Young girls, gowned in Japanese kimono, served coffee and doughnuts to the guests. News About Women

WHERE WOMEN CAN'T SMOKE
New York—(AP)—Women may be seen smoking in almost all public places in New York, but that liberty is sometimes curtailed as soon as city limits are passed. On one of the principal railroads women who invade the masculine precincts of the smoking car are politely but firmly requested by the trainmen to leave.

IRISH FOLK DANCING
Dublin—(AP)—Miss Elizabeth Burren, chairman of the American Folk Dance Society, told the Rotary Club in Dublin that her organization was to put Irish dancing in the forefront of the folk-dancing movement. She wants to bring Irish dances to America and to make a special course in Irish dances. She said she never saw such joy as that expressed in Irish dancing. Major Bryan Cooper, a member of the Dail, advocated the establishment in Ireland of a Folk Dance Society to cooperate with the Gaelic League.

FASHIONS AID HEALTH
Bobbie hair and short skirts as an influence on the health of women are emphasized in the annual health report of the London County Council. "Dame Fashion," declares the report, "would appear to have taken counsel with the Lady Hygieia. Formerly in many ways the vagaries of feminine modes struck deeply at the roots of health and sapped the vitality, especially of girls and young women. They dictated the compression of vital organs and the limitation of freedom of movement. The result was seen in malformations and diseases very prevalent in the population. The disappearance from the dress of girls of constricting devices such as corsets and garters has had a very great effect in improving both physique and health." A review of the period from 1890 to 1925 shows the gradual decline in the death rate from 21 to 1000 in 1890 to 12 per 1000 in 1925.

CAPITOL THEATRE
That motion picture producers have so long missed the smashing melodrama and the tremendous power of such a subject as the U. S. Navy's history-making flight to Hawaii, with Commander Rodgers and his courageous crew floating in the disabled PN9 for nine days on the tumultuous rollers of the Pacific, is a surprise. Emory Johnson was the only man who saw the possibilities for filming an airplane epic in this spectacular event, which perhaps received more front page publicity than any other occurrence in a decade. And he has turned out for F. B. O. a dashing, surprising production, based on the conquering of the Pacific and written by his talented mother, Emilie Johnson. "The Non-Stop Flight," which comes to the Capitol theatre next week when it begins a two-day engagement, is reported by critics everywhere as the finest work this brilliant young director has yet achieved, even surpassing such pictures as "The Third Alarm," "The Mailman," "Westbound Limited" and "The Last Edition." Mr. Johnson has assembled a great cast, and one of the most interesting inanimate "actors" in the drama is the great PN9 herself, which the director obtained with the assistance of the U. S. Navy.

ELTINGE THEATRE
"The Great Deception," playing at the Eltinge Monday and Tuesday, is the photoplay version of the George "Crazy" novel entitled, "The Yellow Dove," which will be remembered as one of the most successful "war stories" ever published in America. Ben Lyon appears as Cyril, the intrepid British aviator; Aileen Pringle as Lois, Basil Rathbone as Rizzio, the chief of the German Secret Service; and the Russian and Sam Hardy as Hardy, Cyril's trusted pal and aviation mechanic.

Charlotte Walker, Amelia Summerville and Hubert Wilke are others of prominence in the cast. Some of the darest aviation scenes shown in the picture were made by Curt Flyers at the Curt field, Long Island. The Fort Totten, Long Island army base, which defends New York harbor, engaged in a sham air battle, employing planes, anti-aircraft guns and giant searchlights when aviators apparently attacked New York by air. This air raid forms one of the most thrilling scenes in "The Great Deception."
