday, July 13.

DISGUSTING STATE OF AFFAIRS UNEARTHED

DAUGHTER GIVES FEW DETAILS OF ACTIONS OF HER FATHER AND GUARDIAN.

Fourteen-Year-Old Girl Tells of Treatment Received From Father--Writes Letters to Friends.

Lillian Apley, the little girl living at Burnstad and whose father is now in the county jail awaiting trial on a charge of abusing his daughter, has had more than her share of troubles, according to letters that she has written to friends in the west and who in turn have written to Sheriff Barnes of this county for the purpose of having an investigation made into her claims. She writes to the adjutant of a home which she formerly lived in while in the west. It would appear from the letter that the little girl had been in the juvenile court in Portland, Ore., and that the court had remanded her to the care of some home but that later her father appeared on the scene and induced the people there to think that he would give the child proper care and that he should be appointed guardian. This was done, and the girl and her father came to Burnstad. In this state, where it was that the charges were preferred against the inhuman father. In the letters the girl writes to friends in the west, including the judge and the adjutant at the home in which she lived, she tells a most unbelievable story of the abuse she has undergone. She tells of efforts of her father to get her to go on the streets and solicit money from men, and of the fact that her father told her that nothing else mattered so long as they were dressed well and "put on a good front." She said that a brother of her father was in the state prison in Stillwater, and that a brother of her's had disappeared in a mysterious manner, and she is not backward about hinting that she suspects that her father knows more than he has told of the disappearance of his son. In the letters the girl calls upon the people with whom she is corresponding to come and care for her and give her a chance to do something to get out of the life that she has been compelled to lead.

In closing her letter to the judge of the juvenile court, little Lillian Apley says: "Oh, God, if I had only stayed with Adjutant Limmon I could be something and be respected and be respected. Don't let him find out that I wrote this or he would kill me dead than a door nail. If you can help me, act quickly, but don't let him find out, for he would kill me and bury me in the prairie. He is going to try and start Tuesday, the 11th, and get me over into Canada."

Since the girl wrote the above letters the man has been arrested and is held in $10,000 bail to the full term of court. There is no possibility that he will get the bail and there is so much excitement at Napoleon and Burnstad that the man would not venture forth in either place were he given his liberty temporarily.

Amusements

ORPHEUM

The show that is on at the Orpheum for the last end of the week is sure to please all. Alvia and Alvia, grotesque comedy and acrobatic dancers, have a clever act and made a big hit last night. "The Vitagraph Girl," sung by Ethel Moore Bauer, was very well rendered and was well received. The photoplays are good the comedy that is a comedy, "Hetty Becomes a Maid," is a laugh from start to finish.
